New Storm Builds Near Puerto Rico

Southeast Bahamas Alerted as Squall Moves in Fast

MIAMI (AP)—A squally area near Puerto Rico has better than a 50-50 chance of developing into the season's sixth tropical storm, the Weather Bureau said Saturday night.

There has been no aerial reconnaissance of the possible hurricane as yet but scout planes were to be out at day-break. Special ship reports were supplying forecasters with information through the night.

The Miami Weather Bureau put residents of the southeast Bahamas on the alert "in case quick action is necessary Sunday morning."

"A ship observation taken at 4 p.m. Saturday afternoon indicates the easterly wave north of Puerto Rico apparently has undergone significant intensification and that probably a weak circulation has developed," Chief Storm Forecaster Gordon Dunn said.

THE CIRCULATION, located about 200 miles north of San Juan, Puerto Rico, appeared to be moving westward at about 16 miles an hour. Its maximum winds were between 25 and 35 miles per hour.

"The circulation is expected to be near Turks Island Sunday morning. Small craft in the extreme southeastern Bahamas and along the north coast of Hispaniola should remain in port," Dunn said.

"Special ship reports have been requested and aircraft will be investigating the storm at daybreak Sunday morning."

THE DISTURBANCE was about 150 miles east of the path taken early this month by hurricane Donna. If it continues on its present track, it soon would begin following Donna's footsteps through the Atlantic Ocean.

It was about 400 miles southeast of Mayaguana Island, site of a U.S. missile tracking station and one of the points which took a severe beating from Donna. The new disturbance, if it develops, will be called Florence. It was 975 miles southeast of Miami Saturday night.

Meanwhile, weathermen watched a second easterly wave which was moving across south Florida.

Despondent Dramatist Gulps Poison

WEST LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Author Samuel Karrakas, despondent because "we don't have men who think far enough into the future," took his own life Saturday by swallowing an estimated 100 pills, police reported.

Karrakas, 66, known professionally as Paul Kay, left 13 notes. His last, apparently read only, "That's all."

The writer also active in the theater as a writer and producer, said he was unhappy over the state of the world in general. He also was plagued by illness. A diabetic, he had one leg amputated.

Karrakas, graduate of Cornell University, produced the stage version of John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln." Other works included "Solomon Isaac" and "The Dear Delightful Lady."

You CAN Get Better Grades

Is Your Child Ready for the Challenge of the Space Age?

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D.
With HARRY KARNS

Never has it been as important as it is today for American boys and girls to know how to make good grades.

This is an era of scholarship. Sputnik plunged the U. S. into a contest of brains. Academic standards are rising. The road to the diploma is suddenly rough and getting rougher. More is required of the student than ever before.

President Sterling of Stanford University recently stated that if the lower half of the 1953 freshman class at Stanford had applied in 1959, they would not have been admitted!

For every college student in the U. S. in 1920, there were two in 1940, four in 1950, and six in 1960, and there will be 11 in 1970. The increase in college enrollment in

Dr. Leslie J. Nason, professor of education at the University of Southern California, has worked in the teaching field 40 years as math, science, and engineering instructor and as special consultant on learning techniques.

In recent years the phenomenal results of his work with failing students have had a marked influence on educational thinking.

In this 12-part series, Dr. Nason, a Long Beach resident, states in simple, non-technical language a major problem of our times—and from the wealth of his experience tells parents and students how to solve it.

Secretary Returns, Tells Cuba Frameup

MIAMI (UPI)—Mrs. Marjorie Lennox, American Embassy secretary ordered expelled from Cuba on spy charges, arrived back in the United States Saturday night and said she "strongly suspects a frameup."

The attractive 28-year-old blonde, San Francisco divorcee appeared tired but in good spirits as she alighted from the airliner that brought her to Miami from Havana.

Three other Americans, Robert L. Neet, an American Embassy employee, and Mr. and Mrs. Mario Nordio were ordered expelled Wednesday. Three others, Eustace Brunet, Edmund Taraske and Daniel Craswell were to be tried by a Cuban court on spy charges.

MRS. LENNOX was accompanied by a State Department employee when she arrived. The Nordios were not aboard the flight.

The Cuban government charged Mrs. Lennox and Neet acted as go-betweens in the alleged ring. They said Mrs. Lennox was arrested after a key to her Havana apartment was found in Nordio's apartment.

"They must have planted the key," Mrs. Lennox said. She had no comment on how Cuban government agents might have gotten the key.

She said, "I was sleeping in the next 10 years will be greater than it has been in the past 40 years.

Thus, competition for a seat in the American college classroom is just as keen as competition with the Russians.

MILLIONS OF AMERICAN BOYS AND GIRLS, however, are ill-prepared to compete in either of these contests.

They have not learned how to write, how to pay attention, how to read for precise meanings, how to control the speed and accuracy of their mental processes, or how to prepare for and take examinations.

If they have not first learned the art of learning, how can they be expected to learn anything else?

In this series of articles we are going to talk about some common sense principles of learning that can help you make better grades in school and life.

To begin with, let's clear away a major obstacle that stands in the path of learning.

IT'S THE FASHION TODAY to blame poor grades, delinquency, bad manners, and flat tires on your great-grandfather's genes and on the pattern of the paper Daddy put on the wall of your nursery.

Heredity and environment influence your life, of course. But the notion that they cast your character and habits in a hard, inflexible mold is nothing but a convenient myth—an easy alibi for a bad performance.

We are now going to ask you to forget that myth. We are going to ask you to accept in its place a simple but revolutionary truth:

You can consciously control the operations of your brain just as you can control the speed and direction of your automobile.

In World War II the Air Force psychologists proved that you can radically increase your speed of perception. That is, you can learn to see more in a shorter span of time. By flashing pictures on screens they trained pilots to take in a fantastic number of details in the wink of an eye and to describe them accurately.

Similarly, the Navy, experimenting in its radio schools, proved that operators could develop accurate receiving ability to the point where a sentence of Morse code was almost a blur of sound.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO, a Long Beach man, Thurman Wade, enrolled in a speed reading class at the Business and Technology Division of Long Beach City College.

Average reading speed for college graduates, and U. S. business executives is about 260 words a minute. By conscious effort Mr. Wade hiked his speed to 450 words a minute in a few weeks. Presently he was reading 800, 1,200, and then 2,200 words a minute. At cruising speed he could swish through a 400-page volume in one hour. When last heard from, Mr. Wade had pushed his reading speed to the 6,100-word-per-minute mark and was at the point of going into orbit.

But does he understand what he reads? Yes. Tests show that as a fast reader his understanding has INCREASED.

Although Mr. Wade's case is an unusual one, speed-reading teachers know that with proper training most

State Dept. Bids TV Nets Ignore Nikita

NEW YORK (AP)—The State Department has informally advised major television networks that it hopes they will not allow Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to use TV as a propaganda platform during his New York visit.

The National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System said Saturday night they had received calls from State Department officials to express the department's feelings on TV coverage of the Khrushchev visit.

The American Broadcasting Co. said it may have received such a call but could not say for certain.

THE DEPARTMENT officials said they were concerned primarily about special programs created by the networks and placed at the disposal of Khrushchev.

The New York Times said the networks displayed little reaction to the request because they had planned no invitations to Khrushchev studio programs but planned to cover the hard news of the premier's visit.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said the department's position had been stated by Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

Herter was asked at his news conference last week what should be done about suggestions which have been made that the American press and the public disregard and do nothing about printing the appearance of Khrushchev and Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Herter said: "We have a free press in this country. We have no intention of dictating in any way, or trying to dictate in any way, as to what should be published and what should not be published."

450,000 Killed Theoretically in Mock Attack

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The California Disaster Office ended a mock nuclear attack on the Sierra foothills Saturday and estimated that 450,000 persons would have died from two bombs.

The attack began at noon Friday as bombs in the one-to-five-megaton range fell at Beale Air Force Base near Marysville, and at Castle Air Force Base northeast of Merced.

Retired Maj. Gen. Ewart Plank, who served as referee for the 24-hour exercise, said that fallout would have covered an area from the Central Valley center line east to the Sierra summit, and from Groveland in the south to Yuba County in the north.

"And don't forget, this was only two bombs," he said.

Lumumba's Aide Denies Death Rumor

By WILEUR G. LANDREY

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Missing Premier Patrice Lumumba's private secretary sought to dispel rumors the pro-Soviet Congolese leader had been slain by displaying a document dated Saturday and bearing Lumumba's signature.

Newsmen compared the signature with previously signed documents and said the signature appeared authentic, but there still was no indication as to the whereabouts of the goateed former beer salesman, deserted by the army here and by his Russian friends who fled the country during the day.

THE RUSSIANS defeated here by Congolese army strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu and in the United Nations by American-led opposition to attempts to infiltrate the Congo, asked for and received U.N. troop protection as they rode to the airport and flew off.

They left as the man who brought them here, Lumumba, was revealed to have disappeared from his U.N.-guarded home Friday night. His disappearance touched off a wave of rumors that his enemies had killed him.

But 1,100 of his still-loyal army forces were invading secessionist Katanga Province and in Stanleyville, to the north, his word remained law.

A NEW THREAT rose in the spread of smallpox. The World Health Organization in Geneva reported Friday night

Admittance of 14 African Lands Pushed

Action Is Answer to Russ Charge of Railroading Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United States opened an emergency session of the General Assembly Saturday night with a surprise proposal to bring 14 more African countries into the debate on the Congo crisis.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth moved, and the Assembly agreed, to make the first item on the agenda the admission of new members whose applications already have been recommended by the Security Council.

This involved 15 applicants — 14 African countries and Cyprus — whose admission normally would have been considered early in the regular assembly session opening next Tuesday.

AFTER A 94-minute adjournment, Guinea offered a formal motion supporting Russia's demand that the question of new members be adjourned and the assembly reversed itself as the postponement motion was carried by a 43-to-0 hand vote with 26 abstentions.

Assembly President Victor Andres Belaunde announced that the date for considering admission of new members would be announced today.

Romanian delegate Eduard Mezincescu then suggested that the Congo question should be postponed until the African countries were admitted. He did not offer a formal proposal and his suggestion gained no support.

WADSWORTH'S move was a direct retort to Soviet criticism leveled at the United States in the Security Council Friday night. The Russians contended that the United States wanted to choke off the voice of the African countries and conclude discussion of the Congo debate before the new members from Africa were admitted.

When Wadsworth's move to admit new members at once was defeated, he

Crazed Man Slays 2, Wounds 1, Kills Self

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A crazed gunman cut loose with a shotgun from his second-floor bedroom window Saturday and killed two neighbors. One other man was critically wounded.

The gunman, Oswald Zambon, 57, an unemployed stonemason who suffered from delusions of persecution, then fired a shot into his right temple. He died about four hours later.

Killed were Adam Haluck, 53, a steelworker, and his son, Robert, 28, both of Pittsburgh's East Liberty district. In critical condition was Charles Yorio, 38, a tile-setter.

L.A.C. Says: It's the Men Not the Party

The recent California Poll showed Nixon and Lodge would carry the state if the election were held two weeks ago. The Poll showed this team would get the vote of 92 per cent of the Republicans and 20 per cent of the Democrats. By contrast, it showed Kennedy could be sure of only 72 per cent of the Democratic vote and 5 per cent of the Republican vote. Those undecided made up the difference.

There are, of course, many interpretations of such polling figures. There are questions about their accuracy—and how they may change overnight. But the California and Gallup Polls have had a very high record of accurate forecast of election results. They are certainly not accurate to the exact percentages they give, but they have been accurate to within 5 percentage points in virtually every election during the past 10 years. The least that can be said for them is that they are the best indication of public opinion we have.

This, it seems to us, makes the California Poll of intense interest. The state has a registration of about three Democrats to two Republicans. It has had the ratio for many years now—but in all but the 1958 election the voters elected Republican senators and the governor. In 1958 they turned away from Knowland and hundreds of thousands of Republicans joined with Democrats in voting for Brown—because the Republicans were incensed over the way Knowland had arbitrarily wrecked the Republican unity in the state.

Now we are approaching an election when there is no state fight for either senator or governor. There is a good probability the Democrats will again elect a majority of Democrats to the House of Representatives. But the real interest is shown in the presidential race. It is here the personality and experience of the candidates are more important than the party—as far as voters are concerned.

Republicans are well satisfied with the record of Mr. Nixon. They have a solidarity in backing him that comes from the fact they know him as one who is experienced in the activities of the President. They remember how he conducted himself during the months of the President's illnesses—on his trips over South America and his affair with Khrushchev in Moscow. He is the natural candidate for the Republicans and has their almost unanimous support.

Mr. Kennedy does not have this almost unanimous support of the Democrats. In California one in five of them say they are definitely for Nixon. Only 72 per cent say they are definitely for Kennedy. The reasons for this lack of unanimity among Democrats is that many of them object to the "something for everyone" promises by Kennedy to farmers, unions, oldsters and about every pressure group in the nation. It is clear all these promises cannot be kept if we are to remain a free nation. They can only be kept by an all-powerful government taxing its people into socialism—or fascism. In either case, it means loss of all individual freedoms. It is apparent the 28 per cent of the Democrats who deny their support to Kennedy because of this fear of his opportunistic promises can be the deciding factor in the election. It is the men, not the party, these people are considering.—L.A.C.

Fish Nearly Sinks Boat

HONOLULU (AP) — A giant swordfish stabbed a hole in the wood hull of a fishing sampan, almost causing the 43-foot craft to sink.

The sampan Helen W. radioed the Coast Guard Friday night for help, saying she was taking water and in danger of sinking. The Helen W, registered to Gengo Nabeshima of Honolulu, was 125 miles southeast of here.

A Coast Guard plane dropped an emergency pump to the sampan early Saturday and, shortly afterward, the Helen W reported the flooding had been controlled and she was under way.

Nabeshima, in a radio report, said the huge swordfish charged the sampan.

Aboard also were crewmen Edward Dade and Charles Toma, both of Honolulu.

You Can Be Accurate With Rapid Reading persons can double their reading speed and increase their comprehension 10 to 50 per cent.

We are less concerned here with the mechanics of the thing than with the fact that such improvement is possible by conscious exertion of effort. You CAN change your speed. You CAN improve your understanding of what you read.

Joe was a student in an intermediate algebra class. He had troubles. He brought them to what we shall describe informally as Dr. Nason's Clinic for Lagging School Children.

His third grade teacher had told him to choose between being slow and accurate or fast and inaccurate. Since he had chosen to be slow and accurate, he now found it impossible to finish tests within the time allowed. He feared that any change in his rate of work would produce disastrous results.

"Look, Joe, you're producing disastrous results anyway," we pointed out, "so why not try the alternative that wasn't suggested to you? Try to be both fast AND accurate."

THIS WAS AWFUL heresy.

but Joe was ready to try anything.

"What do I do?" "When you're working 'slow and accurate,' does your mind ever have space left over to think about other things?"

He admitted that when working slowly he tended to daydream. Other thoughts crept in to fill unused space. "All right then. The point is to make your mind and your pencil work so fast that there's no time or space in your brain for daydreaming."

We gave him a test comparable to one in which previously he had completed 12 problems (nine correctly) in 50 minutes. This time, consciously trying to speed up his brain, he finished 20 problems in 40 minutes and got 18 right.

PRESENTED WITH PROOF of the marvelous new theory that speed and accuracy do go together, Joe started getting his algebra done on time. "Haste makes waste." "Slow but sure."

Those old sayings, dignifying slowness, are mere excuses for plodding.

The truth is that you can control your thinking habits and, by controlling them, tremendously improve your learning.

Now let's explore more thoroughly this question of reading, which occupies so much student time with so little profit.

Mr. K Is Next on Pacifists' Protest List

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — One of seven pacifists who tried to disrupt the commissioning of a Polaris submarine said Saturday her group plans to demonstrate in New York next week against Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Margaret Windus, 27, of Chicago said the group had completed plans for protests against the Soviet premier when he comes to this country.

The Coast Guard hauled away six of the demonstrators Friday while the USS Robert E. Lee was being commissioned at the Newport News shipyard.

No charges were placed against any of the group.

Churches Warned on Politics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Churches circulating anti-Catholic literature during the presidential election campaign were warned Saturday they were jeopardizing their tax exemption position.

Charles P. Taft, chairman of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee, said in a statement that churches distributing literature advocating political action faced tax losses under provisions of the 1954 amendment to the internal revenue code.

"According to very responsible authority," he said, "contributions to churches and similar organizations are being made to pay for this literature distribution, with the intention of claiming they are charitable contributions and deductible on federal income tax returns."

BUT HE said such literature is "clearly on its face, and often in so many words, aimed at the defeat of one of the candidates for president."

Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, is a Roman Catholic. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the GOP nominee, is a Quaker.

The Fair Campaign Practices Committee is a non-political group which includes leading members of both major parties and Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths.

Chase Crash Hurts Marine Critically

A young El Toro Marine Corps Air Station serviceman was in critical condition late Saturday in Santa Ana Community Hospital after his car overturned while he was being chased by police.

Santa Ana officers said they attempted to apprehend Chester S. Woolsey, about 21, in a drive-in restaurant on Newport Boulevard when Woolsey sped away.

Police said he was suspected as a hit-and-run violator.

promptly began the assembly's Congo debate.

THE ISSUE is clearly drawn," he said, "between those who would form war in The Congo to promote their own ambitions in Africa and the community of nations which would seek to place The Congo on the path of true independence and peace. The decision between the two will go far to determine the future of us all."

Reviewing the record which had been carefully set before the Security Council in a series of debates starting last July 8, Wadsworth pointed out that while the United States kept out of the Congo, except for assisting the U.N. effort to pacify the country, Russia poured military aid into the young African republic.

"WE FOLLOWED this course not only out of respect for this organization," he said, "but because the avoidance of needless conflict between great powers is a matter of the most elementary prudence. And we honestly hoped that all others would do the same."

"The Soviet Union, alone among the great powers of the world, chose to defy the Security Council decisions for which it had voted, and to strike out on its own path," Wadsworth said.

"In direct violation of the Security Council's proceedings, the Soviet Union dispatched to The Congo hundreds of so-called 'technicians'—whose character may be judged by the fact that only a few days ago the Congolese authorities ordered them to leave the country.

Meanwhile, nearly two dozen Soviet transport aircraft and 100 Soviet trucks appeared in The Congo—not to participate in the U.N. program, not to put themselves under the U.N. authorities there, but to promote strife and bloodshed between Congolese factions.

"ALL THE WHILE, the Soviet propaganda machine beamed inflammatory broadcasts to Africa inciting civil strife and slandering the United Nations and its secretary-general," Wadsworth said. "Soviet propaganda pamphlets bearing the same message were distributed in The Congo itself."

"The U.N. operation in The Congo has so far withstood that assault, but the consequences which flowed from the Soviet action have made it necessary to act without delay if we are to prevent attempts to subvert The Congo and thwart the United Nations."

Responding to Wadsworth, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin accused the United States of heading a plot against the government of ousted leftist Premier Patrice Lumumba to maintain control of the rich uranium deposits of Katanga Province, the secession of which was the first step in Lumumba's downfall.

The emergency session of the assembly was taking away some of the luster of Nikita S. Khrushchev's arrival on the scene. He still was 1,000 miles at sea aboard the tossing liner Baltika. There was seasickness aboard, according to Radio Moscow.

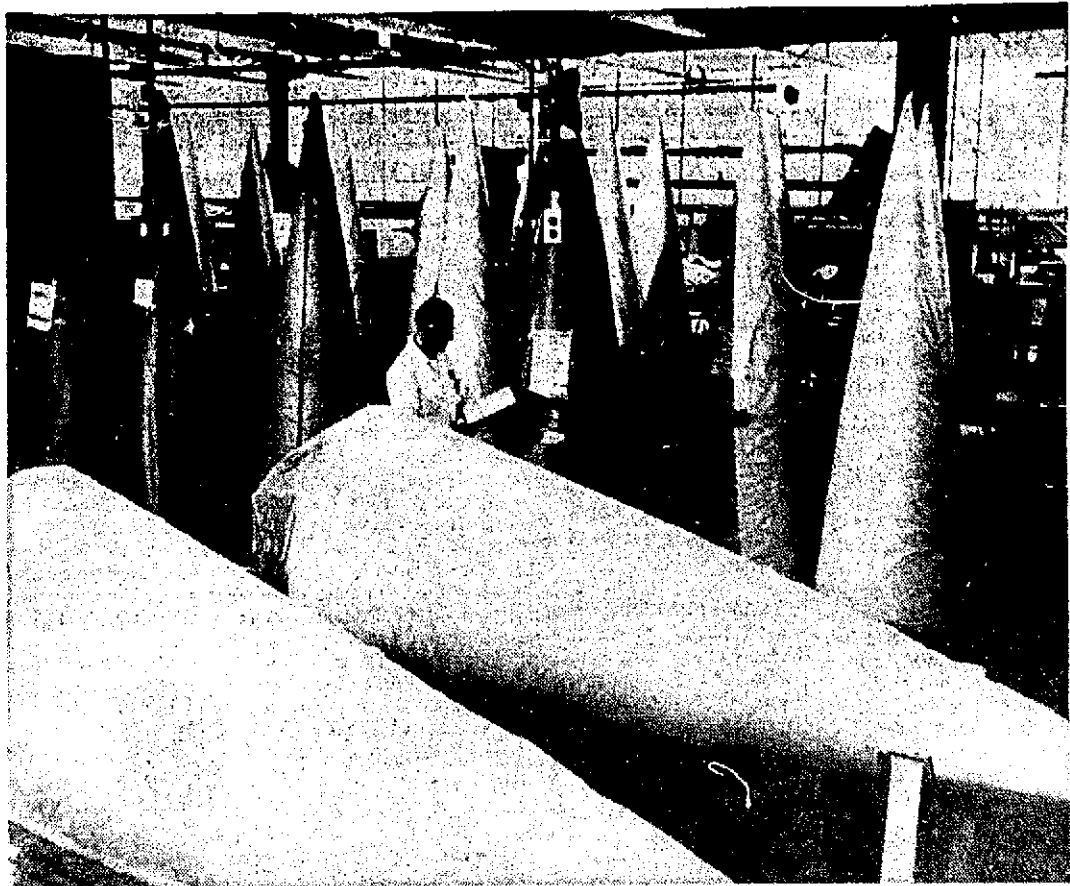

List Boy Shot by Friend as Still Critical

A five-year-old Lynwood boy, seriously wounded when his friend shot him in the head with a .38 caliber pistol, remained in critical condition late Saturday night in Rio Hondo Hospital, Downey.

Attendants said Richard Andrew Hibbs, 1112 Stockwell Dr., was "holding his own."

The boy was shot Friday afternoon as he played on the sidewalk in front of the Lynwood Baptist Church where he attended parochial school.

Another last-minute headache bobbed up involving Khrushchev's arrival.

The Soviet leader's personal security chief, Gen. Nikolai Zharkov, expressed dissatisfaction with the run-down condition of the city pier where Khrushchev's ship is due to dock Monday.

Khrushchev is scheduled to arrive Monday morning (about 7 EST) after a six-day voyage aboard the Soviet liner Baltika.

Accompanying him will be about 170 aides, plus the Communist leaders of Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania and some 100 other aides.

Zharov inspected the city pier Saturday morning with New York police authorities, mainly to double check the extraordinary security precautions that will bar all but invited guests when Khrushchev comes ashore.

ZHAKAROV shook his head as he noticed the rusty corrugated metal siding covering the pier, as well as dozens of broken windows, holes in the roof and piles of dirt that had yet to be swept up.

The pier, No. 73, is a seldom-used structure that was chosen as the spot for Khrushchev to dock because its out-of-the-way location helped ease the security problem.

For the past week, workmen have been busy cleaning it up as best they could. An old dilapidated gangplank had been repainted grey this morning.

Zhakarov was clearly not impressed with conditions.

HE TALKED earnestly to New York police authorities who already have put a day and night guard around the pier. Afterward, the word was that more workmen would be put on the cleanup job.

New reinforcements arrived Saturday for the corps of State Department security agents who have ultimate responsibility for the safety of Khrushchev and other foreign leaders whenever they venture into Manhattan's streets.

Working closely with New York police, the agents have installed an elaborate network of walkie-talkies for instant communication.

Headquarters have been set up in a downtown New York hotel.

SEPARATE TASK forces of pistol-packing agents were assigned to team with New York police squads with the emphasis on protection for Khrushchev, Castro and Hungary's Communist chief, Janos Kadar.

The New York police meanwhile announced that a mobile emergency reserve force had been organized to rush to any spot where trouble might develop.

Police authorities reported they had no estimate of the number of organized pickets and hecklers who will demonstrate against Khrushchev, his satellite chiefs, and Castro.

A telephoned threat to bomb the Overseas Press Club, which has asked Khrushchev to speak, added to their apprehension.

POLICE expressed belief the threat to bomb the press club was the work of a crank. In the present tense atmosphere, all such threats will be investigated thoroughly.

Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy put himself on 24-hour duty until the foreign government chiefs leave town.

Neither Khrushchev nor any of the Communist leaders has given the State Department any word on how long they intend to stay.

Soviet informants privately have reported they look for a visit of about two weeks—with the possibility Khrushchev will stay longer if developments warrant.

THE PROSPECT that he will stay at least two weeks has been strengthened by the Soviet Embassy's insistence that Khrushchev be allowed unrestricted access to the big mansion housing Soviet diplomats at Glen Cove, Long Island.

This request was put in terms of Khrushchev's need for a secluded spot where he could rest on weekends.

The State Department probably will grant permission for a few such trips. But they said there is no thought of abandoning the restriction limiting Khrushchev to the 22-square-mile area of Manhattan—regardless of any new Soviet protests.

State Department officials expect Khrushchev to denounce the restrictions as soon as he gets off the ship.

SEIZURE OF A second Cubana Airlines plane at Idlewild Airport strengthened the possibility that fiery Castro would arrive in an anti-American mood.

Two Queens County deputy sheriffs slapped a writ of attachment on the plane, a DC4, after it arrived early Saturday after a flight from Havana.

They were acting on behalf of a Miami, Fla., advertising firm which claims the airline has refused to pay what it owes on its account.

In the past few days, police and federal security agents have focused more and more of their attention on the problem of safeguarding Castro.

The fear uppermost in their minds is the possibility of a clash between anti-Castro and pro-Castro Cuban groups in New York.

CHURCH ATTACK

Masked Boy Assaults Woman With Hammer

By WILLIAM JONES

A barefoot, bike-riding teenager—his face contorted in a nylon silk stocking—walked into the Sixth Church of Christ Science Saturday and struck down a woman church worker with seven blows by a hammer.

Despite the injury, described by police on their report as a "tremendous concussion," Miss Frances P. Jensen, 50, of 5708 E. Hardwick St., Lakewood, was reported late Saturday in fair condition at Community Hospital.

MISS JENSEN, secretary to the vice principal at Lakewood High School, was reading a passage from a religious tract when the masked youth entered the door of the church at 3401 Studebaker Rd.

Before the woman could cry out, the teenager slammed the hammer six times into her skull and once into the left side of her forehead.

Miss Jensen told police she lost consciousness. Upon recovering, he crawled to a nearby telephone and summoned help through the operator.

At the hospital, the woman's wounds were closed by 20 stitches.

Police said the attack apparently was unprovoked. There was a small amount of cash left undisturbed in her desk and nothing was missing from the church.

Police were unable to find the assailant, described as a barefoot teenager, wearing blue jeans and a T-shirt. Witnesses said the youth fled the scene on a bicycle.

Hospital attendants said that X-rays showed the woman suffered what they described as "a minor skull fracture" and a brain concussion.

Lumumba's Aide Hits Death Story that there had been many outbreaks of the dread disease, but all had been localized.

Western embassies said they were unable to track down the rumors of Lumumba's death.

Col. Mobutu said he personally doubted it.

Mobutu and the U.N. said they would not search for Lumumba.

Mobutu gave the Russians until noon to get out and they started leaving before the deadline.

WHEN OBVIOUSLY angered Ambassador Mikhail Yakovlev left his embassy and climbed into a black limousine, a Congolese army officer wrenched open the door and tried to pull him from the car.

"No, no, Kasavubu, Kasavubu," said the ambassador, trying to tell the officer that he did business only with Congolese president Joseph Kasavubu.

Before the incident could develop further, a Ghanaian U.N. officer rushed forward, pushed aside the Congolese and waved the car on.

FIVE PLANELOADS of Russians and Czechs—and one lone last German—flew off from Leopoldville's Ndolo Airport.

Congolese troops searched and delayed the flights and angered the Reds, but there was nothing they could do.

One Russian with a steely smile said, "We'll be back."

Mobutu said he planned to ask the World Health Organization help the Congo, "not the Russians," and that "all Russian doctors and technicians would be expelled."

Nixon Raps Kennedy 'Scare' Tactics

By ROBERT E. LEE
Of I. P.-T. Capital Bureau

ST. PAUL—Vice President Nixon told Sen. John F. Kennedy Saturday to stop complaining about national security and prestige or risk giving Russia an advantage in the cold war.

Nixon ripped into his Democratic opponent for the first time in this campaign, suggesting that Kennedy is trying to "scare" the American people with "calculated distortion."

His first personal attack on Kennedy came in a speech at Macalester College, winding up the opening week of Nixon's intensive pre-election day barnstorming. It followed a rousing reception in St. Paul and Minneapolis where 125,000 turned out for the biggest greeting of the vice president's campaign so far.

NIXON LASHED out at Kennedy in connection with his opponent's remarks about the arrival of Russian Premier Khrushchev in New York next week for the United Nations meeting. He said there was no reason to be disturbed about the vast publicity sure to be given the Russian leader's activities here.

"The only real danger that he can turn his visit to advantage will develop if we show signs of confusion, disunity and immaturity over the occasion," Nixon said.

As an example of this, Nixon noted that Kennedy had said Khrushchev's visit means the cold war is being brought "to within 12 miles" of Bergen County, N.J.

"Now what was that supposed to mean?" Nixon asked his Macalester audience. "Is it calculated distortion, or accidental error, or lack of understanding, or possibly, a stirring after something to scare people with?"

"WHATEVER IT IS, it hardly contributes to America's wellbeing, and certainly it does not enlighten our friends in the world."

"I think it is time that we be done with the practice of cutting the pride and support of America by endlessly forecasting doom and prating doom."

"I think we should stop this continual insisting that America is poorly defended against a powerful and deadly foe. It is dangerous, as well as dead wrong."

Questioned about the anti-Kennedy crack at a press conference in Minneapolis before the speech but after the text was handed reporters, Nixon said his opponent's remarks implied that Khrushchev is coming here "because we have done something wrong in our own policy."

However, Nixon somewhat took the edge off his textual criticism—by praising Kennedy for a "very constructive" statement Friday about the Khrushchev visit.

THAT STATEMENT appeared almost to anticipate Nixon's attack Saturday. The Democratic candidate warned Khrushchev not to be deceived by his campaign tactic of raising questions about "our lost prestige, our shaky defenses, our lack of leadership," Kennedy said the Democratic party "isn't preaching disunity."

But Nixon insisted that Kennedy's statement was improper and, indeed, that neither candidate should comment about Khrushchev's visit. The vice president said both should await President Eisenhower's leadership in "setting out the line."

As for the political race, Nixon brushed aside a question about his "lead" over Kennedy and said the two were "even at present." He said there hasn't been much change in the last fortnight.

HE ALSO RULED out as "ridiculous" a question about Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, Democratic vice-presidential candidate, who says his mail shows that many persons are uneasy about Nixon's Quaker faith in relation to national defense policy.

Shortly before Nixon reached Minnesota's Twin Cities to help kick off the state's Republican campaign he told newsmen travelling with him he feels fine but tired. His left knee is much improved. He is tired because he started out the trip in a weakened condition as the result of hospitalization with the knee infection. "You can feel it when you're weak," he said as he boarded his plane at Sioux City, Iowa, en route for St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Nixon, who Friday night had his first chance for a decent night's sleep in six days due to his grueling campaign schedule, didn't take full advantage of the opportunity. He got up several times to jot down ideas for the Macalester speech.

DESPITE SOME fatigue and an annoying case of hay fever, Nixon scoffed at the idea of returning to the hospital in Washington Sunday for either rest or a checkup. "I've got too much to do," he said "such as getting together with Lodge"—his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge.

Nixon arrived in the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul after a day and half of barnstorming through Iowa by airplane and motorcade. It was estimated that 100,000 persons in the state saw him.

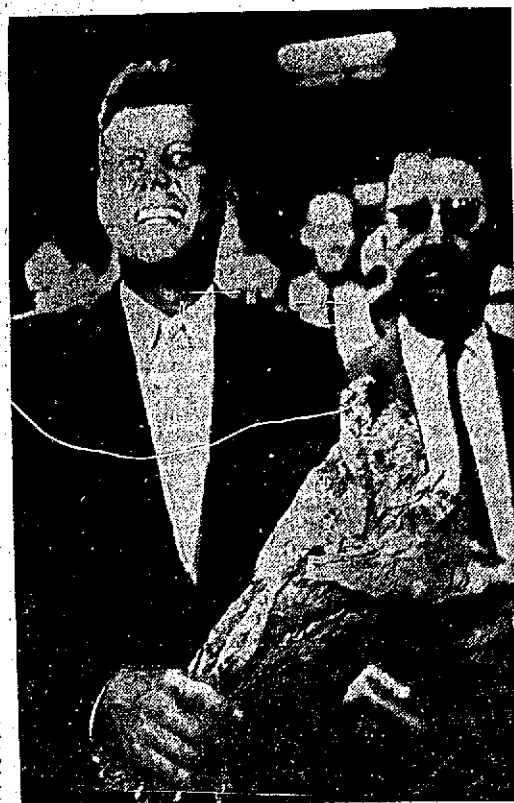

In all, the first week of his intense pre-election campaigning covered 15 states, and 9,000 miles and took Nixon personally before perhaps a half million persons even before he reached Minnesota and not counting a number of television appearances.

Returning to Washington after the Macalester speech, he sets out Monday morning on another equally far-ranging tour.

Kennedy Gets Big Hooray in Dixie

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief of I. P.-T. Capital Bureau

GREENVILLE, N. C.—Sen. John F. Kennedy Saturday made his first foray into the traditionally Democratic South. Considered to be handicapped by his Catholicism and his party's civil-rights plank, he was nevertheless greeted by large and enthusiastic crowds.

Democrats, obviously disturbed by the narrow 15,000 margin of Democratic victory in 1956, scheduled the senator from Massachusetts in towns where no presidential nominee has appeared since William Jennings Bryan in 1898.

At Greenville, described as the center of the "foot-washing" Baptists, the Eastern North Carolina College Stadium was jammed.

A state highway policeman commented: "We have about 12,000 in here and the rest of the town is out along the sidewalk. I guess we've got about everybody in town out for Kennedy."

"Of course," he added more cautiously, "we get a pretty good turnout for football games, too."

ANOTHER OBSERVER remarking on the large numbers of townspeople along Kennedy's route drawled, "Well, down here we don't get too many celebrities. A presidential candidate every 62 years doesn't spoil us too much."

The route was dotted with brightly clad white and Negro bands of the segregated high schools. A large sign over the stadium entrance declared Kennedy the "Symbol of Manifest Destiny."

It toppled just as the sun-burned candidate's car passed under it.

In a county where many of the registered voters are Negroes, there were remarkably few in the Greenville Stadium audience.

A local politician commented that "the last time the Negroes voted for Ike. But of course," he admonished this reporter, "it isn't so surprising to me that there aren't so many Negroes in the audience. These things are sometimes a matter of custom."

REMEMBERING that Herbert Hoover defeated Al Smith in 1928 in a state where a local reporter said, "It is still almost a sin to vote Republican," every meeting has been well faced with invocations from Baptist ministers.

Pastor Floyd Cherry of the Black Jack Baptist Church commented, "I think I'm speaking for many of my colleagues when I say we've just about had enough of this religious issue."

A tape of the senator's Houston meeting with the ministers has been shown on local TV shows. Observers feel that "the senator made a very good impression."

THE SENATOR made only one reference to the twin problems of race and religion. In Greensboro, he proclaimed to a large airport audience, "We believe that every American must have an opportunity regardless of religion or race." The crowd

Demo Booklet to List Names of Extremists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic national committee said Saturday that it will distribute among party workers excerpts from a publication naming "anti-Catholic extremists" who reportedly are agitating the religion issue in the presidential campaign.

The literature deals with questions stemming from the fact that Sen. John F. Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee, is a Catholic.

The excerpts were taken from "Facts," published by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish Organization.

The national committee quotes "Facts" as saying the four major anti-Catholics operating are the Rev. Harrison Parker of Washington, D.C.; the Rev. Harvey Springer of Englewood, Colo.; the Rev. Carl McIntire of Collingswood, N.J., and Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Herbert C. Holdridge of California.

HEMOPHILIA VICTIMS AIDED

Red Blood Cells Returned to Donor After Going for Spin in Laboratory

By BEN ZINSER

A dramatic laboratory procedure has been performed in Long Beach for the first time to enable a father to donate blood frequently to his incurably ill son.

The new procedure, which provides blood plasma for a victim of hemophilia (the "bleeder's disease"), also gives back red blood cells to the donor within an hour's time.

As a result, the donor can contribute blood again in a few days if necessary — a practice heretofore impossible.

The new lab technique, technically known as plasma phoresis, was conducted at Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.

Recipient of the plasma obtained by the procedure was 18-year-old Billy Jennings, 225 E. 65th St., who suffers a disease marked by abnormal bleeding and a failure of the blood to clot. Frequent blood-plasma transfusions are necessary to keep him alive.

IN THE PAST five years he has received 250 transfusions.

Until now, plasma containing clotting factors has been readily available in Long Beach to "bleeders" (hemophiliacs). From now on, though, routine administration of such plasma will be done in a Los Angeles hospital.

Because of the distance to the Los Angeles hospital, the new procedure will enable a hemophilia victim to continue to obtain plasma in Long Beach without too much delay.

Young Jennings' hemophilia first manifested itself when he was three months old. Fingertip pressure on his body, even though slight, was sufficient to produce two little blood tumors.

The boy has home teachers to provide his education. He attended Jordan High School one year, but because of possibility that jostling might touch off internal bleeding, he was allowed to enter the classroom five minutes after class started and leave it five minutes before it ended.

WHENEVER A TOOTH has to be pulled, Jennings enters a hospital so bleeding can be controlled.

The new blood-processing technique will enable the boy's father, Walter S. Jennings, 44-year-old carpenter, to donate blood every week if necessary.

Were the elder Jennings not to get his red cells back during the procedure, he would be able to donate a pint of blood only once every eight weeks, and not more than five times a year.

Tomb Tampering Jails Californian

PARIS (AP) — Ned Cherry, 24, of San Mateo, Calif., was arrested Saturday for tampering with the perpetual flame which burns over the tomb of France's unknown soldier under the Arch of Triumph.

Police said Cherry had attached a bottle opener to the end of a stick and was attempting to turn the valve regulating the gas flame.

Cherry was held for disposition by the public prosecutor. Police said he apologized for his behavior.

Heart Fund Gets Million in County

Los Angeles area residents contributed $1,322,623 to the County Heart Association during the past fiscal year, it was announced Saturday.

Edmund F. Schnieders, chairman of the 1960 heart fund drive, said it marked the fourth straight year donations topped the $1 million mark.

The county has the highest cardiovascular death rate of any population center in the nation, Schnieders noted.

PLASMA ON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Plasma goes for a ride in a new laboratory technique at Memorial Hospital, developed to aid victims of hemophilia. Terry Miller, technician, shows double-pack of plasma in plastic bags which are whirled in a centrifuge in procedure which restores red blood cells to donor. This permits blood donations at short intervals.—(Staff photo.)

Plasma loss is not so serious. A donor replaces his own blood fluid volume (plasma) within 24 hours after donating. Here's how the lab technique is performed:

Fresh whole blood is withdrawn from the donor into a plastic bag — one of two such bags connected by a plastic tube. This plastic unit, called a double-pack, is sterilized to prevent bacterial contamination.

The pack is placed inside a refrigerated (39-deg. F.) centrifuge, a large cabinet that looks like an oversized automatic washing machine.

Whirled in the centrifuge, the blood separates inside the plastic bag. In the bottom of the bag are the red cells. At the top is a yellowish fluid—blood plasma and platelets, the latter tiny bodies which play a role in blood-clotting.

NOW THE PLASTIC BAG is taken out of the centrifuge and placed in a vise-like gadget called a plasma extractor. Here it is compressed to send the top-layer plasma and platelets through a small tube into the empty plastic bag at the other end.

Finally, the two bags are separated. Plasma and platelets are injected into the patient. The remaining red cells in the other plastic bag are injected into the donor.

The entire procedure requires but one hour.

Mail Early and Send Cash to Servicemen

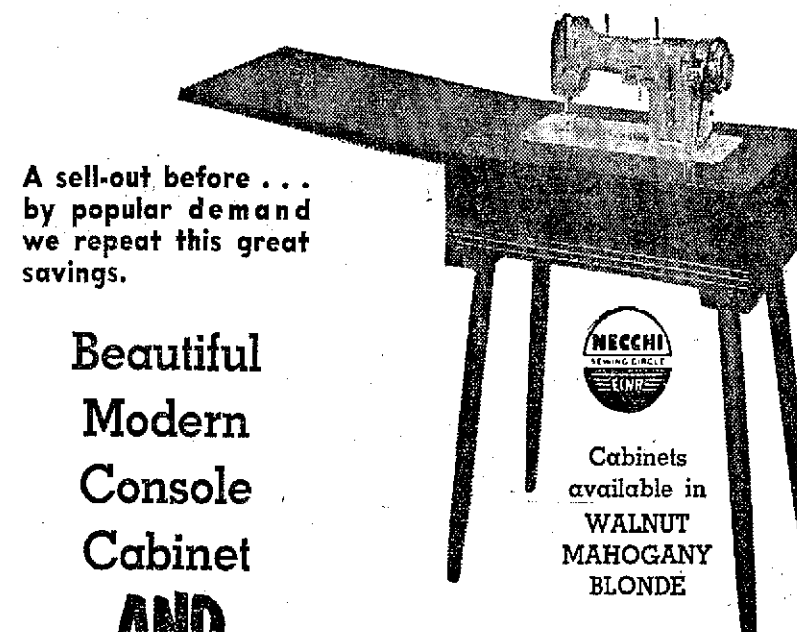

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Red Cross gave some advice Saturday on how to brighten the Christmas of American servicemen and women overseas.

Most of all, it said, they would like cash in the form of money orders. American currency is difficult to exchange and checks almost impossible to cash. With money orders the men and women can go to well-stocked post exchanges and buy about any gift they desire.

The GIs and gals also like homemade candy and cookies. But if you send these, the Red Cross said, be sure they're packed well in tins to avoid damage. And send them, as well as other parcels and letters, by airmail. Ships some times take 40 days to reach the remote posts where some of the service people are assigned.

In addition to cash and edibles, Americans overseas like family photographs and hometown newspapers, and Christmas or not, write often.

The Post Office and Defense Departments suggest that parcels going by ship be posted before Nov. 20; by Dec. 10 if going airmail.

A sell-out before . . . by popular demand we repeat this great savings.

Armadillo in Their Pot of Stew

PET BABY 'POSSUM' on his head is a fine substitute for city toys to 3-year-old Bobby Alderson, who lives on a riverbank in Texas.

THE YOUNG ALDERSON BROOD keeps "fat and sassy" in outdoor living, 20 miles from downtown Houston. The woods, river and wild life instruct the children of squatters in the ways of nature. Their diet of squirrels, 'possums, armadillos and catfish leaves them hearty.—(Associated Press Photos.)

SLIM ALDERSON'S FAMILY celebrated after catch of two catfish totaling 150 pounds. "Our needs are simple," he says, "and we don't owe nobody."

It's Place Where a Wife Can Yahoo

By BILL PORTERFIELD
Houston Chronicle Staff Writer

CROSBY, Tex. (AP)—The river bottom woman stood barefoot over the campfire, stirring a pot of armadillo and dumplings.

Down in the dark quiet thicket beyond the clearing, her children darted about on cat feet, chasing rabbits.

The woman stopped stirring and called her brood in for their mid-day meal. The children emerged from the woods and sat around the fire like little Indians. There were six of them, ranging in age from 2 to 7. Their bodies were brown and fat, and they ate heartily.

They were dressed for company—shirts and shorts made from store-bought cloth. Usually the little boys wear shorts made from scrap materials. Belts are made of innertube strips.

"My husband'll be late for dinner," the woman said. "He's down-river, fishing with my oldest boy."

The couple and their seven children live in two plywood shacks perched on the bank of the San Jacinto River, near this tiny town and a scant 20 miles from downtown Houston.

THE WOMAN SAID her man hunts and fishes to support the family.

"We don't make no money to speak of," she observed with a smile, "but we keep the kids fat and sassy." She cocked her head in a reflective pose. "Now I wouldn't live in the city with all that traffic and noise and expense."

"Down here on the river, I don't have to worry about cars hitting my kids. And it's quiet . . . so pretty and quiet. Another thing, we don't pay no kind of taxes."

She explained that they are "squattin'" on property belonging to somebody else. They don't mind, she said.

"Nobody bothers us. If I wanna let out a yahoo or do a little cussin', nobody cares because nobody hears."

THE HUSBAND EMERGED from the woods, a tall, loose-limbed man with a stubble of beard and sweat spots on his battered felt hat. He patted the hounds at his side and said his name was Slim. His full name is Robert Alderson. He is 43, his wife, Mabel, 33.

"In the summers I fish," he said, squatting on the ground and talking about his way of life. "I sell the fish to weekend fishermen who hate to go home without a minnow to show."

"In the fall, after the frost, I hunt with rifle, dogs and traps." He kills or captures raccoons, rabbits, armadillos, opossums and squirrels. What he doesn't sell he keeps for his family to eat.

"The old lady don't have to huy meat," he said proudly. "I always bring in something to skin. The kids really go after French fried rabbit or armadillo and dumplings."

"I figger I have to sell at least 50 pounds of catfish or buffalo fish a week to make a living during the summer. Often as not, I'll sell 100 pounds."

During the five winter months, he said, he has to bag at least 100 animals a week to keep his family going.

"I guess it all adds up to about $50 a week," he mused. "That doesn't sound like much for a man with seven kids, but our needs are simple and we don't owe nobody."

DID HE CONSIDER his life hard?

"A man has to do what he likes to do," he replied. "Me and Mabel are country bred. She was barefoot when I met her in the hills of Oklahoma. We like the quiet of the woods and the runnin' of the river."

"We go to bed listenin' to the night birds and we wake up in the mornin' hearin' the squirrels."

Slim's wife spoke up.

"You know, that fella who couldn't make it in the California wilderness for more than 12 weeks musta been a city dude. I could have showed him how to cook wild violet weeds, dandelion greens or snake dock."

Her man shook his head in agreement. "She sure could've," he said. "That woman can cook, that's for sure."

All the family's meals are cooked over an open campfire. Their concessions to civilizations are few. They use kerosene lamps at night and are thinking about entering the 7-year-old boy in school. But that's for the future. Right now the boy is learning to fish and trap in the manner of his father.

"I gotta go help the boy with the trot lines," Slim explained, walking away. He referred to a 17-year-old youth, the woman's son by a previous marriage. The youth dropped out of school at an early age to take up the family's simple life in the woods.

Six Boys Die After Crash Into Bridge

SPRING VALLEY, Wis. (UPI)—A one-car accident which took the lives of five teen-age boys Friday claimed its sixth victim Saturday.

Lynn Gelo, 17, died after spending hours in critical condition with a dislocated hip, internal injuries and cuts and bruises.

Police said they were unable to determine the cause of the accident, which sent the carload of boys smashing into a steel bridge on a straight stretch of highway, without leaving any skid marks.

The youths were returning from a football game between two local high school teams Friday night when the crash occurred.

The other youths killed in the accident were Lawrence Guise, 17; Thomas Reis, 18; Dennis Wollan, 18; Charles Dobkins, 17, and Dennis Rhy, 17. All were from River Falls.

Police said the car was so badly damaged it was difficult to determine the make.

20 Years Since Battle of Britain Stymied Hitler

LONDON (AP)—Hundreds of fighter planes streaked across Britain's sunny skies Saturday to observe the 20th anniversary of the Battle of Britain—the finest achievement of the Royal Air Force.

Military airfields kept open house and thousands of persons in many counties watched modern jets zip along faster than the speed of sound.

Among the planes were a few oldtimers, which by comparison seemed slow as clumsy pigeons. Pulled out for the show, they were the famous Spitfires and Hurricanes that defeated the German Air Force in the crucial battle which climaxed in September 1940.

This was the performance Winston Churchill hailed as the nation's finest hour. The biggest of the air shows was at Biggin Hill, the air field in South England around which the battle turned.

New Law Hits Massage Rooms

PENANG, Malaya (AP)—Under proposed new hotel laws, massage parlors will have to keep out prostitutes, see that room doors stay locked and allow inspection by health officers. And customers will have to register by name and address, giving arrival and departure times.

New Troops to Congo

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—Malaya's 700-strong contingent for the U.N. special force in the Congo will leave in two U.S. Navy landing ships Sept. 30, the government announced Saturday.

NEED ANY ADVICE?

Pretty Jo Ann Johnson, 19, phone company service order clerk who won title of Miss Interior Designer, is all set to give advice on interior decorating, whether it be office or home. Other decorators will be available, too, in most Long Beach stores to answer questions during National Interior Design Month which gets under way today.

DEBATED FOR A CENTURY

Is Kindergarten Merely Form of Baby-Sitting?

By LOUIS CASSELS
By United Press International

Is kindergarten a valuable educational experience for five year olds — or a costly baby-sitting service?

Americans have been debating that question for more than a century. The kindergarten was imported from Germany. Its name comes from a German phrase meaning "children's garden."

The first kindergarten in the United States was a private institution established at Watertown, Wis., in 1856. In 1873, St. Louis, Mo., became the first community to include kindergarten classes in its public school program.

Today, according to a recently-completed survey by the U. S. office of education, about 70 per cent of America's cities and towns maintain public kindergartens.

This statistic has been received rather gloomily by both sides of the great kindergarten debate.

EDUCATORS who think highly of kindergarten as a developmental experience for all children are discouraged to see that nearly a third of the nation's communities are still withholding public financial support.

Critics of kindergarten, on the other hand, say it is a shame to see so many communities expending tax funds on "play schools" at a time when regular public schools are suffering from shortages of teachers and classrooms.

Sooner or later, the argument comes around to the question whether kindergarten serves a genuine educational purpose, in terms of preparing children for success in the first grade, or, whether its main function is to relieve harassed mothers of the care of highly active five year olds for a few hours each day.

ONE REASON why the debate continues after a full century is that educational research has never yielded a clear-cut answer to this question. Some scientific studies indicate that children who have attended kindergarten display lasting benefits, in behavior and academic achievement. Others indicate that kindergarten has no measurable impact on subsequent school records.

Many teachers report that kindergarten graduates show up favorably during the early months of the first grade. But their apparent advantage tends to diminish or disappear as the year progresses.

The National Education Assn. (NEA), which is strongly pro-kindergarten, contends in a newly-issued pamphlet that kindergarten has a place in the public school program regardless of any specific, measurable educational benefits it may confer.

"All child development studies make it completely clear that kindergarten is good for five year olds," said the NEA.

IT SAID children who attend kindergarten enjoy the companionship of other five year olds, supervised play activities, and intellectual challenges that stimulate their "tremendous curiosity" and whet their desire for learning.

Even if kindergarten achieved nothing more than to give a child "a good fifth year" in life, the NEA said, it would be a worthwhile institution, and its benefits should not be restricted to children whose parents can pay tuition at a private school.

Red Jet Swarms Harass Allies' Berlin Airliners

BERLIN (UPI)—Soviet jet fighters, ignoring one near-collision Friday in the Frankfurt-Berlin corridor, said that if the flights continue, "it will not be a happy situation." He said, "Their flights have increased and it puts you on edge."

The jets, in tactics reminiscent of Communist attempts at thwarting the Allied airlift during the 1948-49 Berlin blockade, menaced the West's flights.

The Red jet flights, which have increased in the past few days in the 20-mile-wide corridors, caused pilots to be on their mettle for fear of colliding with the Communist fighters.

THE HARRASSING coincided with charges by the Soviet Union that the West was "misusing" the corridors to fly "militarists" into the city. The Allies feared the charge might be setting the stage for deliberate Red interference with the airlanes.

Cecil Drake, first officer of the British Overseas Airways Corporation twin-engine Viking plane which narrowly escaped a mid-air collision Friday in the Frankfurt-Berlin corridor, said that if the flights continue, "it will not be a happy situation." He said, "Their flights have increased and it puts you on edge."

He said the Soviet fighter shot across the front of his plane and made a U-turn around it.

Tourists Made Olympic Visitors

ROME (AP)—A tourist agency on the Via Veneto, the Broadway of Rome, did a flourishing business with a gimmick during the recent Olympic games. For 80 cents, a tourist could write his name in a leather-covered book and get a certificate saying he was in Rome during the games and is registered in the book of Olympic visitors.

Spaak to Visit Italy

IN ANOTHER incident, eight East German refugees sped past a Communist border checkpoint here Saturday to gain asylum. They said they had fled in a truck from the Soviet-zone city of Ullrich on the Polish border 115 miles southeast of here, but were not fired upon by Communist border guards when the truck went through the checkpoint.

The adults in the party, which included three children, said they had resisted increasing Communist pressure to work on farms in their spare time to help bring in the harvest. They said they would not have been paid for the work and were denounced as pro-Western for refusing to work on the farms.

Dad Crawls Down 1,000-Ft. Cliff to Find Hurt Son Dead on Beach

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — The ocean cliff was steep. Fog deepened the darkness and made descent even more treacherous.

But Howard L. Steele, 62, of Oakland, just had to do it. Somewhere down there was his son, Howard R., 18.

The youth had tumbled 100 feet over a ledge at Point Reyes Friday while on a skin-diving trip. The fall fractured his skull. A companion, Clifford W. Hamilton, 18, dragged him to the beach then went for help.

Because of the darkness, searchers thought it best to wait until daylight.

"But what if he should by some chance be alive?" asked the fallen youth's mother.

The father enlisted the help of friends, tied ropes and started the descent. It took two hours for the 1,000 foot descent.

Flashlights shown eerily in the fog.

On the beach below, the sea lions were making so much noise we couldn't hear each other," said a sheriff's deputy, Bill Christensen.

"Mrs. Steele would have climbed with us. We had to talk her out of it."

The descent began at 3 a.m. and lasted until 5.

But it went for naught. When father reached son, the son was dead.

Betts Warns Against Taxing Bond Income

State Treasurer Bert A. Betts warned here Saturday night that Californians should maintain a "fiscal vigilance" against federal legislation which would eliminate the tax-exempt feature of state bonds.

"California's stake in this matter is greater than any other state's," Betts said, "because California sells more bonds than any other state. We're second only to the United States government."

Because bond buyers can enjoy interest earnings from state bonds without income-tax payments, he explained, the state is able to borrow the money it needs at lower interest rates. If this exemption were eliminated, California's costs for borrowing money would increase by one-half to 1 per cent. "This would amount to staggering sums on the basis of the $400 million in bonds we sell each year."

Betts, a daylong guest of El Dorado Democratic Club at a Lafayette Hotel cocktail party and at dinner in Hody's Lakewood, made a political pitch for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket, but gave most of his attention to state finances.

He noted that the state had a balanced budget on June 30, 1959, and enjoyed a surplus on June 30, 1960.

Betts explained that this amounts to another area of state saving by means of a

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Cubans Retaliate: Restrict Bonsal

HAVANA (UPI) Cuba Saturday imposed severe travel restrictions on U.S. Ambassador Philip Bonsal and announced it had arrested or expelled seven North Americans — two of them U.S. Embassy employees on charges of wire-tap spying on the Chinese Communist New China News Agency.

Foreign Minister Raul Roa said Bonsal would be restricted to a small area around the embassy as long as Premier Fidel Castro is in New York for the United Nations General Assembly. He said it was in retaliation for the U.S. action in restricting Castro to Manhattan Island.

Events of the past two days gave the controlled Cuban press more screaming headlines—the Bonsal confinement, arrest of the North American "spies," the armed militia occupation and seizure of three U.S. banks and the seizure Friday of the Cuban tobacco industry.

It was clear U.S.-Cuban relations had reached their lowest point since Castro came to power.

Dominican Republic Coup Foiled

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The military intelligence service said Saturday it had smashed a plot aimed at overthrowing the Dominican government.

The announcement claimed a man arrested as a plotter had implicated the former U.S. Embassy cultural attache here.

It said 12 youths living in Ciudad Trujillo were involved in the move and that one of them had named as the group's "inspirer and intellectual guide" William Pugh, the American attache.

Dominican authorities said Pugh "hurriedly left" the Dominican Republic Sept. 7.

Ike Rules Panama Can Fly Flag

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower ruled Saturday that the Panamanian flag shall be flown in the Panama Canal Zone to symbolize the Central American republic's titular sovereignty over the area.

His decision was aimed at settling a thorny controversy that generated friction not only between the United States and Panama but also between members of Congress and administration officials.

Chinese Accuse U.S. on Flights

TOKYO (UPI)—Red China accused the United States Saturday of making 52 flights deep into China to parachute Chinese Nationalist spies and equipment.

The New China (Communist) News Agency said the accusation came in a note from Premier Chou En-lai in answer to an Aug. 22 protest from India which accused the Communists of making the flights.

Chou said the planes had been taking off from Bangkok during the past year and had flown into Chinese and Indian air space.

Trainer Killed, Actor Hurt

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Harry Guardino, New York stage and screen actor, was injured seriously Saturday in an auto accident in which Hollywood horse trainer Arthur Reese was killed.

The accident occurred in a rainstorm while the Americans were returning from a location near Aranjuez, 29 miles southeast of Madrid, for Samuel Bronston's production "King of Kings."

Doctors described Guardino's injuries as a possible broken collarbone, injured ribs and lacerations.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Scientists Skoal Vodka

(Prepared in collaboration with the Medical Education Department, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.)

By BEN ZINSER AND GEORGE X. TRIMBLE, M. D.

The popular belief that vodka causes less hangover than whisky has been upheld by a New York research project reported in the Journal of the National Medical Association.

Dr. Frederic Damrau studied the effects of various alcoholic beverages on 68 subjects—persons who either were non-drinkers or moderate social drinkers. Each subject at different times drank two ounces of whisky and vodka.

Mild hangovers were found to be common after consumption of two ounces of whisky. Principal symptoms: halitosis (in 27 per cent of the volunteers), stomach irritation (25 per cent), headache (9 per cent), dizziness 7 per cent and fatigue (6 per cent). These symptoms persisted through the following day.

But these hangover symptoms did not appear when the same amount of vodka was consumed, Dr. Damrau reports.

Cause of hangover: substances called congeners—ingredients identified as fusel oil, esters, acetaldehyde, furfural and tannins. They act by slowing the rate of oxidation of alcohol, producing prolonged after-effects.

These congeners are virtually absent from vodka.

A NEW APPROACH to weight reduction may result from a chance finding by a researcher. The new method: interference with food absorption in the digestive tract.

Heretofore, weight reduction usually has been achieved by cutting food intake or using drugs to curb appetite, or both.

The researcher, J. A. Nissim, reports in Nature he has found a chemical substance that hampers food absorption. A healthy man who took it, he says, lost 20 pounds.

The compound is trimethylhexadecyl ammonium stearate. It's a constituent of a well-known bacteria-killing substance called cetrimide.

While Nissim was studying the antiseptic qualities of the ingredient, he found it caused a drastic loss in weight in rats. When the drug was stopped and the animals had access to unlimited amounts of food, the rats gained weight again.

Studies now are being conducted to see if the drug diminishes food absorption without interfering with absorption of vitamins and other essential food substances.

ARTHRITIS THAT AFFECTS only one or two joints of the body can often be improved with a new form of the cortisone-like drug Kenalog.

The new form is injected into the joints. Originally, Kenalog was available only for local application in the form of cream, lotion or ointment.

Dr. Emil D. W. Hauser, Chicago, reports in the AMA Journal that injectable Kenalog produced "good to excellent" improvement in 66 of 67 patients. Results were superior to those from the widely used drug hydrocortisone.

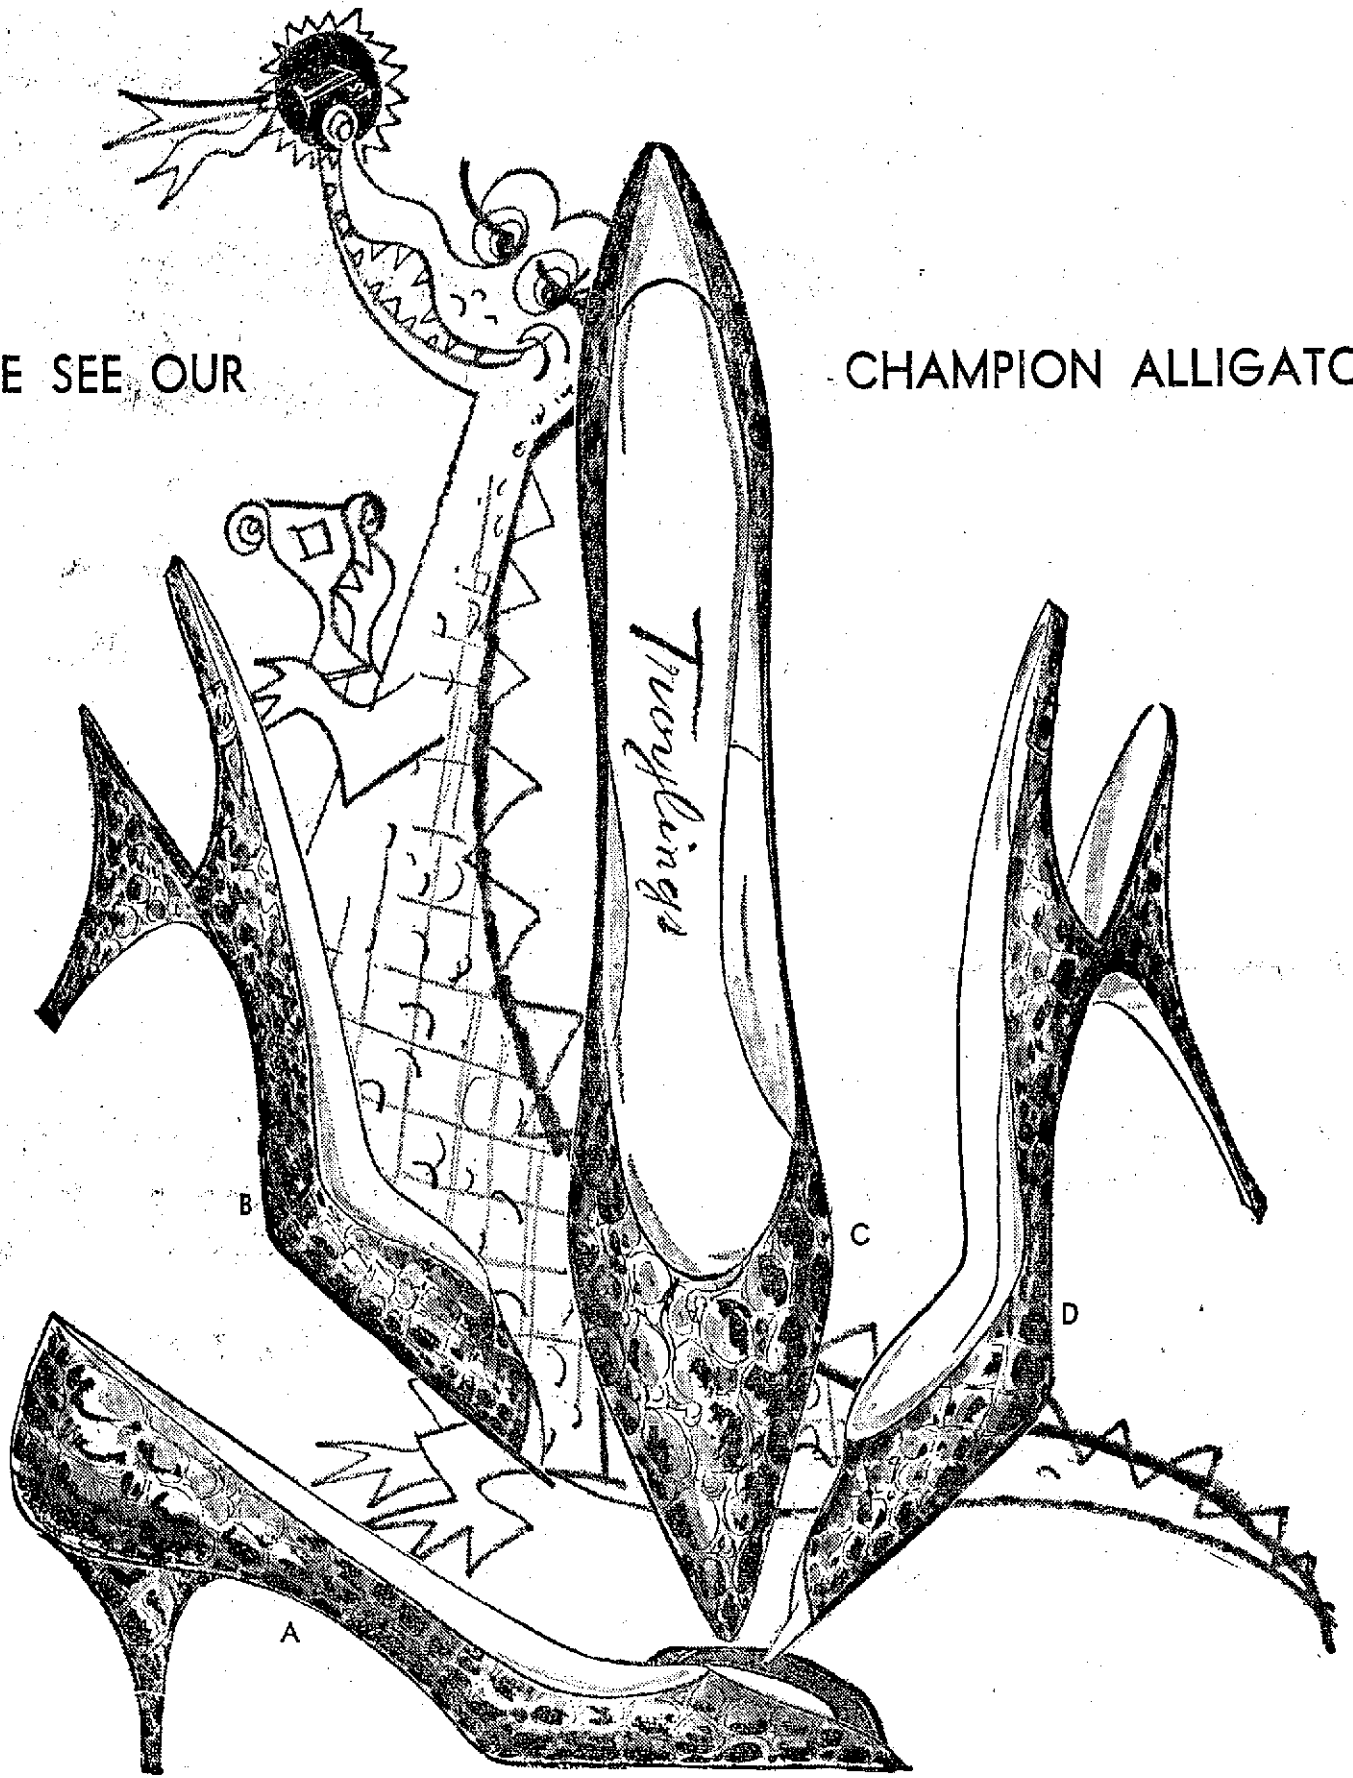

Among Kenalog's benefits: subsidence of swelling; increase in joint mobility; and sharp reduction in stiffness, tenderness and pain.

HEAVY CIGARETTE SMOKERS appear to have less masculine build than nonsmokers, according to a study of 252 Harvard alumni. The study, reported in the journal Science, shows that even the moderate smoker is more likely to have a less masculine build than the non-smoker.

GUADALAJARA, MEXICO, researchers say heart-lung machines are proving helpful in the treatment of shock. The device supplies the heart and brain with sufficient blood during the blood-circulation depression which results from the shock process.

GOP Jrs. Book Candidates' Brunch Wednesday

By BOB HOUSER

GOP Jrs. will present the high-light meeting of their political season Wednesday at 10 a. m. in Restaurant Alfred with appearances by County GOP Chairman Pat Hillings and local-area candidates Craig Hosmer, 18th District congressman, William S. (Bill) Grant, 70th District assemblyman, and Herbert Klockslem, 44th District Assembly nominee.

Hillings served eight years in the House of Representatives, entering the U.S. Congress as its youngest member at 27. He retired in 1958 after an unsuccessful race for the California attorney generalship. Since then he has practiced law and served as a radio news commentator.

Hosmer, seeking his fifth term, will be honored by the group for, among other things, his receipt of the Civic Affairs Associates certificate of merit for demonstrating by his voting record that he "is an advocate of economy in government, limited government, free enterprise, economic growth and stability and equality under the law."

Grant, seeking his seventh Assembly term, will talk on his work in the fields of education, public health and recreation.

Klockslem will outline his platform, with special emphasis on his views about taxation, narcotics, loyalty oaths and excessive bureaucracy.

Mrs. Charles Chandler, president, will announce the Jrs. contribution to the United Republican Finance Fund, the largest donation in the local club's seven-year history.

The Jrs. also have announced their members who have been selected to attend the Sept. 29 $100-a-plate dinner for vice presidential nominee Henry Cabot Lodge. Chosen "because of their activity and interest in furthering the Republican cause" are Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. Robert Irvin, Mrs. William Davis, Mrs. C. Waldron Simmons, Mrs. Richard Ludlow, Mrs. Harold Horrocks, Mrs. Charles Goodrich and Mrs. Lewis Hindley Jr.

Billed as a Candidates' Brunch, the event will be dramatized in decorations featuring large pictures of Vice President Nixon and the local nominees, construction board and felt elephants and a large mobile of Republican promotions. The decorations committee: Mrs. Richard Birkshaw, chairman, and Mmes. Ludlow, Don Fowler and Carl Malkus.

GOP Jrs. board voted to extend an invitation to husbands of members because of the program's "equal interest and importance to men."

HOSMER EVENTS

Congressman Hosmer will address the North Long Beach Republican Women Federated at 1 p. m. Monday in Houghton Park Clubhouse following a noon luncheon. Special guests will be Assemblyman Grant and Assembly nominee Klockslem.

Mrs. George Skeith will preside at the business meeting.

A coffee hour for Hosmer will be held from 2:15 to 3:30 p. m. Tuesday at the residence of Mrs. M. B. Cunningham, 233 Nieto Ave.

PAT HILLINGS

BROWN WILL ATTEND RALLY

Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown has advised sponsors of the Oct. 1 Democratic Dance and Rally in the Municipal Auditorium that he will attend.

The 18th District Democratic Council and Long Beach Young Democrats, cosponsors, announced that more than 6,500 tickets have been sold for the party-fund-raising event. Numerous state party officeholders and several entertainment world celebrities will be present.

ROCKY ON TAPE

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's Friday morning speech in Long Beach will be broadcast at 5:30 p. m. today over KFOX (1280).

Rockefeller's appearance in the Lafayette Hotel Grand Ballroom was sponsored by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Y. D.s and Y.D.s

Young Democrats of Long Beach president Douglas Polly announced "there is absolutely no connection" between his club and one named Beach Young Democrats which recently announced its support of Congressional nominee D. Patrick Ahern.

Polly said the Long Beach club got no response from Ahern after repeated invitations to speak and withheld any endorsement for him because of his ignoring the group and not making his platform clear to it.

AHERN CHARGES—HOSMER 'RUNOUT'

Democratic congressional nominee D. Patrick Ahern chided his opponent, the Republican incumbent Craig Hosmer, for "turning tail and running" from all six meeting-candidate dates offered by the Long Beach Council of Churches' Committee on Christian Citizenship.

Ahern said he accepted all six dates in the committee's invitation for personal appearances—Oct. 18, 20, 27 and Nov. 1, 2 and 3—but that Hosmer advised the committee he could accept none because of his crowded calendar of commitments.

Ahern said the invitation was extended to candidates Aug. 26, asking that the candidates advise the committee by Sept. 15 as to what dates were acceptable.

"One more under the newspaper umbrella of protection," Ahern declared, "our local thin-skinned congressman is afraid of the sunburn of public scrutiny and appearance even though his billboards bravely scream, 'Compare and See.'

"One would surmise, with that slogan, that he would face any opposition, but it seems our about-to-be-defeated incumbent has now turned tail and run from even the Christians of our city who only wanted to present the candidates in order that the voters might become better acquainted.

"Is it because he has no record of moral achievement in his public life? Is it because my City Council record of always trying to support our local authorities has been so successful that he is afraid to let the voters 'compare and see'?"

AHERN PARTY

Mrs. Lelah Johns and Mrs. Jewel Boynton announced a luncheon and card party to raise funds for the Ahern campaign will be held Monday-noon in Mottell's Garden Room.

The cochairmen said the public is invited to the event at 75 cents per person. They said Ahern will speak.

GRANT ANSWERS KNUDSON ATTACK

Assemblyman William S. (Bill) Grant Saturday challenged his opponent for the 70th District Assembly seat, Democrat Mrs. Ora G. Knudson to "come forward and tell the voters her platform and stand on the campaign issues and refrain from attacking the character of the 'nice old gentleman'."

Grant charged his opponent with being "humorous but naive" in accusing him of delaying action on Long Beach's legislative problems.

"This is the first campaign I have ever been associated with in which I have been attacked upon my belief and observance of such institutions as St. Nicholas, the Easter Bunny, motherhood and Patrick Henry as criteria to whether I am acceptable to the voters of the area.

"It seems to me that a better measure of the qualifications of a candidate is his experience, activity in the community and dedication to the betterment of all the residents of the area regardless of their party affiliation.

"I have been asked by my opponent to comment upon the major issues of the campaign and yet she has still to mention what, in her opinion, these issues are. Many comments have been made concerning problems of the past that are now adequately solved, but no reference has been made to the important problems of the future.

"I am proud of my record as an assemblyman over the past years and, as in the past, I will continue to campaign on that record both as a citizen of the Long Beach-Lakeview area and as an experienced assemblyman. I am hopeful that my opponent sees fit to tell of her experience and service to the area so the voters may make a fair comparison on Nov. 8."

12 Checks on Airport Cafe Taken

Wilfred F. Rasch, 42, owner of the Clouds Restaurant, at Municipal Airport, reported to police Saturday that he thought a former employee had stolen 12 company checks and cashed three of them for a total of $278.20.

Rasch said he noticed the checks were missing and then learned from three E. Pacific Coast Highway markets that his name had been forged on the checks and that they had been cashed.

Rasch said he believed the employee had used a passkey to get into the restaurant office and then had used the company checkwriter to write the checks.

One of the cashed checks was for $84.20. The others were for $92 each.

Redondo Beach Navy Man Fails in Escape Try

A Redondo Beach Navy man was one of two prisoners of a work gang who were recaptured Saturday on the island of Guam.

The pair, Marion P. Pearson, 19, who lists his home as Redondo Beach but without a permanent address, and Gregory L. Williams, 18, had been in custody for stowing away aboard a commercial airliner Aug. 27.

The two boarded the plane in Hawaii, where they were stationed, believing it was bound for the United States. A stewardess discovered their presence on the Manila-bound airliner shortly after it left Guam.

Suitcase Stolen

Navy man Gerald F. Larocque reported to police that someone stole a suitcase and its contents valued at $300, from a Long Beach Naval Station barracks sometime between 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

New 'Town Hall' Slated to Study City Problems

By JIM McCAULEY

Members of 21 organizations in the Long Beach area have been invited to a new Community Forum on top problems and issues here.

This unprecedented weekly "town hall meeting" is the first time the entire membership of so many organizations here has been summoned together for a series of meetings, according to the Chamber of Commerce, sponsor.

THE FIRST Community Forum is a chuckwagon breakfast at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday at the Crown Cafeteria. Subsequent community-wide forums will be held at the same time and place.

"Toasting Marshmallows While the Community Burns" will be discussed at the first Community Forum by William J. Bird, western vice president of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Bird previously was executive vice president of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce and was manager of external affairs for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The Community Forum replaces the chamber's Breakfast Forum, a weekly chamber program that had been limited mostly to chamber members here.

FOR THE NEW FORUM, invitations also went out to members of the Lakewood Chamber of Commerce, the Long Beach Red Cross, United Neighbors Community Chest, Signal Hill Chamber of Commerce, Naples Improvement Assn., Los Altos Assn., Business Bureau, Independent North Long Beach Commercial Club, Belmont Shore Business Assn., Downtown Long Beach Association, Junior Chamber of Commerce, All States Society, Civic League of Long Beach, Real Estate Board, Apartment House Assn., Long Beach Hotel-Motel Assn., Long Beach Safety Council, Better the chamber said.

Three Librarians Hired to Fill Staff Vacancies

Three librarians have been added to the Public Library staff replacing personnel who have left, Blanche Collins, librarian, announced Saturday.

Harvy Hammond has been named to a general librarian post in the literature and history department in the main building, Lincoln Park. Rosalie O. Freij has been appointed children's librarian at Burnett branch. Mrs. Judith Eubank has been assigned as part-time general librarian at Bach branch.

The Office Looted of Cigars and $57

A burglar went to the office early Saturday morning and picked up $9 worth of cigars and $57 worth of change, police reported.

The Office is a beer bar at 1478 Santa Fe Ave.

Lodge Helps Nixon's Bid in California

By MELVIN D. FIELD
Director, The California Poll

On the campaign trail in California, GOP presidential candidate Richard Nixon can expect Henry Cabot Lodge to be a greater asset as a running-mate than Lyndon Johnson will be for Democratic hopeful John Kennedy.

More than two-thirds of Californians who plan to vote for the Nixon-Lodge team in November say that the choice of Lodge for second spot strengthened their desire to support the Republican ticket. By comparison, only a little over one-third of those who plan to vote for the Kennedy-Johnson slate indicate that Johnson's selection as the Democrats' number two man strengthened their support for the ticket. While neither vice presidential candidate seems to have weakened his ticket seriously, Johnson appears to have the more negative effect of the two.

THESE ARE THE findings of The California Poll's most recent statewide measure of opinion among a representative sample of California's eligible voters. Persons who said they would vote for the Nixon-Lodge ticket if the election were held today (or said they were "leaning" in that direction) were asked this question:

"How do you feel about the choice of Lodge as the vice presidential running mate for Nixon? Would you say that choosing Lodge has strengthened or weakened your desire to support the Republican ticket?"

REPUBLICAN
CHOICE OF LODGE—SUPPORTERS
Strengthened desire to support GOP 48%
Weakened desire 3%
Made no difference 49%
No opinion 0%

The California Poll's staff of trained reporters also asked this question of people who said they would vote the Kennedy-Johnson ticket if the election were being held today (or said they were "leaning" toward that ticket):

"How do you feel about the choice of Johnson as the vice presidential running mate for Kennedy? Would you say that choosing Johnson has strengthened or weakened your desire to support the Democratic ticket?"

DEMOCRATIC
CHOICE OF JOHNSON—SUPPORTERS
Strengthened desire to support Demo 35%
Weakened desire 14%
Made no difference 49%
No opinion 0%

Over one-third (34%) of those who say Lodge's candidacy strengthens their support for the Republican ticket give as the major reason his experience in foreign affairs, and 22% specifically mention Lodge's experience as the U.S. representative to the United Nations. Those who consider him as asset to the ticket also often say that he is intelligent and capable (23%), has strength and integrity (10%), and can handle the Russians (9%). Other points cited in Lodge's favor are his maturity (4%), good reputation (4%), and experience as a U. S. Senator (2%).

MORE THAN one-fourth of those who see Johnson as an added reason for supporting the Democratic ticket (26%) say that he strengthens the ticket particularly in the South. Johnson is also thought to be well-qualified (18%), competent and experienced (17%), and a "good man" (17%).

The rather large group who say that Johnson weakens their desire to support the Democratic ticket gave as the main reason their preference for someone else as Kennedy's running mate (41%). Johnson is considered "too conservative, not liberal enough" by 23% of those who say he weakens the ticket for them, and 13% say they "don't like a Southern Democrat."

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1960

Big Span to Terminal Island Tabbed for $16 Million Cost

THE calendar says that before the week is over, it will be autumn. That doesn't mean a thing. It's still September, and September always has a potential for the most un-autumnish weather. And don't be too sure about October.

But let's be thankful for little things. We're sleeping under blankets again, for instance. There were a couple of nights in last week's hot spell that Long Beach's great boast — the cool night, no matter how hot the day — went by the board. Blankets were rolled to the bottom of 250,000 Long Beach beds. (Challenge the statistic if you will. With the twin bed still popular, I figure 325,000 people occupy about 250,000 beds.)

That blanket-rolling shook me more than the heat of the days. As a loyal resident, I've always tempered my criticism of September with the remark that after all, the nights are cool—you always sleep under blankets here. Now, it'll have to be "nearly always" or some such qualification. Too bad.

LAST Friday's dawn hours were comfortably cool — the condition that makes it pleasant to stay in bed — when an amazing 1200 citizens of the area got up, put on their best, and hustled down town to hear Nelson Rockefeller. Some were on hand as early as 4:30 a.m.

It was the turnout that made this event impressive. Some Junior Chamber of Commerce advisors had suggested the breakfast be held in the Red Velvet Room of the Lafayette, which would be jammed with 300. As it turned out, the crowd filled the Grand Ballroom to overflowing. Some 700 were turned away.

On my way out I met Dick Bergholz, a political journalist from L.A. "What did this?" he asked. "Nixon?"

"Nope," I answered, "Rockefeller."

Certainly Rocky put a little more water on the Nixon wheel, but I think most of the people were attracted by the personality and reputation of the N. Y. governor, himself, rather than the prospects of hearing a political campaign speech.

The speech, by the way, was pleasingly low-pressure. It showed you don't have to resort to arm-waving bombast to be effective.

EVERYBODY is pleased that Dick Nixon and Jack Kennedy have the courage to appear together in a series of television debates. One of the more promising aspects of this upcoming double performance is that it will virtually force rabid partisans to listen to the "other candidate." I suppose it will be possible to plug one's ears or operate a "blab-off" switch when one or the other is speaking, but that would keep a listener pretty busy.

Political candidates often complain that they're always talking to the people who agree with them and are already for them—the others stay away in droves as if fearful of being shaken in old convictions.

It would be wonderful if a couple of political realists like Kennedy and Nixon would stage a magnificent trick by secretly exchanging places, each making a speech-making appearance before a group collected to hear the other.

It won't happen, of course. The TV talks will be as close to a two-sided listening promotion as can be expected in the campaign.

DRIFTWOOD—Elks should object to so much emphasis on their 190-foot bar in the new Willow St. dream home. The finest feature of the $2 million layout is the lodge room in the dome. . . . In 1904, L.B. Elks held their first meetings in an upstairs room at Ocean and Pine (where Heartwell Bldg. now stands) paying $8 per month rent.

Wheels were set in motion last week toward ultimate construction of a high-lift bridge—to cost an estimated $16,000,000—over the Long Beach Harbor entrance channel connecting the mainland with Terminal Island.

Urged by the City Council and downtown business groups, harbor officials have asked the State Highway Department to study whether such a bridge should be constructed by the state as part of an authorized link between the Harbor and Long Beach Freeways.

If the state builds the structure, which would replace the present outmoded pontoon bridge over the channel, it would become part of the state freeway system and would form a vital part in the connection between the two freeways authorized by the Legislature.

A $20,000,000 BRIDGE will be started later this month at the southerly terminus of the Harbor Freeway, to join San Pedro and Terminal Island. However, state officials have not indicated where the freeways will join.

There are two possibilities. Freeway traffic eastbound from the planned San Pedro bridge could be routed to the Terminal Island Freeway, which could be extended northeast from its present Willow St. terminus to connect with the Long Beach Freeway.

Or the connection could be made directly across Terminal

Island, over the entrance channel to the Long Beach Freeway at a point just north of the Ocean Blvd. bridge.

IN THE FIRST INSTANCE, money from the project probably would be provided entirely by the city, from its harbor tidelands funds. If the proposed bridge would be used as part of the connecting link, the state would pay at least a large share of the cost from gas tax funds allocated for highway construction.

There are several factors, however, which may delay the bridge a few more years, according to Chief Harbor Engineer Bob Hoffmaster.

First, subsidence near the entrance channel, although greatly slowed by water injection, still amounts to about 7 foot per year. This might give state engineers cause to pause before planning such an expensive structure in the area.

Second, the city won't have sufficient uncommitted tidelands funds to build the bridge for about another five years.

HARBOR ENGINEERS have studied other means of providing access to Terminal Island to replace the pontoon bridge bottleneck. They have appeared impractical.

One possibility considered was moving the Commodore Heim Bridge, which now spans the Cerritos Channel as part of the Terminal Island Freeway, to the entrance channel site, replacing it with a causeway.

The cost of moving the structure and altering it to fit the new location, however, would be prohibitive.

Also, tunneling a roadway beneath the entrance channel would be far too expensive, engineers say.

I.O.O.F.'s Conclave Tonight

Delegates from at least 17 nations representing the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges are expected at the annual convention of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows which opens today in the Lafayette Hotel.

The official opening is scheduled for 8 p.m., following registration of delegates Saturday.

Keynoting the convention at its banquet Monday in the Lafayette will be Stanley F. Wakefield, president of the California Newspaper Publishers Assn.

WAKEFIELD'S TOPIC is "The Man Next Door."

The subject concerns the responsibility of ordinary persons in fighting communism.

Wakefield is a former district governor of the Lions Clubs in Central California and is president of the California County Planning Commissioners Association.

Legislators Call for Account of Tideland Trust

By GEORGE WEEKS

State legislators have called on Long Beach for another of the periodical face-to-face accountings of the city's tideland trust.

Assemblyman Bruce F. Allen of Los Gatos, chairman of the Assembly Interim Committee on Manufacturing, Oil and Mining Industry, has scheduled a hearing here Nov. 28 on the announced subject, "the beach improvement program of the City of Long Beach."

The lawmakers' main objects of scrutiny were described in a general way by John D. Spear, committee consultant.

He said they want to know what the beach proposal is, what Long Beach is doing now in connection with the program, where the money is coming from and, on the assumption that tideland oil funds are to be used, what potential benefits the program will have to the state.

IN ADDITION, Spear said, the committee expects to "devote a little time to the renewal of the Long Beach Oil Development Co. contract and the seawall question."

The addendum puzzled city officials because renewal of the LBOD contract for oil production in the harbor district is prohibited both by the city charter and state law.

LBOD could conceivably get a new contract when its present series of agreements expires in 1964, but not without competitive bidding against other contract seekers — unless the law is changed.

"I know of nothing pending and nothing suggested that would permit the renewal of the contract on a noncompetitive basis," said City Atty. Gerald Desmond.

"Everything that has been done in recent months is just to the opposite. The contract has been amended from time to time, in connection with the unitization agreements, on the assumption it will expire on the scheduled date."

THE ALAMITOS BAY seawall project, an old controversy, has been mostly dormant for 13 months. In August, 1959, the State Park Commission recommended that the state and the city continue their study of the project.

State agencies have made no known move in that direction. Less than two weeks ago the City Council recommended that an attempt be made to reactivate a study of erosion on the peninsula, closely related to the wall proposal. The question rests there.

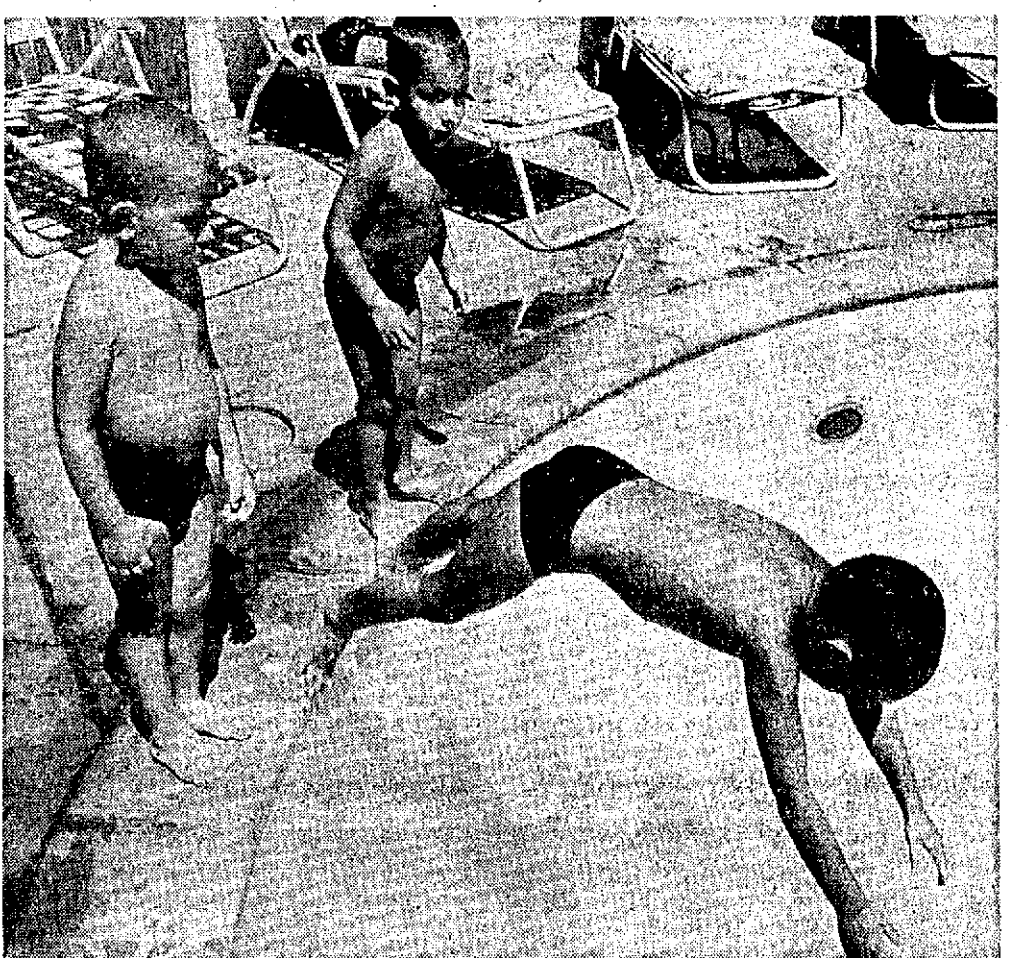

The beach improvement program presumably refers to the 42-million-dollar allotment from tideland funds approved by the voters at the June 7 election for shoreline development between Alamitos Ave. and the Los Angeles River.

So far the City Council has approved in principle a five-million-dollar expenditure for the first phase of the program and has directed the city attorney to seek authorization from the State Lands Commission.

THE FIRST PHASE is primarily a huge dredging and fill operation to provide new land for future improvements, including a Maritime Museum in the Rainbow Pier area.

In a departure from previous custom, the City Council has decided to control Long Beach's presentation at the committee hearing. Councilmen referred the legislative group's announcement to their own legislative committee under chairmanship of Councilman Emmet Sullivan. The only objector was Councilman Virgil Sponberg, who noted that the city attorney has directed such presentations at past hearings.

In recent years Assemblyman Allen's committee hearings on Long Beach tideland questions have been relatively amiable and fairly brief.

Water Babies

The pool at their motel at 1815 E. Artesia St. is the baby-sitter for Mr. and Mrs. Jim Grace. In the swim hours at a time are the three Grace sons—Jimmie, 5; Cory, 4, and Rickie, the 2-year-old.

Jimmie and Cory learned to swim when they were about a year old.

Rickie, his parents report, took to the water like a duckling when he was about 5 months old. All can dive and care not whether the depth is 3 feet or 10 feet.

These action views were taken by Staff Photographer Bob Shumway.

Rocky Answers Big Question

FOLLOWING THE REPUBLICAN National Convention, the big question raised by the political commentators was whether Gov. Nelson Rockefeller would cripple Vice President Richard Nixon's chances for the presidency by sitting out the campaign.

Rockefeller had—and has—a strong following among both Democrats and Republicans, especially of the liberal persuasion, many of whom have been listening for the answer.

Now the Governor has given it.

ROCKEFELLER'S ENDORSEMENT of the Nixon-Lodge ticket in his speech in Long Beach this week lacked nothing in warmth, sincerity, and enthusiasm. His remarks made it clear that whatever differences he may have with Vice President Nixon, they are minor compared with his differences with the ticket of the opposing party. Nixon and Lodge could not have asked for a better statement.

The Republican ticket, said Rockefeller, is best equipped to give the nation the "courage, vision, sensitivity, and perception" it will require in the future years of the cold war. No leader, he said, is more firmly committed to a strong national defense than Nixon.

VIEWS WHO WATCHED the GOP convention on television will recall the eloquent endorsement of the ticket given by the leader of the opposite extreme of the party—Sen. Barry Goldwater. This joining of a Rockefeller and a Goldwater enthusiastically in the same cause must be regarded as an act of political genius. Certainly it adds strength to Nixon's claim that, like President Eisenhower, he represents the great middle road.

SUCH COMPROMISES AS this and the joining of conservative Sen. Johnson with liberal Sen. Kennedy may strike some persons as hypocritical. (There is, we suppose, a certain amount of hypocrisy in every compromise.) But they are a factor of strength in this country's durable, workable two-party system, which has helped give American politics an unusual and enviable stability.

JOHN S. KNIGHT

U.N. Session Could Produce Biggest Story of Our Times

THE RACE FOR PRESIDENT is exceedingly close. Neither candidate seems to have a decided edge. So much depends upon factors which neither Mr. Nixon or Mr. Kennedy can control. We refer specifically to the forthcoming visit to the United Nations of Premier Khrushchev with his retinue of satellite functionaries.

Has Mr. K. another scientific or military surprise in store? Will he advance a new disarmament plan which sounds plausible to the uncommitted nations?

What is to be expected from Nasser of Egypt, Tito of Yugoslavia and Indonesia's Sukarno? How will the United Nations react to Fidel Castro's explosive denunciations of the United States?

Will the General Assembly back Dag Hammarskjöld, the able secretary-general of the United Nations, who has labored so diligently to bring peace and order to the Congo?

NEXT WEEK'S MEETING of the General Assembly could be the biggest news story of our time, dwarfing the hotly-fought Presidential campaign.

We venture no predictions on the shape of things to come other than the obvious conclusion that Khrushchev, Castro and Co. will stage quite an anti-U. S. propaganda production.

American resentment will rise in direct proportion to the violence of these attacks, and Nixon might well be the political beneficiary since it is remembered that the Vice President "stood up" to Mr. K. in the famed Moscow "kitchen debate."

On the other hand, Sen. Kennedy may be expected to capitalize on any further exposures of alleged "weaknesses" in American military and foreign policy.

In either event, the U. N. meeting is almost certain to have a powerful impact upon the political fortunes of our two candidates.

And neither one can turn a hand to prevent this history-making intrusion into a domestic political campaign.

THE OTHER FACTOR OVER which neither the Vice President nor Sen. Kennedy have any control is the religious question.

Mr. Kennedy sought to resolve this issue last April in a forthright speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors. And again in the West Virginia primary. And again last week when he told the Greater Houston Ministerial Association that he believes in an America where "separation of church and state is absolute."

Sen. Kennedy has opposed appointment of an American ambassador to the Vatican. He has voted in the Senate against aid to parochial schools. He has repeatedly stated that "I do not speak for the church on public matters—and the church does not speak for me."

In turn, Vice President Nixon has strongly defended Sen. Kennedy's position and sought to exclude the religious issue from the campaign.

But religious prejudice, it seems, is still very much with us.

American, Mexican History 'Inseparably Intertwined'

MEXICO CITY—This land of cathedrals and Coca-Cola signs, of burros and Buicks, slums and museums, high-hat diplomats and sombreroed cowboys, has been celebrating three great anniversaries. They have considerable significance for the United States; because American and Mexican history are as inseparably intertwined as the jungle growth which creeps over the Aztec ruins of one of the oldest civilizations in the world.

Mexico has been celebrating first its 150th anniversary of independence from Spain and from the Catholic Church.

Second, she celebrates her 100th anniversary of victory over the Emperor Maximilian, sent to the New World by Napoleon mountains and jungle, against hardship and evil—and sometimes against the "gringo of the North."

Also in the background loom Mount Popocatepetl and the mountains which have made Mexicans tough and poor, brought calluses to Mexican hands, and etched deep lines in Mexican faces.

But above all, in the background stands history—history which goes back to 1810 when two Catholic priests, Miguel Hidalgo and Jose Maria Morales, revolted against Spain and their own church.

THE CHURCH WAS ENORMOUSLY wealthy then. It was the banker of Mexico. It held title to most of the land, controlled the nation's economy. The Church and the Spanish government were as one.

The 1810 revolt started against both by the two Mexican priests, ended with both men put before the inquisition, both beheaded, their heads placed upon spikes for all to see. But the revolution they started finally brought independence.

Fifty years later, while the United States was torn by civil war, the crowned heads of Europe took advantage of our inability to enforce the Monroe Doctrine by sending the Archduke of Austria to Mexico where he established himself as emperor and prepared to spread his domain throughout the Americas.

THE SECOND ANNIVERSARY which Mexico has been celebrating has been the overthrow of Maximilian by Benito Juarez. Here again, American and Mexican history are intertwined. Abraham Lincoln, when a congressman, had introduced the "spot" resolution during the U. S.-Mexican War over Texas, demanding to know in what spots and when Mexico had committed aggression against the United States. Later Lincoln, as President, did his best to give aid to Juarez in his battle against Emperor Maximilian. Mexicans have read with interest of Lincoln's indignant refusal of the proposition made on behalf of the Confederate government by Alexander H. Stephens that the North and South end the Civil War and unite in taking Mexico.

The war against Maximilian raged for three years after our own war ended. To escape capture, Maximilian moved his capital right up to the Rio Grande River next door to El Paso, Tex. In 1867 he was captured and shot.

IT WAS IN 1910 THAT the third important stage of Mexican history began, when Francisco Madero overthrew one of the most ruthless dictators ever to rule a part of the Western Hemisphere, Porfirio Diaz. The sporadic wars that followed might be compared to the current convulsion racking Cuba, and explain why popular sentiment in Mexico is sympathetic to Cuba today.

As in Cuba, the Mexican upheaval acutely involved the United States. Woodrow Wilson undid what sympathy had been built up by Lincoln by sending first the U. S. fleet against Vera Cruz, later Gen. Pershing in an expedition across the border to pursue Pancho Villa.

"I intend to teach the South American republics to elect good men," said Wilson. It's this chapter of American-Mexican history that still rankles Mexicans, and is our biggest handicap when they are wooed by Fidel Castro.

Senate Asks Whether School Should Expel Non-Learners

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—One of the fundamental questions in the educational system is under consideration by the Senate fact-finding committee on that subject. The question, according to State Sen. Donald L. Grunsky, chairman, is whether or not non-achievers and reluctant learners should be expelled from the public schools.

Hearings on the subject are being held, according to Sen. Grunsky, and the conclusions of the committee after a stack of evidence is given may have some bearing on educational bills at the 1961 state legislature.

The committee asks, as to whether the present public school curriculum should be changed to provide for students who resist the conventional book education or whether the state should set up special schools to deal with the problem students.

"Because of the frustrating and degrading influence these students have under the present system, this is one of the most serious and challenging problems confronting our schools today," Sen. Grunsky declared.

"What we mean when we talk about non-achievers, are students with ability to learn, who fail in school because of their attitudes and resistance to academic learning, but would succeed and profit greatly from a practical education.

"We cannot pamper incorrigible students who degrade our entire education system. However, we are dealing with young people who are not always responsible for their attitudes and it is our responsibility to give them every opportunity to develop to their full potential, for their sake and for the good of society."

The school system itself has contributed more, possibly, to the situation in which there is a growing rate of non-achievers, than it actually knows.

THERE WAS A TIME in the educational system when the non-learner was looked upon as a loafer, rather than a problem child, as he is today. The loafer's reward was to remain in the same grade until he completed the work required in that particular grade. There was no excuse for loafing, particularly if the student was capable of learning or accomplishing what his teachers assigned him.

IN SPEAKING OF THE non-learner, it is well to keep in mind that this column is speaking of those who can learn, but who think perhaps it's smart to do poorly in their studies. They know that under the present educational system, they will be promoted regardless of their grades, and continue in the fellowship of their friends in the same class.

In years gone by this attitude brought forth some firm treatment for the non-learners, both at school and at home. Some of the parents involved went so far as to apply the strap, and usually the student who could learn managed to do his chores. But of course, the strap has gone out of style these days and the school psychologist has taken its place.

The youngster who can't keep up is of course, another story. If the Senate committee bends its efforts toward helping this type of youngster, it will accomplish much.

Maybe C. J. Fortner should go to Russia. It seems to me he thinks that is the land of gold. Has he forgotten how free he is here?

We are free to go to any church we want to, we are free to speak our piece without the police at our door.

Yes, there are a lot of people out of work. Maybe some are lazy or cannot find the job they like, or they like the unemployment check they get every week for doing nothing.

No matter the cost, I take this free country. So take your Khrushchev. I'll take our President any day.

Working People Backbone of Nation

EDITOR:

There is one big point in the letter signed by W. D. Graff in last Sunday's paper which he forgot to mention. In his discourse about big business and the working man, he indicated that big business signs the weekly paychecks. Very true, Mr. Graff, but where does Mr. Big Business get the money?

The working class people are the backbone of any nation. While the workers need brain-power to survive under this profit system of government, the workers are needed much more so, for without them there would be no profit.

It is my personal belief that the working class do not need the employing class in order to survive. I would be glad to have a situation where I could take care of my own food and shelter problems and would not therefore have to carry on my back any of the parasites who are so numerous today.

Open Door to Snake, He'll Bite You

EDITOR:

Mr. Eisenhower is right in not extending hospitality to an avowed enemy. If Khrushchev wants to be accepted in this country, he should learn some manners and try to act civilized even though he lives like a barbarian.

This nation and its resources are coveted by the apes who never became civilized enough to live in a peaceful world. They are still pushing, relentless, ruthless, and thirsty for the prosperity of people who worked for their possessions.

Ike was right in protecting this country any way he could against anyone who tried to destroy it. He certainly did everything in his power to preserve peace. His mistake was in being too liberal and permitting that barbarian to come here in the first place. Let a snake in the door and it will bite. Did anyone ever make friends with a snake without first removing its fangs?

Who does Nikita think he is that he should be allowed to go anywhere he wants to? He doesn't permit such freedom in his own country. He believes in taking over other people's possessions, not in sharing his own.

Tells Why He Opposes Kennedy

EDITOR:

I consider it an honor to be intolerant and highly prejudiced against Kennedy for these reasons:

First, his willingness to apologize to Khrushchev in the U2 incident forced me to lose all respect for him.

Second, he loudly denounces his opponent's policies without his offering any constructive suggestions to replace them.

Third, neither his personal appearance nor what he says qualifies him as substantial material for the presidency.

Fourth, he seems to be trying to use his own religious affiliation as a psychological weapon to force voters to support him. Therefore, anyone who opposes him is automatically a bigot. In my opinion, such an attitude as that makes him the worst bigot of all.

Will U.S. Get 'Equal Time' on Radio, TV to Answer Nikita?

WASHINGTON—Will the American people have "equal time" on the television and radio to reply to Nikita Khrushchev?

The Moscow radio is telling the world that the Soviet Premier has been "deluged" with invitations from television and broadcasting organizations in this country to speak next week while he is in New York City. Mr. Khrushchev's movements have been restricted to Manhattan by order of the U. S. Department of State, but there can be no restriction on the distance his voice may travel through the air to distribute his propaganda.

The principle of "equal time" has become a symbol of fair play in political debate in this country. In fact, Congress has by law provided that the candidates of the two major parties must be given equal time over the air. By analogy, it is equally important that in the middle of a political campaign some visitor from a foreign country, whose words are designed to influence the course of the presidential contest, shall not be permitted to make a presentation of his views without a rebuttal from an authoritative American source.

The broadcasting and television companies naturally do not like to give up time unnecessarily, and they usually like to fit rebuttal programs into schedules at their own convenience. But in a case as vital to the interest of the United States as an answer to the propaganda campaign carried on by Nikita Khrushchev, it is essential that the reply program be put on to the same audience and immediately after the Soviet propagandist has spoken.

It is quite possible that the broadcasting and television companies may deem it desirable to invite Vice President Nixon and Sen. Kennedy to make separate replies after the Soviet Premier has spoken. Certainly there would be a big audience for such a dramatic rejoinder provided it followed directly after Mr. Khrushchev's appearance on the air.

It isn't important that nominee may gain an advantage from the reply programs, as each speech will be judged on its merits. But it is necessary that the American people be told instantly of the deceptions and false statements the Soviet Premier is bound to make, judging by the line he has taken in the past and his utter disregard of factual data in discussing international affairs.

IT ISN'T enough to arrange for unofficial persons to comment on the Soviet Premier's talks. There are large segments of the American people which will wish to get the United States government's own point of view. Indeed, it would be a ten-strike if the U. S. Secretary of State, Christian Herter, would agree to have an answer immediately after Nikita Khrushchev speaks.

Job Seekers Rush to Docks

By LEE CRAIG

Longshoremen have frequently complained that they have been treated harshly by the press, with the result that their neighbors look down on them and that they suffer generally in the public's esteem.

This complaint lost its validity as soon as the word got out that the dockers needed 300 more men for the Class B longshore rolls.

Applicants for the jobs fell out of the trees, came through the walls and flew in the windows of the ILWU hall in Wilmington. Last Monday, Kuwakas said that 6,700 would-be dockworkers had panted up to apply and the flood showed no signs of lessening.

No more application cards were issued at that point. It will take about a month to make the 300 selections, making it mid-October before they will report for work.

STUDIES BY Long Beach Harbor Department engineers indicate that the pontoon bridge over the entrance channel, already overworked with handling 10,000 to 12,000 vehicles a day, will be crammed daily with more than 20,000 vehicles after the new San Pedro - Terminal Island bridge is completed.

The pontoon bridge, built by the Navy during World War II for $750,000, cost the harbor department that amount again for operation, maintenance and major changes during the first seven years under city control.

MATSON HAS HIRED Polynesian girls as hostesses aboard its Hawaiian cruise ships Lurline and Matsonia. P & O - Orient Lines, which operates 16 passenger liners in world-wide service — seven to the North American coast — has announced its 1960-61 cruise program. As a sample, fare for a 44-day South Pacific cruise on the Iberia, calling at Vancouver, Honolulu, Suva, Auckland, Sydney, and back along the same route ranges from a minimum of $644 to a top $2,248. Average tab is $1,136.

At the Port of Rotterdam, the 9,700-man dock labor force is supplemented by some 3,500 men who daily shuttled from rural points on buses. When these men are needed on the farms, the docks suffer.

Another left-over note: did you know that some ship launchings in World War II were done using ripe bananas to grease the ways?

Gulf Coast Cleans Up After Hurricane Ethel

PASCAGOULA, Miss (UPI)—Warm sunshine bathed the Gulf Coast Saturday and homeowners took advantage of the fair weather and weekend work-break to begin cleaning up the seaweed and mud left by Hurricane Ethel.

Officials estimated the big storm caused nearly $2-million damage, as she came crashing in from the Gulf Thursday along a 45-mile stripe of the "Mississippi Riviera."

The cost to homeowners alone was expected to reach $750,000. Officials estimated that between 1,500 and 2,000 homes suffered roof damage of a varying degree, windows were smashed and trees and shrubs uprooted.

An estimated 50,000 persons fled before Ethel's winds, and this precaution, coupled with the fact that a cold front sapped the storm of much of its strength before it hit, prevented further damage.

Two deaths were indirectly attributed to Ethel. A power company employee was electrocuted while repairing a damaged line and a man dropped dead of a heart attack while battering down his home.

Navy Launches 1st Copter Ship

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP)—The 15,000-ton helicopter carrier Iwo Jima, first ship built by the U.S. Navy for this specific purpose, was christened Saturday at Puget Sound Naval Shipyard.

The 500-foot-long vessel, similar in appearance to the World War II escort carrier, is designed to transport assault troops and take them by helicopter over beachheads—a tactic called "vertical envelopment."

Polara for 1961 Features Styling

By ART STEPHAN

The 1961 Dodge Polara was designed and engineered for the motorist who wants "a car of distinction at a moderate price," Dodge general manager M. C. Patterson said when announcing the company's new line in Detroit.

Revealing details of the new car, Patterson said: "We are convinced our Polara will be the star of the low-medium-price field. This car has the refinement, quality, performance and style that has been previously available only in luxury-priced cars."

The new car will make its debut in Dodge dealers' showrooms Sept. 29.

Patterson said the Polara for 1961 features completely new styling, elegant new interiors, a V-8 engine that performs efficiently on regular grades of gasoline, and engineering improvements that provide performance and ride of unexcelled smoothness and quietness.

The 122-inch-wheelbase Polara is available in six models: 4-door sedan, 2-door hardtop, 4-door hardtop, convertible, and six-and nine-passenger hardtop station wagons.

IDENTIFYING features of the Polara's new styling theme is its rocket-like tail-lights and rear fenders. The fenders rise slightly just behind the doors, taper downward, then make a reverse sweep at the rear of the car. The tail-lights are located within a chrome nacelle mounted in the fender.

Dominating the front of the car is a large, horizontal, concave grille. The hood and front fenders form a cowl for the grille and dual headlights project from its sides. Housings for the parking lights and a recess for the license plate are integrated in the large, wrap-around bumper. In the middle of the grille is a large medallion in the form of a cross, inset with red and mounted on a textured golden background plate.

THE STATION wagons again feature sleek hardtop styling. And a high rear window — which increases the glass area by 47 per cent — is standard on all Polara hardtop sedans.

Polara buyers will have a choice of three engines ranging in horsepower from 265 to 330.

Other engineering advances include:

A new solenoid-shift starter, which brings new silence and reliability to Polara engines.

A new heavy-duty manual 3-speed transmission.

Redesigned shock absorbers, which provide a smoother, quieter ride.

Precision-balanced tires and wheels.

A newly designed, easier-to-operate parking brake.

Clock Rocked Meg's Husband and Butler

NEW YORK (AP)—It was a royal newlyweds' Kensington Palace home. He is now butler-host at the clash with the husband of Jai Alai Palace in Danla, Fla. Princess Margaret of Great Britain, their former butler, employer, Tony a McAndrews, Thomas Cronin, said Saturday. Cronin said the trouble began when he put up a big clock in the pantry. He said Margaret's after only three weeks at the husband, ex-photographer

Antony Armstrong-Jones, Armstrong-Jones is a "nice" "looked up in amazement and asked where the crazy clock came from." Princess Margaret intervened and told her husband, "don't worry, darling, Cronin knows what he is doing." Cronin conceded that Cronin, 44, earned about $2,400 a year in England. He gets from $12,000 to $14,000 in his new job.

5 reasons why it's an economy to spend a little more for your children's shoes

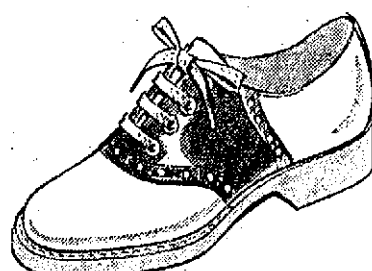

The American Foot Health Foundation* reports that 3 out of 4 school children suffer from correctable foot defects. And the U. S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare says that a big cause is shoes that do not fit.

- 1 "Bargain" shoes (there's really no such animal!) may look good, but they usually sacrifice quality, wear and proper fit. The U. S. Dept. of Health states that shoes that are too tight, too heavy, run down or badly fitting for any reason can exert pressure or friction that can throw the delicate mechanism of the foot out of line.
- 2 When you spend little more to give them Buster Brown Shoes with their 57-year reputation for quality, you get shoes especially designed for your children's feet, not just scaled-down adult models.
- 3 Buster Brown Shoes are shaped on lasts that take their final form only when they've been tested in thousands of hours of actual use by active youngsters. That's why Buster Brown calls them "Live-Foot" lasts.
- 4 Buster Brown Shoes are made of quality materials—supple, pliant uppers and flexible yet sturdy soles. All materials are tested in Brown Shoe Company's Quality Control Laboratories, the most advanced in the shoe industry.
- 5 Buster Brown Shoes are sold by carefully selected Authorized Buster Brown dealers. The man who fits them is a man who knows children's feet. He is pledged to use the famous Buster Brown 6-Point Fitting Plan, which assures proper fitting at all the key points—big toe, little toe, ball of foot and heel—and also just the right amount of extra room for growth. As part of the Fitting Plan, most Buster Brown dealers will also notify you when it's time for a check-up.

For properly fitted shoes for your children, and peace of mind for yourself, see one of the Authorized Buster Brown dealers listed below for your next purchase.

Modern Dental Plates

Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved techniques," used in the construction of dental plates, Dental Science has followed a "progressive" path that resulted in dental plates more natural in "appearance," better fitting and more "comfortable" to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. Ask to see samples of modern dental plates, uppers, lowers and partials. GOOD dental plates need not be expensive. THE COST IS SMALL.

Tony Perkins Reveals How He Almost Won

By EARL WILSON
PARIS — Tony Perkins, wearing a French-looking sweater — which he actually bought in Philadelphia — looked up with a very pleased little half-smile when I asked whether he thought he might win an Oscar for the Alfred Hitchcock movie, "Psycho."

"There's a very funny story about the time I was up for an Oscar in 'Friendly Persuasion,'" he recalled (as we sat in the bar at the Hotel Maurice here one recent afternoon).

"I was in Rome at the time. Everybody was saying 'You're going to get it.'"
Tony sipped some white-wine-and-soda and ate a potato chip to prolong the tale. "I called up the Rome Daily American and asked if they would please read me the list of winners. An employee who didn't speak very good English came on."

Tony mimicked the Italian reading the list.
"When he came to 'Best Supporting Actor,' he said, spelling it out, 'A-n-t-h-o-n-y,' —and I thought 'Yes, that's it, it's me!' —and then went on 'Q-u-i-n-n.' What a terrible split-second that was!"

THAT'S WHEN Anthony Quinn won for "Lust for Life." Tony was also erroneously reported in a press release to have won an Antoinette Perry award for "Look Homeward, Angel," although Ralph Bellamy actually won for "Sunrise at Campobello."

"And now that turns up in all sorts of places and I have to deny it," he said. "Some of my friends say 'So accept it! Don't deny it any more.'"

So Tony's reticent to talk about any kind of award, although he was so delighted personally with "Psycho" that he told Hitchcock he'd do anything he could to help publicize it and did do a tour. "Often," said Tony, having another potato chip, because they weren't soggy, as he had expected, "an actor says, 'We've got to make this one for art's sake—it won't make any money.' I think that's a foolish way to go into it. I would make it a point to be around and help launch it if I liked the picture."

Tony's ready to start shooting "Aimez-Vous Brahms?" with Ingrid Bergman here and had already met authoress Francoise Sagan. He had gone to Miss Sagan's farm near Deauville and some columnists were trying to make a romance of it.

"We talk enough of each other's language to speak dangerously," Tony said. "That middle road . . ."

"We watched Laurel and Hardy in French, and played boules, and she took me for a ride in her car." As though recalling her auto accident, he added, "I thought it was a sporting thing to do."

TONY WENT GAMBLING at Deauville, lost $140, won it back, then won $250. "Now I was $250 ahead. Next day we were ready to leave, and I thought, 'I'll go back and win a little more.' "The valet de chambre had taken my black shoes to polish them. I was fully dressed — and no shoes. He had gone to dinner and I probably could have called him at dinner and got them."

"But I thought, 'Is this an omen?' So I didn't call him, I didn't go, and I left $250 ahead." And friends of Tony's who did go, left in the opposite condition.

Next day we were ready to

Sec. Mitchell Opposes Further Use of Braceros; Battle Looms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "The Department of Labor is concerned that the continued wide-scale use of Mexican nationals, approximately 450,000 annually, in agricultural employment in this country may not be in the best interest of U.S. agricultural workers and employers."

Those 37 words presage a full-dress battle in Congress next year over continuance of a "foreign aid" program that for 10 years has been praised as exemplary and damned as inhuman.

They were written by Secretary of Labor James T. Mitchell on July 20 to Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Mitchell went on to say the department was opposed to extension of the law authorizing use of Mexican nationals (braceros) on American farms, past the June 30, 1961, deadline.

Southwestern and California congressmen succeeded in getting the law extended through next Dec. 31 but they had to promise cooperation in a full-scale review of the program in the next session of Congress.

SECRETARY MITCHELL
Department Concerned

assurances that Mexicans are not competing unfairly with American farm labor.

Leading the Senate battle against extension are Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and Jacob Javitz, R-N.Y. They will gain strength for their position, if the Labor Department maintains its position in the next administration.

THE MEXICAN farm labor problem began in the Southwest during the war years. Temporary use of braceros was authorized to overcome an American manpower shortage.

When the war was over and the authority ended, hundreds of thousands of Mexicans swarmed across the border each year, seeking employment. They were dubbed "wetbacks" because many literally swam the Rio Grande.

Their numbers rose as high as a half million a year and presented problems to immigration authorities that were almost insoluble.

Finally, a law was passed legalizing use of the braceros.

Opponents also want more and rigidly controlling their entry. Illegal "wetbacks" were almost entirely eliminated.

THE LAW PROVIDED for agreements between the Mexican and American governments that were to spell out travel, pay, living and working conditions. These agreements have been renewed, usually for two-year periods, since 1949.

When the extension came up for renewal this year, opponents organized a campaign to change the law which opponents say will wreck many segments of American agriculture.

The AFL-CIO voiced concern over the estimated 2,300,000 domestic farm workers. The labor organization contends that Mexican farm labor depresses wages for these Americans. It also contends that the small farmer is put in an unfair competitive position with the large user of cheap labor.

Southwest farmers argue that this is nonsense. They contend that Americans won't perform the type of labor Mexicans are hired for. Further, their representatives in Congress produce statistics to show that most braceros are used on family-size farms.

Hard, Fraser Garner National Singles Crowns

Darlene Makes It on 7th Try

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP) — Darlene Hard, a bouncy blonde physician-to-be, brought the women's National Tennis championship back to the United States Saturday when she shocked Maria Bueno of Brazil in the final, 6-3, 10-12, 6-4.

In the all-Australian men's final, defending champion Neale Fraser atoned for his hot-and-cold season by grinding out a methodical 6-4, 6-4, 10-8 victory over Rod Laver.

Miss Bueno, the defending champion, was seeded No. 1 and Miss Hard, No. 4.

But Darlene out-served, out-manuevered, out-stroked and out-fought Miss Bueno. It was sweet revenge for the pre-medical student from Pomona (Calif.) College.

LAST YEAR she lost the Wimbledon finals to Miss Bueno, then was eliminated in the semi-finals of the Nationals by the 20-year-old Brazil girl. This was the 24-year-old Miss Hard's seventh try at the title.

Darlene wept in joy while the 6,000 spectators in the stadium of the West Side Tennis Club cheered when it was over.

"I wasn't confident at all," she said later. "Even after I won the first set easily, I didn't think I'd win it. You can't relax a second against Maria. She makes winners when you least expect it."

"I didn't even think I'd get this far in the tournament. My entire game was good against Maria. I guess that explains it."

MISS HARD never did have reason to get overconfident. Twice in the second set, she had only to hold her service to win it in straight sets. But both times Miss Bueno rebounded.

In fact, Darlene was ahead 4-1 after breaking in the third and fifth games and was making it look ridiculously easy. But 35 minutes and 17 games later, she lost the set.

Fraser's victory over Laver in the men's final also was in the way of revenge. The red-thatched Rod beat Fraser for the Australian championship last January in a stunning upset that had the Aussies wondering if, at 26, Fraser was over the hill.

HE ISN'T. His twisting, spiraling service kept Laver strictly on the defensive. Laver broke Fraser's service only once in the third game of the second set.

This was the fourth all-Australian final in the last five years. The last native-born American to win was Tony Trabert in 1955.

In the mixed doubles final, drawing the curtain on the tournament, the team of Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont and Fraser, champions the past two years, defeated Miss Bueno and Mexico's Antonio Palafox 6-3, 6-2.

HOCKEY AT ARENA

Toronto, Boston Arrive Monday for 2 Contests

Because of the jet age, two hockey teams will have a chance to practice in the morning on the East Coast and practice again that night on the West Coast, the first time such an opportunity ever presented itself.

This situation faces the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League who play each other in a two-game series at the Sports Arena Tuesday and Thursday nights, another first in that it will be the initial time that two big league hockey clubs have ever competed in Southern California.

Both Toronto and Boston will arrive Monday afternoon and evening.

Lakers Make 1st Team Cut

Goodall, Barber Moore Axed

Coach Fred Schaus of the Lakers began head-chopping early Saturday when he announced the release of four candidates from the practice squad.

There were no big surprises among the quartet cut, but when the roster is trimmed to 11 next weekend, there could well be a couple of disappointments.

Released Saturday were Jim Powell, formerly of Denver University; Bobby Goodall of Tulsa; Johnny Moore, ex-UCLA star, and former L.A. State ace John Barber.

THE LAKERS have five inter-squad games slated during the next 10 days and by the time the last one is played the team will be pared to the pre-season ceiling of 11. Among the few remaining aspirants—excluding veterans—are Jim Hanna of Long Beach and Sterling Forbes of Pepperdine.

Loren Proctor, representing the sponsoring Century Club and in charge of tickets for the Lakers-Celtics exhibition Oct. 12 at the Municipal Auditorium, said Saturday that tickets are now in the print shop and should be available for sale by next Thursday.

Royals Hope to Sign Robertson Boozier Today

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Cincinnati Royals hope to hit the jackpot today by signing Oscar Robertson and Bob Boozier, two former all-Americans returning from the Olympic Games in Rome.

The Royals, last place finishers in the National Basketball Association's Western Division last season, were banking practically their entire future on the signing of Robertson, three-time all-American from the University of Cincinnati.

In New York, Robertson would not say whether he would sign with Cincinnati or play with the Harlem Globetrotters.

"I want to make some money," he said upon his arrival at Idlewild Airport with Boozier and other Olympic athletes. "But I haven't decided yet."

SUB-PAR SHOOTING BESTS GARDNER

BEMAN BAGS NATIONAL AMATEUR TITLE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Deane Beman, a compact little guy who loves pressure, brought the course, par and dapper Bob Gardner to their knees Saturday and captured the 60th National Amateur Golf Championship with a relentless 6 and 4 triumph.

Brilliant iron play and clutch putting spun the 22-year-old, 143-pound Maryland senior around 32 holes at the sun-drenched

St. Louis Country Club course in a spectacular 5 under par.

Beman, 1959 British amateur champion winning his first U. S. Amateur, had a 3-under-par 68 in taking a 3-up lead over the calm, imperturbable 39-year-old New Yorker in the morning 18 holes of a title duel scheduled for 36 holes.

After lunch, the compact collegian was a bit more conservative—content to match Gardner's steady drone of pars until the chance for a birdie came up.

Then, sensing the kill, he hammered in an 18-foot putt on the 26th hole to go 4-up and hit an approach shot 4 feet from the pin at the 31st and got another birdie before wrapping up the match with a par 4 to Gardner's bogey 5 at the 32nd.

Cheered on by his wife Minnie, who is expecting their second child in January, the 5-7 kid with the cherubic face and confident air never gave Gardner a chance after the first nine holes of the morning round. Beman's parents also were in the gallery.

Down by four on the 22nd, Gardner seemed to sense it was now or never. In the next four holes his drives boomed well out beyond his accustomed length and one paid off for a birdie on the 23rd. He almost drove the 325-yard par 4 24th but his approach fell in deep rough guarding the green and all he could do was halve the hole.

"A couple of breaks and a couple of good putts helped," said Beman. "When I drove that good putt on the eighth hole in the afternoon, that gave me a lift. And then on the 11th, my shot to the green hit down low and bounced up and that helped."

"I think I played as well today as I did in any match of the tournament. I thought I could win it all the time, but I don't think you should enter a tournament unless you think you are going to win it."

Beman, who will be a senior at the University of Maryland this year, succeeds his close friend and rival, Jack Nicklaus of Ohio State, as the U. S. amateur champ in his fifth attempt at the title.

Harney Fires 66 to Take Carling Lead

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Paul Harney, a slender, 31-year-old professional from Worcester, Mass., who has yet to win a tournament this year, shot a 5-under-par 66 for a 54-hole total 203 to take a 1-stroke lead at the three-quarter mark of the $25,000 Tacoma (Carling) Open Saturday.

Tied for the runner-up spot at 204 were Ernie Vossler, Midland, Tex., who fired a 66, and 26-year-old Dave Marr of Houston.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

LAKE CHICKAMAUGA, Tenn.—Water, water everywhere, but nary a drop for dry Southern California. That's the way I feel about the Deep South after a few days of boating in this area. And the countryside: Great forests of impenetrable green!

Perhaps the Tennessee Valley Authority that created hundreds of miles of navigable waterways has always been a national political football, but it has impounded good pure water by the billions of gallons in enormous lakes and a smooth-flowing river.

If such a similar project could be completed in California, there would be room for its thousands of boats, its fishermen, its hunters, water skiers, skin divers and swimmers.

I have just completed a run from Chickamauga Dam downstream 32 miles to Mullins Cove and return. Both going and returning, I, along with more than a hundred other outdoor writers passed through the Chickamauga Locks that drop or lower you 50 feet from one water level to the other.

We made our run in an 18-foot boat, powered with two mighty Mercury 800s and, at times, approached speeds of 45 miles per hour. One of our drivers—we had turns—was Don Guerin, president of the American Power Boat Association.

Another was Long Beach's 16-year-old darling of the water skis, Vicki Van Hook.

DIRECTLY IN FRONT of us was Chuck Stearns, sking all the way from Mullins Cove to Chickamauga Dam. Chuck, 21, and like Vicki a world champion water skier, was getting in a practice run that will help him when he tries the Catalina Island round-trip run later this month.

Certainly there were no two other persons who gave this crowd of outdoor writers such thrills as did Vicki and Chuck in several performances at Lakeshore Marina. They conducted themselves in such a manner that they became the darlings of more than 110 newsmen, gathered here to see the 1961 line of Mercury outboards introduced.

Here are two youngsters who have gone to the top of the skiing word—and both before they were out of their teens. Chuck just recently reached that majority which permits him to vote. Vicki has a long way to go yet. When she won her world crown she was only 15 and she topped women twice her age who were in competition.

At any rate, they made writers from all parts of the United States extremely conscious that there is a Long Beach, California, and that it produces champions.

All of us were guests of the Kiekhaefer Corporation which produces Mercury outboards that range from six to 80 horsepower. One of my colleagues from California remarked in a cynical moment: "Mercury surely does brainwash you, but doesn't it feel good?"

WE HAVE TAKEN TOURS to Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, the old Civil War battlefields, in addition to our activities on the water.

In the annual editors' boat race, the Californians did a beautiful job, with Gordon Baxter of Los Angeles walking off with the overall prize. Mel Zikes and Charles Wells, Los Angeles boating writers, also won heats.

This columnist, placed by mistake in a heavyweight heat, won that even with 50 pounds of rocks loaded as handicap. Then I went to the middleweight semifinals, which I won. In the finals I couldn't make that 6-foot flying flivver work right, so I had to be happy with a third place.

The races were run in front of Lakeshore Marina, an example of what can be done for boating. A group of Chattanooga citizens formed a syndicate, bought the land, built a harbor, the marina building and the lodge which eventually will house 300 or 400 visitors at a time.

But it is the marina building that catches the eye of those who have boats and don't know where to park them. Constructed on three levels so that automobiles can drive directly into each, the structure provides dry storage for 300 boats, wet storage for half that number in canopied slips, 24-hour fueling service for eight boats at a time, overhead hoists for all levels, a complete Mercury sales and service, plus major lines of boats.

IF YOU ARE BOAT-TRAILING in this country, you simply stop at Lakeshore, register your party, car and boat. From that point, touring and boating are almost automatic. Your boat is taken to the marina, launched and prepared for whatever trip you wish.

You can travel down the Tennessee River for hundreds of miles to where it eventually enters the Ohio. Also, you can travel the 810 miles of Chickamauga's shoreline and go upriver to the other lakes in the TVA system.

For the fishermen there are bass and good ol' catfish, you all. Plus other species, of course! For the hunter there are many areas for waterfowl shooting. For the skiers—acres and acres of water with no one in your way.

It's a paradise, but the entire region lacks population and the development that could come with a heavier saturation of people. Perhaps Tennessee and the other states may see that in time. At least Chattanooga is trying hard to convince the rest of the nation—that it is a natural spot for industrial development.

There are other topics of interest that occurred here, but most will have to wait for future columns. I'm thinking of one: the controversial white gasoline subject. I'll tell you plenty about that in a later boating column.

T.V. Lark Wins United Nations

Beats Sword Dancer, Bally Ache, Pays $18

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—California-bred T. V. Lark turned on the power in the final sixteenth of a mile Saturday and overhauled favored Bally Ache to capture the inaugural $100,000 United Nations Handicap at Atlantic City.

This was the first race on a grass course for T. V. Lark and his fifth consecutive victory as he scored by a length and a quarter over the Brookmead Stable's Sword Dancer, 1959 horse of the year.

Sword Dancer, who rushed up from last place in the field of 10 handicapped stars, got second money by a length and a quarter over the Bally Ache from the Turf and Syndicate. Bally Ache barely saved third money by a head over the Brae Burn Farm's General Arthur.

It was an all-California victory, for the winner is owned by Chase R. McCoy of Downey, and was ridden by Johnny Sellers, a native of Los Angeles.

The time for the 13/16 miles was 1:57 and compared with the track record of 1:54 3/5 set by Clem in beating Round Table in the United Nations two years ago.

Despite his impressive recent record, T. V. Lark returned $18.60, $9.40 and $5.50. Sword Dancer paid $6.40 and $4 and Bally Ache $2.80.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Meadowbrook Stable's Little Tumbler, the only filly in the field of 12, led all the way for a surprising three-length victory over Globemaster in the $138,160 Futurity Stakes at Aqueduct.

Time for the six and one-half furlongs was 1:16 3/5 and the winner paid $24.40, $9.20 and $6.20. Globemaster returned $5.30 and $3.80 and Garwal $7.10 to show.

Mobile Homes Called Revolutionary

By TRAILER TOM

Four revolutionary model homes have been unveiled at the fantastic Bayside Village, the $8,000,000 model home community at Newport Beach.

The new waterfront homes, which uniquely integrate custom-designed trailers, are available in four floor plans and 12 exterior stylings, reported Marshall Duffield, Bayside executive vice president.

He added that buyers can order almost any interior design and special built-in feature they desire.

Sixty similar homes and 200 boat slips are completed. The community, occupying 30 acres with 2,000 feet of waterfront on Newport's Upper Bay, is planned for 300 homes and 300 boat slips, Duffield said.

ALSO COMPLETED is the lush $200,000 Bayside Terrace recreation center which includes a two-story clubhouse, private beach, swimming pool and shuffleboard courts, all of which are restricted for the use of residents.

Bayside's $200,000 yacht landing facilities, designed by H. Morgan Noble, provide each slip with water, electricity, storage locker and a two-way paging system. Slips are angled to provide easy maneuvering as well as more space.

THE MOBILE HOME INDUSTRY has called upon the American Society of Landscape Architects in an effort to design better, modern mobile home parks.

The ASLA is endorsing a mobile home park design contest sponsored jointly by the Mobile Home Research Foundation of Chicago and Rogers Industries of Detroit. Cash prizes will total $9,350.

Purpose of the competition is to create an outstanding design of a mobile home park; to explore new concepts of site planning for mobile homes in order to create more desirable, attractive, and livable mobile home areas; and to create a place for mobile homes in the housing community.

THE COMPETITION will be divided into two categories, one for students and the other for professionals. The first is open to students in landscape architecture, architecture, and city planning who are enrolled in U. S. schools. The second category is for all registered landscape architects in states whose laws require such licensure or, in other states, to landscape architects of equal professional qualifications, or to associations of planners, architects, or others provided that each association includes a landscape architect and that all competitors are U. S. residents.

COMPLETE PROGRAMS detailing all the aspects of the contest are now being prepared. To assure receipt of programs for the student competition competitors must register by Oct. 15. Late registrations will be considered until Nov. 1, 1960. To assure receipt of programs for the professional competition, competitors must register by Dec. 15. Late registrations will be considered until Jan. 15, 1961. Contest registration forms and further information are available from: John L. Bloom, Professional Advisor, Mobile Home Park Competition, 20 North Wacker Drive—Room 656, Chicago 6, Illinois.

Twice the fun at half the cost—trailer living

Retirement's a delight... in a mobile home

Recently, two thousand retired mobile home couples were asked why they chose this way of life. Their answers are eye-openers. They find security and peace of mind, convenience and economy, helpful neighbors and the very nicest people, and joy in not being alone.

They like living in mobile home parks that are luxury country clubs without the luxury prices. Activities are planned for them 365 days a year. Friendship and fun keep them on their toes, renew their youth

Best of all, they like the way their money lasts longer. The investment is small (mobile homes are financed like cars, not real estate). The mobile home comes fully-equipped with furniture and appliances ready for living. Space in deluxe parks rents for only $40 to $100 a month. Heating costs are hardly anything. Taxes are trifling.

No matter how they look at their mobile homes, the longer they live in them, the more satisfaction and happiness these folks find. To see what they mean, visit a mobile home park. Or your nearest mobile home dealer.

SOLID!

Few permanent homes are built as solidly as today's mobile home. The roof of one model consists of six layers above the plywood ceiling: spun glass, vapor seal, more spun glass, Celotex, interlocking metal roof, and finally a tough reflective roof coating. There's protection!

"Take us along too, daddy"

Let the whole family enjoy these fishing and hunting trips. Pick out a fine new travel trailer and start a share-the-fun plan with mom and the children.

Say, and pretty soft for you, having a comfortable full-size bed way up the canyon where the big 12-pointer is just over the ridge. Or hauling an icy beer out of the refrigerator exactly 150 feet from your own secret trout pool. A smacking hot supper instead of ash-charred potatoes. A comfortable chair and a decent light to read by. A steaming hot shower before sacking down for the night.

Your trailer travels beckon you to many brighter tomorrows. Yes, it's a good life all right when the whole family's along.

NOW YOU KNOW
Mobile homes run 27 to 50 feet. They're for living in and today the average mobile home moves only about once every 2 1/2 years.

Travel trailers, which are between 12 and 35 feet, are for families that like to get out and go places, but have no objection to enjoying all the comforts of home wherever they are.

Fewer Miles Per-Housewife

Ever stop to think how many, many miles you walk every day, ma'am, just doing your housework? Well you'd love all the ingenious space-makers and step-savers in today's comfortable mobile homes. Extra space under your built-in refrigerator, sink, and oven. In the bunk bed framework, and inside the water heater enclosure. Many doors slide out of sight, instead of swinging. Fold-back partitions turn one living room into two or even three bedrooms. Then next morning, in seconds, Abacadabra! It's a living room!

AIR-CONDITIONING
... UNDER THE FLOOR

One of the newest developments in mobile home comfort is an ingenious air-conditioning unit that cools, dehumidifies, ventilates and filters the air, yet fits under the floor, where it takes not an inch of living space.

Why not look at the mobile homes and travel trailers at your local dealer? Check the Yellow Book for the one nearest you.

REALTOR OF THE WEEK

AL RUTZ

Al Rutz was born Albert C. Rutz in 1915 in Little Rock, Arkansas. When he was 6 yrs. old his family moved to Oklahoma. In high school he was on the basketball team that was the State Champion 4 years in a row. He also was a straight "A" student and was given a 2-year scholarship to East Central State College in Ada, Okla. Married in 1936, will celebrate his 24th anniversary the 19th of this month. Has three daughters, two of whom are married. His oldest daughter, Frances, has two sons and a daughter. Jean, the middle daughter, has a son. Pat, the youngest, who will be 19, Oct. 8, which also is her mother's birthday, works at Autonetics Plant in Downey as a secretary.

During the war years Al was one of the first employees at the Long Beach Navy Shipyard, working in Shop Planners office of Shop 64.

In 1946 became an insurance agent and later started selling Real Estate.

Has his own office at 1932 Pacific Ave., Long Beach, and is a firm believer in organized Real Estate. Joined the Long Beach Board of Realtors in 1954. His motto is: "There's no home like one you own." Al is a past president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Long Beach.

Sponsors three bowling teams and bowls on one team. Likes fishing both fresh water and ocean, looks forward to going to Utah each fall on a deer hunting trip.

Assets of City Pointed Out in 'Home Town' Winning Talk

Pointing out the many blessings bestowed upon the city and stressing that the greatest asset is the concern shown here for people of all ages, Ken Harkey won the Long Beach Board of Realtors annual "Home Town" speech contest.

Harkey, who is associated with the Verne Morrill Real Estate Co., is not a native of Long Beach but since coming here in 1946 he has enjoyed the many benefits offered, as he stressed in his talk.

KEN HARKEY
To State Contest Next

HERE ARE some of the highlights of his winning talk:

"In a world that is torn with broken promises and threats of missile annihilation, it may seem of unwarranted concern to direct our attention to the many cities and towns that constitute the home towns of our nation," said the winner.

"Long Beach sees itself as a major contributor in the progress of the United States. We are blessed with wealth that gives substance to dreams. Our city stirs with excitement over a pool of oil that acts as a major source of tax revenue for commerce and navigation and shoreline beautification. With other tax revenue, we have, over a period of years, provided the youth of our city with a system of education that is unparalleled in any city in the world.

"Men of vision have guaranteed our youngsters education with structures of learning from kindergarten through college that are the envy of many.

"OUR CITY'S economic behavior is nourished by many leading business firms located within its boundaries. And the spirit of growth continues...

"But the greatest asset within the limits of our city is the concern for people. For citizens of all ages, we have provided beautiful and peace-table tennis, to square dancing. Our clean beaches—referred to as the Silver Strand by the Sapphire Sea—offer opportunities for hours of refreshing enjoyment.

"Nor have the Arts been overlooked. Our outstanding Museum of Art exhibits the work of the finest artists in the Southland. A concert band brings pleasure to thousands throughout the year.

"AND THE opportunities for spiritual growth have also been encouraged. We have every major religion represented in our community with churches that allow for the contact with God that is essential for an American's development as a moral and spiritual being.

"But not even this picture tells the whole story. For much of the success of Long Beach can be found in its proximity to other communities and other facilities. We have access to the most modern freeways, the major bus lines, and an airport that opens the door to all parts of the world. Our harbor is second to none.

"Long Beach is the International Capitol of the world. The initial impetus for this philosophy of thought comes with the appreciation of our importance within the family of nations throughout the world. We are a trade center, a cultural center, and now, a beauty center. Once each year the International Beauty Congress selects the most beautiful girl in the world to reign over a realm of good will and international understanding. It is right that a city so interested in the welfare of people should offer its facilities and its name to further such an attitude.

"We need have no fear of hate and violence. Men can work together for their mutual welfare. We have proof of it in Long Beach—my home town!"

Walker & Lee Sales Strong

"The real estate business couldn't be better," according to Arthur W. Hancock, manager of the local Walker & Lee Inc. resale office. Walker & Lee has been called the largest realtor in the world by House and Home magazine.

In the Long Beach area, 414 homes were resold to new owners for a dollar volume of $6,997,000 in the first seven months of 1960.

Hancock stated: "This is strong indication that this area is growing and new people continue to join us."

Walker & Lee Inc. operates 14 resale offices in this area, as well as handling sales of 42 new home developments in Southern California.

NOTES OF BUSINESS

Ease in Mortgage Money Is Expected

By KEN CHILCOTE
L. P. T. Business, Realty Editor.

There is every indication that more mortgage funds will be made available the remainder of this year, easing the market that has been pressed by tight money.

Already several builders in this area are moving with speed to open new developments because of the improved conditions.

The general public may now enter into the FHA mortgage market for the first time on one to four-family dwellings. This action enables FHA to break away from the 25-year-old ruling that such mortgages had to be held by corporations capitalized at $100,000 or more and meeting other agency requirements. It also opened the door for a return to the market by investors who once dominated it.

Also new legislation makes it possible for real estate investment trusts, similar in most respects to mutual funds, to be organized and pass their income to their shareholders without being subject to the corporate income tax, as is allowed security investment trusts.

B. W. (BILL) WHEELER has been named executive vice president and general manager of the McGaffey-Taylor Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Eastman Oil Well Survey Co.

Wheeler, a member of the Long Beach Petroleum Club and well known in Southland oil circles, has over 30 years of experience in the industry. For years he was with Halliburton Oil Cementing Co., and for 14 years has been field manager and part owner of McGaffey-Taylor.

BUTLER BROTHERS DIVISION of City Products Corp., reported sales in the first eight months of 1960 were at an all-time high and August was the 15th consecutive month of record sales performances. August volume was $21,216,402, a 10.5 per cent increase from 1959.

THRIFTMART's board of directors elected Robert E. Laverty and Roger M. Laverty Jr., as vice presidents. They will continue in their present duties, Robert as sales manager and Roger Jr., in charge of real estate.

BITS OF BUSINESS—Ellis Schrader Real Estate Co., in the first 10 days of September sold 30 properties from their three Long Beach offices. "Ty" Ellis said the sales were approximately a half million dollars. James E. Miller, 2207 Oceana Ave., qualified to attend a special conference of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., in Haddonfield, N. J. Miller is with the Robert A. Reason agency here. Herman J. Wulfsberg Jr., district manager for Northwestern National Life and first vice president of the California Association of Life Underwriters has been in Washington participating in debates at the national convention of the underwriters.

Cities Warned They Must Plan Industrial Sites or Lose Out

SAN FRANCISCO—Metropolitan areas throughout the nation must wake up to the need for industrial-land planning or lose out in the increasingly keen competition for new plants, Clinton B. Snyder, Hoboken, N. J., president of the Society of Industrial Realtors, said here.

Addressing a group of California industrialists and development officials attending a regional seminar on industrial real estate, Snyder cited "a growing demand for attention to the needs of industry in metropolitan land-use planning."

"Cities and states throughout the country are striving to attract industry. But all the razzle-dazzle in the world won't bring in a new plant unless it is provided with plenty of properly zoned land, power sources, served by adequate transportation networks, and protected from encroachments.

"MORE AND more communities must recognize that if they are to bolster their economies with new industry, prime sites must be reserved for industrial use, in the same way valuable land is set aside for recreational open space, and commercial or residential development," the SIR president declared.

"At the same time we must discourage competition for industry between local jurisdictions within metropolitan areas. The same need for coordinated area-wide planning that has become so clear in other fields applies equally to industrial development. The plant that locates in one part of a metropolitan area employs people from other parts and makes an over-all contribution to the regional economy.

"The interstate highway program which will provide 41,000 miles of new roads can provide also a wealth of new industrial sites if strategic tracts accessible to interchanges are made available for industrial uses. We are witnessing already the growth of important industrial parks and blue-ribbon plants along major expressways. This is a development which should be encouraged by states and localities," Snyder said.

THE URBAN RENEWAL

program provides another opportunity for certain selected types of industrial development where central city sites are needed and the logical land use is industrial.

"Light industries which create no noise, odor, or smoke problems can make ideal additions to some urban renewal areas because they provide employment centers close to new and rehabilitated residential neighborhoods," Snyder explained.

Gordon Young Back to L. B. Bank Post

Gordon C. Young has returned to the Bank of America's Long Beach main office, Fourth and Pine Ave., as an assistant vice president. This was announced by Roland E. Robbins, vice president and manager.

Young, a banking specialist in real estate, for five years has headed the real estate loan department at the bank's Los Angeles main office. He is no stranger to Long Beach, having started in banking here in 1937 and served at the main office and the First and Pine branch. He rose from clerk to officer status by 1952 and was senior lending officer at the First and Pine branch when promoted to the Los Angeles position.

GORDON C. YOUNG
Returns to L.B. Bank

ONE OF THE YOUNGEST lieutenant colonels in World War II, Young now holds the rank of colonel in the Army Reserve. He is a graduate of the Adjutant General's School in Washington and the Command & General Staff College.

A native of Illinois, Young attended the University of Illinois, College of Commerce on a scholarship awarded in competitive examination. He also graduated from the School of Mortgage Banking at Northwestern, attending on a scholarship under the Bank of America Giannini Foundation Award.

Area Men Buy Tract in Hawaii

Hitching their wagon to the 50th star in our national flag a group of Southern California investors purchased 1,200 acres in Hawaii, valued in excess of $3,000,000, to be subdivided and sold as a planned community.

The development is to be known as Ainaloa, Hawaii, it was announced by Harry E. Beddoe, Realtor, president of the new group known as Golden State Hawaiian Corp.

Beddoe's realty firm in Downey has sold over 4,000 acres of land on the "Big Island" of Hawaii, he said.

INTEREST IN THE island state is so great, according to the realtor, that heretofore his office has not been able to obtain sufficient lots to meet the demand. The new investment group will help to fill the gap, he said.

"Ainaloa," which is 15 miles from Hilo on a gentle slope in view of the ocean, will be subdivided into 3,637 lots. Areas will be reserved for schools, parks, business center and a hotel, Beddoe said, to be known as "Ainaloa Inn."

Home of Tomorrow May Be of Steel

By EDWARD COWAN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Houses of wood, brick, aluminum—and now steel.

Putting in a claim for the "House of Tomorrow," a steel industry magazine says it will be made of, naturally, steel.

Tomorrow's house "is suddenly arriving, and in two economic and attractive versions: steel frame and all steel," reports Steelways in its September issue.

What does a steel house have that others lack? For one thing, writer Hannibal Coons emphasizes, "steel doesn't burn."

While that may have a certain emotional appeal for families with youngsters and oldsters, who would be least able to take care of themselves in case of fire, it is not steel's only advantage, Coons reports.

"STEEL HAS MADE unusable lots usable," he says. This would be of special value where there is no more level ground vacant and new houses must be built on sharply graded ground. With steel you can build right on the grade, according to Coons, avoiding the costly job of leveling or putting in a foundation and retaining wall.

"An San Francisco family recently found a dandy view lot having 50-to-70 degree slope, covered with rocks and scrub oak, with a drainage gully," Coons illustrated. The family had an architect design a steel frame house and "the hillside's natural grade, drainage and vegetation is undisturbed."

Also gaining acceptance, in addition to the steel frame house, is the all-steel house, Coons said. He listed among its advantages: "steel doesn't swell and shrink with humidity variations. It doesn't warp and crack the plaster. Steel beams don't sag; steel stairs don't squeak. Steel is not subject to fungus growth or termites."

Norwalk College Estates Sell Fast

IN NORWALK

Brisk sales launched the opening of Norwalk College Estates new unit No. 18 which presents prospective home owners with a choice of 31 diverse exterior designs and five flexible plans. Here is one model.

Brisk sales pace that launched the opening of Norwalk College Estates' new unit strongly indicates that this 18th unit of spacious, quality-built homes may sell out even more rapidly than the earlier units, William Effinger, sales manager for Shapell Land Co., reports.

Norwalk College Estates earlier units have a record of 640 homes sold, most of them before completion, Effinger explained.

Located in Norwalk, immediately adjacent to the new Los Cerritos Junior College, this home development offers a wide choice of exterior designs, 31 in all, and five flexible, large-family plans with three or four bedrooms and two attractive baths.

ONE OF THE MOST popular of the many attractions is the appliance-equipped kitchen with built-in range and wall oven, range hood with fan and light, semi-automatic dishwasher and numerous hardwood cabinets and drawers. Added convenience is a separate service porch with laundry tray, tiled splash and rough-in for automatic washer.

Fully priced from $17,250, Effinger said, there are VA, or conventional loans. Veterans may purchase on terms of nothing down, except im-pounds and closing costs and non-veterans choosing the convenient conventional loans have down payments from $750.

Norwalk College Estates is reached by driving Santa Ana Freeway to the Pioneer turn-off in Norwalk. Go south on Pioneer to Alondra, and then right one block to the models at Maidstone and Alondra.

Does Public Like Small Cars or Low Price, Makers Wonder

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT—You can find a lot of support among top officials of the auto industry for the theory that the public really doesn't want smaller cars, just smaller prices.

"Who wants to be crammed into such a small space?" asked one executive.

"Dealers tell me they could sell a car 20 feet long if it cost only $1,695," says Ed Cole, general manager of Chevrolet.

"The public wants economy," says Clare Briggs, general manager of Chrysler-Imperial, "but it also wants big car comfort."

Chrysler Corp. added fuel to the big car-small car debate during the 1960 model year with the introduction of the Dodge Dart. The Dart was a full sized car, priced several hundred dollars under the cheapest previous Dodge.

IT SOLD like hotcakes in the price class of Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth. The Dart, with the Dodge name on it, outsold Plymouth decisively although the two cars were extremely similar beneath the outside sheet metal.

Now Chrysler is going to try another similar marketing move in a slightly higher price bracket. Chrysler division will introduce the Newport series and go after buyers who have been patronizing Oldsmobile, Buick and Pontiac.

"The Newport," Briggs said, "will compete directly, for example, with the Olds 88 (lowest price standard size Olds)."

Briggs is quite emphatic in his beliefs that a lower price big car, rather than a compact, is the answer to a additional volume for his dealers.

"WE HAVE FOUND the public too often thinks of Chrysler as an expensive automobile, rather than a medium price car," he said. "We need a less expensive series to bring the traffic into our showrooms."

The Newport is styled very similarly to Chrysler's Windsor series. Previously its least expensive. But it will be priced about $175 less than the Windsor.

In terms of volume there is no chance for the Newport to match Dart's success because of the difference in the price bracket.

"We are certain, however, that it will not affect the sale of our top lines—the Chrysler New Yorker and the Imperial," Briggs said.

The corporation's recent experiences in the medium price field have not been successful. With the Dart going strong, sales of the regular Dodge line suffered sharply.

DE SOTO, the company's entry in the middle of the medium price class, has fallen from favor with the buying public. Its 1960 model sales are about 50 per cent below 1959. And the 1959 sales already were almost 50 per cent under 1958.

In the 1961 model year DeSoto has trimmed its offerings even more and will market only two-door and four-door hardtops.

Chrysler Division's move with the Newport contrasts with the decision of the medium price divisions of General Motors—Oldsmobile, Buick and Pontiac—to market compact cars in 1961.

Briggs says he thinks the GM dealers will encounter trouble trying to market two sizes of cars. "Why would a man who had been satisfied with one of their cars want to buy a small car?" he asked.

Indications are that it will take a full year and maybe more to find out who is right.

State Realty Meet Program Announced

Harvey E. Miller, president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, announced that plans are nearly completed for the 56th annual convention of the 32,500-member California Real Estate Association to be held in San Francisco, Oct. 2-6, according to information received from Edward L. Callahan, Los Angeles, president.

Martin B. McKneally, New York attorney and national commander of the American Legion will be the keynote speaker at the five-day meeting which will be attended by more than 4,000 members representing the 165 real estate boards in the state. His talk will stress Americanism and anti-communism.

A large delegation from Long Beach is planning to attend the convention, according to Miller. Reservations have already been received from: Max Livoni, E. T. Moore, J. C. Hoffman Sr., John Ricketts, James Odegard, Harold Steele, Jack Merrick, Arnold Berg, B. C. "Jim" Phelan, Mildred Stanley, Lloyd Leedom, Verne Morrill, Glen Gerken, H. A. Murray, Fac Matthews, Ellen Levesque, John Bohan, Isabel Patterson, Harvey E. Miller, Art Holmes, Gene Nebeker, Millie Coine Sanders, Eddie Sanders, Art Maspero, Jim Tolbert, E. C. Roswurm, Dorothy E. Annis, Stormy Keats, Vera Larson, Hazel Phillips.

Home Near Beach Ready to Move in

Among the most popular moderately priced new homes in the Huntington Beach area are those at Starlite Mesa being offered by Evans Building Co., Orange County developers, salesmen report. Although priced at only $12,650 to $14,250, the homes are attractively designed, quality built and include many extra luxury features.

A choice of floor plans is offered with 3 or 4 bedrooms, 1½ or 1¾ baths, roomy living room, dining area, well equipped kitchen and attached double garage. A variety of attractive exterior designs give each home an individualized appearance with recessed entries, planters, wide overhang rock or composition roofs and picturesque diamond pane windows featured.

AMONG FEATURES included in the homes are wall-to-wall carpeting, waste disposal unit, ceramic tiled kitchen and baths, shades and screens throughout and landscaped front lawns.

Starlite Mesa homes are available for immediate occupancy and liberal financing terms are offered with down payments as low as $295 plus costs, and monthly payments on principal and interest starting at $89.50, according to E. W. Hoke & Associates, sales agents.

Furnished model homes are open to the public daily on Yorktown Ave. in Huntington Beach, just east of Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39.)

REALTY SPEAKER

Edmund F. Shaheen, vice president of a Southern California realty firm specializing in commercial, industrial and investment sales, will be the speaker at the Long Beach Board of Realtors Tuesday morning in Lafayette Hotel. Shaheen, who is a lieutenant colonel in the Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve, recently graduated from a national seminar held at the War College. His subject will be "Protracted Conflict."

Homes Open for Advance Show Today

Prospective home owners are invited to attend today's "early bird" showing at Imperial Estates, which introduces the new larger homes in the exciting "1961 Golden Crown Series" in the new location in the North Long Beach-South Norwalk area, announced Frank Chandler of Key Land Co., sales agent.

"Today's early bird preview," Chandler said, "also marks the 25th consecutive Imperial Estates community to be built by Emblem Homes, and most of the homes in the earlier units were sold even before they were completed."

SITUATED within easy access of Norwalk Square shopping and business center and close to other shopping centers, schools and many churches, Imperial Estates' new 25th unit is less than a mile from El Dorado Golf Course and Park.

Spacious, diversely styled homes in the "Golden Crown" series are priced at approximately $15,750, Chandler explained. Veterans may purchase on VA loans on terms of nothing down, except im-pounds and costs, and there is also FHA financing available.

Imperial Estates' new "Golden Crown Series" is reached by driving Santa Ana Freeway to the Pioneer turn-off, then south to Centralia Road, left to Norwalk Blvd. and then right to 226th St. and the models.

City Reaches $ Million Class

LINCOLN, Ill. (AP) — While the men in the nation's capital ponder debts in billions, the city aldermen here reached the million-dollar class.

For the first time in history, the city's appropriation budget topped the million-dollar mark. The funds of $1,005,016 will help raise salaries for 65 municipal employees by 3 per cent.

Free Las Vegas Trip Offered Visitors in Huntington Village

HUNTINGTON VILLAGE HOME

This is one of the models offered in Huntington Village, where sales are soaring. Visitors to the community may win a free trip to Las Vegas, the developers announced.

Families visiting the new Huntington Village residential community may win an expense-paid two-day holiday trip to Las Vegas, according to Doyle & Shields, builders of the 2,000-home development in Huntington Beach.

A drawing will be held each Sunday, they said, to select a couple from those registering at Huntington Village during the previous week. The winners will receive plane transportation to the resort city and two days at the famous Tropicana Hotel there as guests of the developers.

THE HUNTINGTON Village community is the largest residential community now being built in the Huntington Beach area and officials report that demand for the homes is so great that they are speeding up construction schedules to assure early occupancy for all buyers.

The Country Club Series homes, now being offered, overlook the adjoining Meadowlark Golf Club and are close to the beaches, boating centers and other recreational activities in the vicinity.

Job Agency Convention Set

Delegates of the California Employment Agencies Association convene in San Francisco at the annual convention Sept. 28, 29, 30 and Oct. 1.

Under the direction of President R. Rockford (Von Agency) the South Coast Chapter elected delegates. Attending with Rockford will be Taylor Bane (Caldwell Agency); Flo Bailey Jones (Flo Bailey Agencies); Maxine Hill (Lakewood Agency); Vi Bane (Certified Agency); Calire Carmody (Golden West Agency); and Leslie Parker (The Leslie Agency). Alternates will be E. Gaylord Agency) and John Lee (Bene-

In keeping with their setting, the homes are designed for casual suburban living and, although moderately priced, have many luxury features such as wall-to-wall carpeting, built-in gas range and oven, fireplaces, central forced air heat and numerous other extras.

A WIDE SELECTION of attractive exterior designs and floor plans are offered with 3 or 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, family room and well arranged living areas.

McFarland & Mattocks, sales agents, advise that prices on the homes are from $14,600 to $15,990 with liberal financing terms including down payments recently reduced to as low as $295 plus costs. All sales are directly to deeds.

Furnished model homes are open daily at the Huntington Village entrance on Springdale St., just north of Heil Ave. in Huntington Beach.

Royal Coachline Homes Have Big Appeal

Royal Coachline Homes, King Series, in Anaheim are setting a rapid selling pace according to Mark Pitman, developer of the subdivision. However, an excellent selection of floor plans still is available to the home buyer, Pitman stated.

This new series of Royal Coachline Homes offers dwellings of three and four bedrooms, plus spacious family room and two baths. Sixteen outstanding exterior designs and five well executed floor plans are available and assure the buyer individuality in selection. The homes contain 1360 to 1508 square feet of actual living area. Priced from $17,900 to $19,400, the homes can be purchased from $500 to $1,250 total down.

The homes are available in either contemporary or provincial styling with roofs of Cedar shake, rock or shingle combination—stone, brick or marble fireplaces with gas log lighter, brick planters and concrete planter areas, band-sawn and ornamental iron trim, large front porches, stone and brick exterior masonry. Some of the plans feature exposed beam ceilings in the family room.

Garage Good Spot to Improve Home

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI)—There's always room for improvement around the house. Ask any homeowner—or his wife.

The garage often is the target of home improvement plans since it is a prime source of sorely needed room for expansion. Garage space can be manipulated to provide just about anything from added storage to new living space.

The remodeling can be simple: Shelves, cabinets, overhead racks for bulky out-of-season storage; sliding screen doors to transform the space into an outdoor living area. Or it can be elaborate, creating new family room, living room, den or other needed living space.

J. C. Penney at 85 Tells Success Key

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Opportunities for success are just as good today as when I started 58 years ago."

That's the belief of keen-eyed, vigorous J. C. Penney, one of the world's biggest storekeepers, who celebrated his 85th birthday Friday.

As usual, he spent part of the day behind his desk in a corner office on the 18th floor of the J. C. Penney building in New York City's garment district.

He's a man of deep religious convictions and courtly manners.

"If a man is able to render a superior service to his customers, he will succeed," Penney said. The Penney name is borne by 1,700 department stores from coast to coast.

"IF I WERE STARTING today I would do just as I did. I would go to a small town."

"I had an opportunity in 1902 to become a partner in a store in Ogden, Utah, population 30,000. Instead I went to Kemmerer, Wyo., population 1,000."

"I felt I could get to the hearts of the people better."

Penney's first store, a weather-lashed, frame, two-story structure on a dusty street of a frontier town, was named the Golden Rule.

He became part owner of the Kemmerer store with $500 saved and $1,500 borrowed.

THE FIRST YEAR'S sales totaled $28,000. (In 1959 the Penney stores grossed $1,400,000,000.)

He soon bought out his partners and started opening stores. Through the years they mushroomed at a fantastic rate.

Until recently nearly 90 per cent of the Penney stores were in towns of under 50,000 population. But a changing American way of living has brought changes to the Penney organization, too.

"The stores we are opening now are in suburban trading centers of bigger cities," Penney said.

"The great advantage of a suburban store is parking facilities."

"But I can't believe that downtown stores are doomed to extinction. These stores have shown gains when enlarged and improved."

ROYAL COACHLINE HOMES APPEALING

Large homes, such as this model, offered by Royal Coachline in the King Series in Anaheim, are finding ready buyer response. The homes are priced from $17,900 and may be purchased for as little as $600 down.

Exposed beam ceilings in the family room.

AMONG THE EXTRAS offered in these new homes are high quality wall-to-wall carpeting, lawns planted front and sides.

The new King Series features O'Keefe & Merritt built-in range, oven and rotisserie, plus exhaust fan and hood, in-sink-erator garbage disposer, custom stained Alder cabinets, all-ceramic tile bar and sink tops.

Forced air heating, 100 amp wiring with 20 circuit electrical panel, aluminum sash windows, aluminum sash screens with weatherstripping and aluminum interlocking thresholds are even more of the quality features in the new King Series.

From the Santa Ana Freeway southbound take Ball Rd. turn-off. Northbound take Harbor Blvd. turn-off, east on Ball Road to Placentia Ave., then north (left) to South St., then left to Furnished Models.

From the Riverside Freeway take the Cyprus turn-off, then turn south to South St., then right to Furnished Models.

Seminar for Contractors

Contractors and members U. S. Gypsum Co., with J. M. Oldham of Los Angeles in charge of the programs. Two other workshops will be presented at the regular monthly dinner meetings in October and November, according to R. W. Dunne, president of the harbor area chapter.

An added feature of the Tuesday meeting is a motion picture entitled "Blueprint for Profit." Other business of the evening will include presenting the slate of 14 directors to be voted upon by the membership to serve in 1967.

Building Tour for Appraisers

Members of the Appraisal Division of the California Real Estate Association will tour the new California Bank Building at the corner of Sixth and Spring Streets in Los Angeles on Tuesday at 4:45 p.m., it was announced by Willard White of San Bernardino, chairman of the division.

The new building is one of the first tall structures completed since elimination of height-limit restrictions in Los Angeles and features many innovations in bank construction which are of interest to real estate appraisers.

Symphony in Tune for Season of Distinction

If Long Beach Symphony Association's current activities were interpreted musically, fanfares and cadenzas would be in order Monday when the curtain goes up on an "Overture to a Season of Distinction," first event of Long Beach Symphony Week.

The affair will be a coffee hour at the home of Mrs. L. L. Wiltse, 1420 La Perla Ave. More than 50 of the city's most dedicated music-lovers have been invited by the hostesses, Mrs. Arch A. Henry, ticket chairman for the association, and Mrs. Courtney Trostle, ticket chairman for Symphony Guild. Mrs. John Lungren, guild president, will assist in welcoming guests.

Mrs. James Thurmond and Mrs. John Christopher have planned a fashion show of beautiful gowns suitable for such occasions as the premiere concert of the 1960-61 season. Only cascading cadenzas would be suitable accompaniment for the enchanting promenade of models selected from the guild's own membership. Ensembles from the Parisienne will be shown in the parade of elegance at pool-side in the gardens of the Wiltse home.

THEN, AFTER this happy prelude, only brilliant fanfare could suitably welcome honored guests who will discuss the principal business of the day, sale of tickets for the concert season.

Mrs. Edward A. Killingsworth, president of the association, will present Lauris Jones, conductor of the orchestra which this year will play a series of six, instead of the usual five, concerts.

James Herley, chairman of the music committee, will discuss the programs in greater detail. He also will introduce Camilla Wicks, one of the most distinguished artists to have gone from Long Beach to become an international celebrity in the music world. She will be the featured soloist at the opening concert, Oct. 30.

In December the symphony will present Gian-Carlo

Menotti's Christmas opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors." Albert Ruiz will be dramatic director and choreographer for the production, which also will be given as a gift to the children of the city from the symphony and the Recording Industries Trust Fund through Local 353, Musicians' Association.

A GALA CONCERT featuring the orchestra, always a popular event of the season, will be presented Jan. 29, 1961. On March 5 performances will be given by winners of the Young Artists' Auditions sponsored by the Symphony Association with the help of local service clubs. Nicolas Furjanick, associate conductor, will be on the podium.

Nowhere in the United States, with the exception of New York, is there a larger group of distinguished musicians than in our Southern California area, and the association presents artists from this wealth of talent whenever possible. Gabor Rejto, noted cellist, will be featured on the program April 16. He is head of the string department in the University of Southern California's school of music. These first five concerts will be given in the auditorium of Long Beach City College.

GRAND CLIMAX of the season will be the Festival Concert, May 21, opening event of the first annual Long Beach Music Festival in Municipal Auditorium. Beethoven's noblest achievement, the Ninth Symphony, will be performed. Long Beach City College's Schola Cantorum, directed by Royal Stanton, will sing the magnificent final movement. The orchestra will be assisted in other works by a 350-voice choir. Soloists from the San Francisco Opera Company and the Robert Shaw Chorale also will be featured.

At the coffee hour Monday, Mrs. Don Raney will have news of the symphony previews which the guild and Junior League of Long Beach have arranged to add to the pleasure of concert-goers.

event for Symphony Week, guests will be given ticket-sale kits and briefed on the coming season. This week 4,000 brochures will be mailed, 200 posters will be displayed, 10,000 bookmarks will be distributed and more than 500 bulletin boards will be decorated to inform Long Beach residents of the 1960-61 concert series.—(Color photo by Roger Coar.)

Visitors Find Ireland 'Instant Country'

By ILKA CHASE

Irish food is tricky. You may find a meal in one place a great deal better than any you had in the last place and still it won't be much good.

But if one may, with reason, rib the Irish on the local cuisine there is one thing one must hand them: scenery. The most extravagant lyrics don't do it justice. We have been motoring pretty steadily for a week and although the cities, other than Dublin, strike us as a bit bleak, the countryside is entrancing. The rolling verdant farm land, the patchwork pattern of the field divided by stone walls, the varied trees, the countless lakes and inlets and bays, the clear brown purling streams where the wily trout lurk and where, at present, they do not bite, the wild upland moors brilliant with golden gorse and purple heather sweeping to the mountains . . . the whole land is an unforgettable lovely panorama unfolding as one drives along. Ireland is a small country yet her landscape is spacious. She is poor because she has scant industry, but for that very reason her rural beauty is unimpaired.

IN OTHER countries everyone has to work like mad in steel and concrete cities in order to afford to get out of them. The moon may belong to everyone as the popular song contends but the best things in life aren't free. Just try owning your own lake or farm or mountain side and see what it costs you in an industrial civilization. The Irish have by nature what the rest of us sweat and strain to get.

Motoring is a joy for the roads are good and there is virtually no traffic. One can't do much speeding for they are very winding but the views are so beautiful there is no incentive to rush past them. Occasionally one meets a horse drawn caravan, the family donkey and the family dog meandering along beside it, the family living in the covered wagon that is about an eighteenth century cousin to a conestoga or one comes to a halt as a herd of sheep or cows ambles across the path, all very pleasant and relaxed.

ANOTHER nice thing about Ireland is that it's instant country. The cities don't sprawl forever into slums and suburbs and developments before you hit the green. You go through a town, even a big one, you round a bend in the road and bingo! the hills and the moors again. Sometimes a castle as in the case of Blarney outside Cork. It's a romantic old ruin, just the tower or keep is still standing but you can clamber up the spiraling stone staircase emerging 120 feet higher on the top terrace and if you're acrobatic enough you can kiss the renowned stone. We took its powers on faith not caring to lie down on a dingy blanket on our backs, inch our way out so that head and shoulders protrude into the void—they do have iron bars beneath you as a safety device so you can't fall—and then straining upward kiss the stone set in a parapet beyond the wall proper.

I was more interested in learning how the word blarney came into the language. The MacCarthy who reigned in Munster during the Great Elizabeths' time and who owned the castle was forever, in his dealings with the queen, professing himself her loyal Baron of

Women

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, SEPT. 18, 1960 SECTION W

Search Opens for 'Woman of Year'

By JOYCE KENT

National Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Long Beach again this year are seeking the "Miss or Mrs. Business or Professional Woman of the Year" as high light of their observance of National BPW Week Oct. 2 to 8.

Established three years ago, the contest is sponsored jointly by the four clubs in this area: Belmont Shore, Long Beach National, Manuela Nieto and Margaret Ives. Its aim is to recognize and pay tribute to contributions of women in the business and professional world.

Recipient of the coveted title will be introduced during the BPW week banquet on Oct. 3 in Lafayette Hotel.

CONTESTANTS may be sponsored by a business firm, service club or trade or professional group and need not be members of a BPW club. Each sponsor prepares and submits a summary, not to exceed 500 words, on the qualifications of its entry and no one, providing they have been employed or in business in the greater Long Beach area a minimum of three years, will be eliminated because of race, color or creed.

Judges will be paying close attention to sponsor summaries which ask for the contestant's background in the fields of efficiency; participation and interest in community projects or affairs; on-the-job attitudes and compatibility; outstanding contributions toward company or profession's welfare and progress; general education — voluntary in-service training—academic efforts toward career advancement; appearance and personality.

FROM THE large number of entries submitted, judges will narrow the field to six or eight, all of whom will be introduced at the banquet.

The panel of prominent men and women judges is being headed this year by Maxine Hill, BPW Sierra Mar District president, and includes Lois Smith, classified advertising manager for the Independent, Press-Telegram and recipient of the award in 1958; Onona Buse, Atlys, Gerald Desmond and Eugene Kirkpatrick, Leo Schultz and Warren Powers, president of the Teachers Assn.

Nominee entries must be postmarked not later than next Saturday to qualify and should be sent to Sadie Michnick, general chairman for Long Beach BPW Week, 2461 McCready Ave., Los Angeles 39.

Wonderful Washington

Everyone Likes Legs—Except Cameraman!

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY
Washington Correspondent

Bare legs first made their major impact on the American scene over 30 years ago when skirts were knee length, but the current vogue for very short skirts, and tanned bare legs is presenting problems for women in the public eye.

Many women consider the brown bare legs another form of the status symbol because only women with leisure can maintain an even tan.

It is newsworthy that women long experienced in public life avoid the pitfalls of this glamorous combination.

For example, Mrs. Richard Nixon and Mrs. Lyndon Johnson are slim, attractive and modish. But both wear stockings and their skirts are long enough to present a decorous appearance on platforms or before cameras.

A FEW DAYS AGO, this reporter watched the plight of a television crew as they prepared to photograph Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Robert Kennedy, sister-in-law of Senator Kennedy. Lady Bird Johnson's lipstick red silk suit presented no problems. Ethel Kennedy, who is only 32 and who looks about 17, is a darling, but where she was seated, her skirt was well above her knees.

After a loudly whispered conference, the television crew decided to "shoot" the pictures from the waist up.

Tall, young Mrs. John F. Kennedy, in common with other young women who like high fashion, also sports sun tanned legs and very short skirts.

The night before the Senate adjourned in Washington, Mrs. Douglas Dillon, wife of the Under Secretary of State, was with her close friend, Mrs. William Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, in the Senate family gallery.

Because the seats are arranged in tiers, knees—visible—attract attention.

YOUNG and pretty, Mrs. Dillon looked like a school girl in a short skirted pink dress with a cashmere sweater around her shoulders.

She did not know that her rosy bare knees glowed in the bright lights to the delight of gallery spectators, press and some of the Senators.

In contrast, Mrs. Fulbright and all the other wives of senators in the gallery, wore skirts of demure length. They included Mrs. Mike Mansfield, Mrs. Thomas Kuchel, Mrs. Albert Gore, Mrs. Spessard Holland and Mrs. Wallace Bennett.

It is an interesting commentary on social mores that Mrs. Eisenhower created a furor in once staid Newport, R.I., this summer wearing stockings, hat, and gloves, with her summer frock. As one socialite said, "I didn't know anyone even OWNED a hat or stockings." Gloves are considered permissible by the smart set.

SUNNY VERIFICATION

Checking flight time for "Jet Flight in Fashion" show, members of Ebell Group Y gather around sun-dail on patio of Robert McKesson penthouse apartment at Royal Palms. The three, who will model during show, are (left) Mmes. Floyd R. Lee, J. B. Killingsworth and B. Tuckley Thompson. Fashion event will take place at 1 p. m. Friday in Ebell clubhouse.

Volunteer Classes Set

Volunteers for the National Council of Jewish Women's program of work at Metropolitan State Hospital will be given two days of orientation by members of the hospital staff. Registrations are being handled by May Berman, 1242 Cary Ave., Wilmington, and Mrs. Joseph Schaner, 5576 Oleta St. Sessions will take place Oct. 3 and 10 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Rehabilitation Clinic of the R and T building. Evening sessions Oct. 24 and 31 will be held from 7:30 to 10. The classes are required for all members planning to do volunteer hospital work.

Real Jewelry

The "real jewelry" look at a small price comes with a carved ivory rose that has marcasite-studded leaves. It could almost be an heirloom.

Joseph L. Campbell, Beverly Melone Wed

The wedding of Beverly Patricia Melone and Joseph Leslie Campbell was solemnized recently in Christ Episcopal Church in Las Vegas, Nev. The former Miss Melone, daughter of Mrs. Lucille Melone, 5236 E. Broadway, and H. O. Melone, 4040 Olive Ave., said her vows in a smart white Italian silk suit. She carried a white orchid atop a prayer book. Nancy Hipp and James Ross Brown were the couple's attendants. The bride was graduated from Wilson High School and holds her bachelor's and master's degrees from U. of Redlands. She is affiliated with Alpha Sigma Pi, is a provisional of the Junior League of Long Beach, and a member of AAUW. She is a teacher at Tucker Elementary School.

THE BRIDEGROOM is the son of Mrs. Joseph L. Campbell of Denver and the late Mr. Campbell. He was graduated from Yale University and has his master's degree from the U. of Colorado. He is affiliated with Beta Theta Pi. The newlyweds both are active in Young Republicans, he being past president of the local group and state regional vice president; she is first vice president of Long Beach group and secretary of Los Angeles County organization. Following a honeymoon in Denver, the couple will reside at 4219 E. 4th St.

Ebell in Irish Food So-So, but Ah the Scenery

Blarney but he was full of device and evasions, never fulfilling his promises till the queen cried in disgust, "Blarney, Blarney, what he says, he does not mean. It is the usual blarney."

"The new fashion look is a two-trend look of casual and feminine styling," said Grace Schick in announcing her fall designer's collection to be previewed at the Ebell clubhouse.

Miss Schick will show the collection in a "Jet Flight of Fashion" show under the sponsorship of Group Y of Ebell Friday at 1 p.m.

Ensembles using the over-b blouse and tunic will underline the casual look. Wide loose coats and bulky sports-wear also are featured.

THE FEMININE look makes use of discreet, uncluttered designing. The waist is lowered and slim slightly shirred skirts and dresses patterned along princess lines are popular.

After-five wear is more opulent. Beading, sequins and a lavish use of fur are added as figure accents. Members of the Ebell group will model.

KILLARNEY is another lovely spot but I'm afraid there it is fashion rather than scenic beauty that I recall tenderly. At a broad place in the road as one comes over the pass before descending on the lake is a stand called Ladies View and at this stand they sell delectable sweaters and scarves. Lovely soft hand-woven mohair stoles and the thick handknit Irish sweaters called "bawneen". They're a rich creamy oatmeal color, warm and smart. The prices at the stand are reasonable. Always fatal. If you see one thing you like and it's expensive you either buy only one or refrain altogether. If the item is cheap you think, why there's nothing to this, I'll take several. When they present the bill you go into shock.

Our longest stay has been at a place called Ballynahinch Castle. The castle is, actually, a big old country house set on a rise of land overlooking a lovely winding river. It is a little shabby and the service is friendly rather than efficient but it's homely and comfortable and we met some very pleasant people, English and Americans. The whole point of Ballynahinch is the fishing but the weather for Ireland has been extraordinarily fine. We only drive through two or three showers a day. The rest of the time the sun shines, the rivers are comparatively low and the trout and salmon are laughing their heads off at the tourists so expensively equipped with rod and reel and fly.

AS I WRITE we are stopping at a delightful inn, a small country house this time, called Ardnamona on the banks of Lough Eske. We asked for a room with bath and got it, literally. The tub is in one corner. The Lough is a fair sight and as we drove in a man who has been here three days told us he hasn't caught a thing.

Marett-Ayers United in Methodist Nuptials

A picture of youthful beauty, Joan Ayers exchanged wedding vows with James Raymond Marett recently in a double ring ceremony in East Long Beach Methodist Church with the Rev. Francis B. Baldwin officiating before 200 guests. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Ayers, 828 Coronado Ave., was escorted to the white flower-decked altar by her father. She wore a gown of white candlelight satin with ballerina length bell-shaped skirt made by her mother. Her lace bordered illusion veil was held by a pearl tiara and she wore a strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom. She carried white rosebuds atop a Bible.

Dorothy Ann West was her cousin's maid of honor. She wore yellow brocade and carried a cascade of yellow roses. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Marett, 219 Granada Ave., chose Allan Tebbetts as his best man. Ushers were Victor Willits and Larry Rhoads.

THE NEWLYWEDS both were graduated from Wilson High School. The bride attended LBSC where she was a charter member of Delta Gamma, president of Tillicum, sophomore women's honorary organization, and was elected to the national journalistic honorary society. During the summer she portrayed Peter Pan at Disneyland.

Following their honeymoon in Northern California the young couple will reside in Berkeley where they will complete their education at U. of California. The bridegroom is a member of Delta Sigma Phi.

Family Told of Engagement, Wedding Plans

William Varec of Inglewood announced engagement of his daughter, Patricia Ann, to Philip Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson of Lakewood, at a recent family dinner party. Setting for the announcement event was the Inglewood home of the bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. Walter Lippert.

Party guests also learned of the couple's plans for an Oct. 15 wedding ceremony in First Methodist Church of Inglewood.

Miss Varec received her early schooling in Norristown, Pa., later attending Juniata College in Huntingdon, Pa. Her fiancé is an alumnus of Banning High School, Wilmington.

Plan Big National Show

Two days of competitive horsemanship, gay outdoor parties, trick riding by a member of a famous circus family and a "Horse Opera Ball" are a portion of the gala weekend ahead in Portuguese Bend.

Horse owners and admirers will throng Saturday and Sunday to Portuguese Bend Riding Club on Narcissa Drive to witness the 1960 Portuguese Bend National Horse Show. Proceeds from the exciting event will be donated by the Peninsula Committee of the Children's Hospital to the hospital's convalescent home. Mrs. John G. Davidson and Mrs. James C. Franks are co-chairmen of the show.

JUNIOR SHOW at 8 a. m. Saturday will be followed by a coke party at the "sea-horse trough", refreshment area under the trees close by the show ring.

Whimsy will be prevalent Saturday night in the courtyard of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Yardley Warner Jr. for the Horse Opera ball. Guests in ballgowns of the early 1900's will stroll in a gallery of famed horses framed in rococo gold, after being transported by a motorized San Francisco cable car from the parking area.

AN OPERA SUPPER at 11 p.m., gaslight era entertainment and dancing in the courtyard will follow.

Eight stake classes will compete in the open show Sunday at 9 a.m., along with classes of hunters, jumpers and Shetland ponies. Manager and announcer for the events will be Allen Ross, well-known in horse show circuits.

Cocktails and finger buffet will be served immediately after the last Sunday event.

Trick rider Pat North Emert of the North-Ringling circus, will perform both days. Another feature will be a display of antique driving rigs owned by Evan Shaw of Manhattan Beach.

President of the Peninsula Committee this year is Mrs. Lowell Dryden.

HORSE SHOW ON HORIZON

Eagerly awaiting 1960 Portuguese Bend National Horse Show Saturday and Sunday at Portuguese Bend Riding Club are Mrs. Howard Coale Jr. and Mrs. Charles Houghton, committee members of Peninsula Committee of Children's Hospital, and Polly Franks astride Firefly. Drawing some 300 top exhibitors, show will benefit Convalescent Home of Children's Hospital, Los Angeles.

LINGERIE'S HER LINE

Advocates Boudoir Chic

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK—It may be the age of the bikini on the beach, but it's the age of modesty in the boudoir.

So says Mrs. Sylvia Pedlar, a veteran designer often called the "Christian Dior of the lingerie world." Mrs. Pedlar, who this week won another award for her pioneering in lingerie design, says it always is surprising to her how daring women are in beach apparel... and how demure in their nighties.

"I THINK," she said, in an interview, "that men like their wives demure... prefer them with a fresh, scrubbed little girl look. Of course, mine is the woman's viewpoint."

Mrs. Pedlar, a partner in Iris Lingerie, which she helped to found 30 years ago, won an "Oscar" for "distinguished service in the field of fashion" at the 23rd Annual Neiman-Marcus Fashion Exposition in Dallas this week.

When she began designing in 1930, lingerie styles were pretty static—bias cut, pastel satin or crepe, and lace trim. But she has helped to make underwear as varied and glamorous as outerwear.

SHE HELPED to revive the peignoir and the long-sleeves nightgown. She brought back embroidered batiste and has made fine cotton of all types a luxury lingerie fabric.

She introduced the ballet length nightgown with matching coat; nightgowns with stoles instead of bed-jackets for shoulder covering; the "baby doll" pajama, with short tops and bloomer bottoms.

"To me, a woman's underwear wardrobe should be just as varied as her outerwear," said Mrs. Pedlar. "Variety keeps her — and her husband — from getting bored."

J. W. McKee Weds in Eastern Ceremony

Joseph William McKee, son of Mrs. William H. McKee, 6567 Falcon Ave., and Phyllis Lindsey McKie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. McKie of Reading, Mass., were united in marriage in a recent ceremony in First Congregational Church chapel of Reading.

The mother of the bridegroom journeyed East for the wedding as did Kenneth McKie of Manhattan Beach, who served as best man. The newlyweds plan to make their home in Southern California following their honeymoon in New York City and on Nantucket Island.

THE BRIDE was given in marriage by her father. She wore ivory silk peau de soie with a chapel train and an illusion veil attached to a delicate seed pearl headpiece. Martha McKie was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Carol Messerlian and Rosalie Osmolski. The guests were seated by Dallas Hampton of Framingham, Mass., and Alan McKie of Stoneham, Mass.

The bridegroom was graduated from Woodbury College and California College of Commerce. His bride attended the U. of Vermont and is an alumna of Green Mountain College and Kath-erin Gibbs School.

Mrs. Joseph W. McKee

Debutantes

Judith Gayle and Patricia Jon Munoz, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Munoz of 6709 Monlaco Rd., were among the 18 debutante provisionals introduced to patrons and patronesses of the Debutantes of Southern California at an invitation tea last week in the downtown Los Angeles Athletic Club.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON
I. P. T. Women's Editor

While Women's Editor Iola Masterson is on vacation this column is being written by Betty Wentworth.

A red-carpet type welcome was arranged last eve by Margaret and Barrie Stimson at their home on California. The address is important as you will see.

Welcomes were two couples who are about to become neighbors of the Slimsons. Of course Margaret and Hal Beckley have lived just down the street, but they're moving closer and were most deserving of a hearty welcome, the Stimsons figured. They'll make the switch in October.

The other couple is Kit and Jack Cole who are coming from up around Piedmont in the northern bay area. They're deep in matching colors and all the detail of redecorating, but expect to be freshly ensconced next week.

Friends assembled 60 strong in the garden where bright yellow cloths covered tables centered with gay yellow and green blossoms. Helping keep the party machinery running smoothly were Sharon and Bob Henry, the Stimsons' daughter and son-in-law, and Judy and Jim Hillman.

ANOTHER EVENT designed around neighborhood friends will be the get-together of her sewing club at Baba Graham's mid-week. It's very casual, a bring-your-own sandwich, we provide the dessert, sort of affair. They meet monthly and sew or swim and discuss children, pets, menus and husbands, too, maybe. Among the 18 or so on hand will be Betty Spath, Pat Van de Water, Marge Conley, Virginia Cords, Laddie Macerate and Norma Craig.

THAT LOVELY AROMA arising from Dolores and Willis Kerr's patio in Los Altos one recent evening was drifting up from their busy barbecue where tasty morsels were prepared for hungry Rick Racker provisionals

(the entire class) and their hungry husbands.

In addition to Pat Brennan, provisional chairman and Rick Racker veep, and her husband, John, others achieving contented and well-fed expressions were Liz and Bob Barmeyer, Doris and Victor Cross, Audrey and Ray Green, Georgiana and Pat Hamilton, Beverly and Jim McCormick, Louise and Jim Neuner, Celia and Dave Tallichet, Jann and Joe Whisenant, and Harriet and Reid Williams.

SIX COUPLES of ardent divot-digging devotees (or perhaps I should dub them putting pals par excellence) combined forces recently for a marvelous two week stay at Jasper. They whipped up by jet, train, boat and/or limousine drawn by the magnet of the fine golf courses at Jasper as well as Banff.

They even had a professional photographer trail them in a golf cart to immortalize the adventure on film. Well, the movies have been developed and the aforesaid group again were assembled Thursday night by Ann and Jim Wood for a dinner party out on Virginia Road and a hilarious viewing of themselves in action.

Among those watching variously with pride or with secret vows to get off for a few quick lessons with the pro immediately were Jean and Bill Kinley, Edie and Paul Albert, Mary and Dave Lewis, Margaret and Barrie Stimson and Caye and Scrub Elliott.

WORD KEEPS trickling in about the terrific St. Mary's Guild party last weekend at Georgia and Frende Combs'. It was their annual fall soiree for husbands, and was a Japanese festival this year. There were little cherry blossoms on the tables, a delicate Ming tree floating serenely in the pool, flickering lanterns and bright Oriental paper fish producing a most effective backdrop. Hilda Welton was in charge, appropriately garbed in a black and red kimono and obi. Also kimonoed was Virginia Brennan with husband, Jim, making a remarkably tail Japanese.

Choir Heralds Nuptials

Mrs. James H. Stellar

Clear young voices of choir boys set a mood of solemn beauty in St. Luke's Episcopal Church for the recent wedding of Virginia Jean Crager and James Holloway Stellar. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Harris Crager, 3951 California Ave., the bride was escorted by her father.

The bridal gown of silk organza trimmed with Alencon lace was styled with bouffant skirt terminating in a sweeping train.

Short pale blue taffeta gowns and matching hair bows were worn by the bride's sister, Genevieve Crager, maid of honor; Mrs. Donald Bauermeister, Mrs. Charles P. Luper Jr., Barbara Wheeler, Florine Trombetta of Santa Rosa, and Janet Heter of Atherton.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Thurlow Stellar, 126 Orizaba Ave., formerly of San Marino. Dr. Richard E. Stellar was his brother's best man, and seating guests were Donald Bauermeister, Joseph B. Renn Jr., Lawrence D. Lamb, James W. Martin and Frank D. Wallace.

THE NEWLYWEDS were greeted by their friends at a reception in Virginia Country Club. They left for a honeymoon in northern California and will reside in Long Beach.

The new Mrs. Stellar was graduated from Polytechnic High School and attended Long Beach City College where she was affiliated with AWS and Ramayana. She also attended Long Beach and San Jose State Colleges pledging Gamma Phi Beta.

The bridegroom was graduated from Harvard School, attended Occidental College and is an alumnus of the University of Arizona.

J. S. Watkins Weds Miss Byrd

Honeymooning in Acapulco and Mexico City following their recent wedding in Lakewood Village Community Church are Mr. and Mrs. John Shipton Watkins Jr. (Carolyn Ruth Byrd). The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Arthur Vivian Anderson, 2741 Oregon Ave., and was given in marriage by her stepfather.

The rites drew bridal party members from near and far. Matron of honor was Mrs. Nelson Wright, and attendants included Sarah Kepner, Honolulu; Mrs. Timothy Eysen, Wichita Falls, Texas; Mrs. Phillip Durian, Grand Junction, Colo.; Pi Beta Phi sorority sisters of the bride at the U. of Colorado of which she is an alumna; and Mrs. Scott Jones.

THE BRIDEGROOM is the son of the John S. Watkins Sr., 23 Palermo Wk. James Watkins was his brother's best man, and ushering were William Strang, Boston; George Houston, Wichita, Kan.; John Niesley, Manhasset, N. Y.; Jerald Meyers, Beta Theta Pi brothers of the bridegroom at the U. of Colorado; and Bruce Strobbridge.

The new Mrs. Watkins was graduated from Polytechnic High School and her husband from Wilson.

Youthful Pianists Will Entertain Symphony Guild

Hadley and Peter Caneer, 14-year-old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph P. Caneer, will play a half-hour program for two pianos before Long Beach Symphony Guild members on Thursday at 10 a. m. at the home of Mrs. Wendell I. Trafzer, 2609 Radnor Ave.

The Caneer family has two pianos in its home. Since the boys began studying piano seven years ago, they have devoted much of their time to ensemble study as well as solo work. They are pupils of Ethel Willard Putnam, piano, and Francis Frothingham, theory and composition.

THE YOUNG performers are freshmen at St. Anthony's High School and will be members of the high school band under W. H. Plummer. For their program they have chosen "Carillon" and second movement of D minor concerto by Mozart; "Wedding Day at Troldhaugen," Grieg; second movement of Saint-Saens' G minor concerto and "Jamaican Rhumba," Benjamin.

Following an informal coffee hour, Mrs. John Lungren, president, will report on the national convention of the American Symphony Orchestra League which she attended. Plans will be discussed for a benefit bridge later in the year.

October Art Festival

Artists, friends and families of the Southern California art world are invited to Catalina Island to attend the annual gathering of artists at Avalon Oct. 7 to 9.

The Second Annual Assembly of Artists, co-ordinated by Bob and Mary Comara and sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce at Avalon, will take place during the Indian Summer festivities.

Speakers will be Francis Nugent, art educator, staff of the Los Angeles County Museum; Kenneth Ross, director L. A. Municipal Art land, dean Chouinard Art Institute Faculty; Clinton Adams, artist, teacher and associate director of the Tamarind Lithography Workshop.

Artists are invited to bring canvases for a judged and popular exhibition along the bay. A special sailing of the 1900-passenger "S.S. Catalina" has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Oct. 7 to take artists to Avalon.

Controversial Drama Next at Off-Broadway Theater

"The Playboy of the Western World" will open Friday at Off-Broadway Theater, 211 Lime Ave. This play, by J. M. Synge, probably has caused more controversy than any other modern drama.

The 1907 premiere at the Abbey Theater in Dublin, created resentment among the Irish people. Riots broke out during the first performances.

The play deals with rustics who admire a weak and unimpressive stranger because they believe he has murdered his father. Because of Synge's powerful satire on the superstition and brutality of the peasantry, the show was labeled dangerous and a slur on the people of Ireland. Impartial critics, however, have hailed it as a considerable achievement.

HEADING the cast of the Off-Broadway production is Ron Hogue as Christy Mahon, the playboy, and Pat Henley as Págeen Mike, his love interest. Hogue is associate to the executive director, Will Dimmitt, who also is playing a major role.

Others in the cast are Lorna Kruger as the Widow Quinn, George Greer as Shawn Keough, David Stewart as Michael James, Tom Puckett as Philly Jackson and Henry Dankowski as Jimmy Farrell. Tavern girls are Caryl Dunavan, Toni Shay, Pat Lieberman and Gail Caisson.

"Playboy of the Western World" will be presented Friday and Saturday for a four-week run. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

'Evenings' Series Set

Season tickets for Long Beach City College's 1960-61 "Evenings at Eight" series are now on sale in the Lakewood campus bookstore fountain, 4901 E. Carson St. In addition to the six regular programs, season subscribers will receive special rates for the season "extra" featuring the Jose Greco dance company on Feb. 20.

Pianist-composer Andre Previn opens the series on Oct. 18. Other outside attractions will be former editor of the humor magazine "Punch", Malcolm Muggeridge, on Nov. 19; Emily Kimbrough on March 10, and Meredith and Rini Willson on May 5.

City College Schola Cantorum will present "Chorale for Christmas" on Dec. 16; the season concludes with a major college drama production May 19-20.

Mail order forms also are available.

Piano, Violin Classics on New LPs at Library

Piano and violin selections are important additions to the record section at the Main Library this week.

Among those received were: Walter Gieseking playing the complete cycle of Beethoven Sonatas; "Concerto in A Minor," by Grelg with Philippe Entremont at the piano; "Sonata in D Major for Two Pianos" of Mozart played by Robert and Gaby Casadesus; Schubert's "Fantasia in C Major" with Leonard Shure; "Music of the Masters" with David Spaerton; "Polonaise" with Lorin Hollander, pianist, and "Rhapsody in Blue" by Gershwin with Leonard Bernstein at the piano and conducting the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

The violin sonatas of Corelli, Tartini and Vivaldi are played by Toshiya Eto, noted Japanese violinist. "Concerto in D for Violin" by Tchaikovsky; Beethoven's "Sonata No. 5" and the Debussy "Prelude No. 12" are played by Nathan Milstein, violinist, in the album "The Art of Milstein." Brahms "Sonata No. 3 in D Minor for Violin and Piano" and the Bach "Partita No. 3 in E" are played by Jaime Laredo, violinist.

Phonograph records may be borrowed from the Main Library for a two-week period.

Beaumont to Tell of Antarctic

By VERA WILLIAMS
1, PT. Art Editor

Long Beach Art Association starts the fall with a big meeting!

Arthur Beaumont, marine artist who returned recently from a painting cruise in the Antarctic with the Navy, will address a dinner meeting Tuesday in Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Blvd.

Beaumont, a former president of the association, will tell his experiences painting under sub-zero conditions.

He is the only artist who has painted at both the North and South Poles and is believed to be the only artist who has had an exhibition in the Antarctic.

A social hour is slated for 6 p.m. on the terrace, with dinner at 7 p.m. and the program at 8:30 p.m.

LUCILE BROKAW of Pacific Palisades, whose work has been displayed in many galleries and won a number of awards, will judge the Art Fair Sept. 25 at Bixby Park, it was announced Saturday by William F. LaVallee, chairman. The Art Fair, sponsored by the Long Beach Art Association will be open to all Southland artists.

"The sky is the limit in this outdoor show," said LaVallee. "There is no limit to the number of entries—oils, watercolors, drawings, crafts. Each artist may enter as many items as he or she wishes. Artists must provide their own stands, easels, etc."

"Let's make this a real outing for the 'World of Art' and an annual event."

Entry blanks have been supplied art organizations. Extra blanks may be obtained from LaVallee, 3843 E. Wilton St.

MRS. PAT JONES, president of the Artists League of Seal Beach announces a showing of students' work from summer classes for two weeks at the Seal Beach Gallery, Ocean Blvd. and Main St., Seal Beach. Gallery hours are 1 to 5 and 7 to 10 p.m. daily. Coffee is served. Instructors are Darwin Duncan, oil painting, seascapes, landscapes; Cay Drachnik, contemporary; Dr. Bela Biro, portraits; Marjorie Vanderlip, fashion illustration and costume design.

CALIFORNIA'S 21 historic missions, as captured on canvas and in photographs before the end of the 19th century, are shown in the Los Angeles County Museum. They are paintings by Edwin Deakin, British-born Berkeley artist, and photographs by Adam Clark Vroman, pioneer California photographer. The exhibition will continue until Christmas.

FIVE California women artists who say they have painted and sold more than a thousand paintings in the past five years, are showing their work in the Harvey Marlowe Gallery, 8701 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles. The are Viola Allen, Kay Blaco, Carol Eyttinge, Sande Gookins and Rose Purdy, who paints under the name of Lucintha.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

The Hollywood Bowl 38th season of "Symphonies Under the Stars" is now but a memory to thousands of music lovers. Some of the memories are thrilling, some disappointing — but on the whole, they are happy ones. Hollywood Bowl has become an institution, dear to the hearts of Southern Californians, of which they are justifiably proud. Its natural setting of close-encircling mountains is enhanced by perfect weather; cool star-dusted nights, with seldom a drop of rain or a molesting mosquito. And this summer we have been further thrilled by the nightly course across the heavens of the golden satellite "Echo."

THERE has been one jarring feature, however, mid all this perfection. This summer, more than ever before, there has been frustrating and exceedingly annoying traffic of airplanes across the Bowl—two to four during a performance, and always, it seemed, during the quietest passages of the music. Steps should be taken to do away with this nuisance next season.

Of the 21 concerts I attended (I do not review the Popular Night Concerts), many were outstandingly fine. A great innovation this year was the engaging of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Leonard Bernstein. It was but natural that one made comparisons.

IF OUR own Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra suffered by comparison, there is a good reason. The New York Philharmonic Orchestra has been playing for several years under one conductor. The musicians understand one another perfectly, whereas our orchestra men are subjected to a change of conductors every few weeks, and we have a whole season before us of guest conductors. A great symphony orchestra cannot be built under such a system!

Except for Ormandy, Bernstein and Steinberg, the conductors were disappointing. Disappointing too, was the audience attendance, as compared to other seasons, although 330,500 people did attend. It was interesting to note that when the conductors were exceptional and the programs excellent, the crowd was large. Jascha Heifetz, violinist, playing with the New York Philharmonic under Bernstein's direction drew the largest audience — 18,023, and deservedly so.

OTHER high lights of the season were the superb performance of Verdi's "Requiem" conducted by Eugene Ormandy, with the Roger Wagner Chorale; a tremendously moving performance of Mahler's "Resurrection Symphony" directed by William Steinberg; and Mary Costa's sensational success, also with Steinberg conducting. Dorothy Kirsten proved in her magnificent performance of "Madame Butterfly" that

Film Dates Announced

Rene Clair's "The Italian Straw Hat," produced in France and "Two Fars," early Laurel and Hardy picture, will be shown Thursday at 8:15 p. m. in Hill Junior High School auditorium, 6590 E. Anaheim St. This is the first program on a series of classic films to be shown by the newly-organized Long Beach Film Society.

Other programs will be Vittoria De Sica's "The Children Are Watching Us," and Marcel Pagnol's "Jofroi," Oct. 20; Sergei Eisenstein's "The Old and the New" and Harold Lloyd's "Step Live-ly," Dec. 1; R. A. Stemmle's "The Berliner" and Norman McLaren's "Rythmetic," Dec. 13; Erich von Stroheim's "The Merry Widow" and Mack Sennett's "Teddy at the Throttle," Jan. 5; George Stoney's "All My Babies" and Georges Rouquier's "Farrebique," Jan. 19.

Information concerning membership rates may be obtained by writing to the society, P. O. Box 8091, Long Beach.

'Lady Chooses' to Open at Community Playhouse

"The Lady Chooses," by William McCleery, will have its formal first night Friday, and informal opening Saturday at Long Beach Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

Kathy Davis Crump will play the leading feminine role as Frances Parry, portrayed on Broadway by Faye Emerson, and on television by Helen Hayes.

THE McCLEERY comedy has a political plot but no "message". It is the story of a charming, somewhat naive woman, who plays around with politics to fill her time in her New York suburban town until a personable but slightly shady ex-governor persuades her that she is needed as a candidate for Congress.

Cliff Medaugh portrays the persuasive governor. The husband of Mrs. Parry is played by William Dusablon, who just completed the part of Ferdinand in "The Mighty Male". James Jay, best known for his Civic Opera leading roles, is a politician.

Supporting these main characters are a housekeeper played by Katherine Shuman and Gladys Manu, a young newspaperman played by Fred Capouch Jr., and feminine reporters played by Ina Koester, Betty Seekins, Claudia Danielson, and Helen Chapman.

Performances will be given Thursdays at 7:45 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. for seven weeks.

Leon Dallin Wins Praise of Texans

Texas music critics had only praise for a work by Long Beach composer Leon Dallin when it was performed in the Contemporary Arts Association Festival of New Music in Houston recently.

The Houston Post's critic, Hubert Rousel, said, "The evening's freshest and most gratifying music was encountered in the form of a string quartet by Leon Dallin... It is a firm, transparent, masterfully organized and frequently lovely piece of music."

Ann Holmes, fine arts editor of The Houston Chronicle, called Dallin's "String Quartet in F" ... trim and immediately communicative.... Dallin's quartet has an urgency and a kind of burst of song within a disciplined framework, and employs a style which is only passingly dissonant."

Dr. Dallin, associate professor of music at Long Beach State College, attended the festival to hear his work played by the New Art String Quartet.

College Students Wed, Establish Homes

Late summer weddings find several couples returning to various college campuses. Enrolled at Long Beach State College this fall are Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Childers (Sally Word) whose marriage took place at Lakewood Village Community Church.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Neil E. Word, Long Beach, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Childers of Lakewood.

A crown of seed crystals and pearls holding a dainty finger-tip length veil complemented the bridal gown of tiered embroidered nylon organdy.

Attendants were Mrs. Nancy Whatley, sister of the bride, matron of honor, and Janice Radford, Linda Ayala, Sue Brock and Gail Hendrix, bridesmaids. Flower girl was the bride's niece, Cathy Murray.

John Desmond served as best man. Guests were seated by Clark Childers, the bridegroom's brother, Gary Smith, Bernard Palli, Robert Crain and Mike Finney. Sheila and Mike Finney were candlelighters.

Mrs. Fred W. Childers

Mrs. Lee M. Brown

Mrs. Michael W. Sharrar

Mrs. Emerson L. Reynard Jr.

Both graduates of LBCC, the newlyweds are living in Long Beach.

Brown-Moisey
Continuing their education at the University of Iowa where the bridegroom has received a graduate assistantship in the journalism department are Mr. and Mrs. Lee M. Brown. Their double ring wedding took place at St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

Before her marriage the bride was Linda Ann Moisey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Moisey, 4550 Pepperwood Ave. A graduate of Poly High School, she was prominent on Long Beach State College campus. She is affiliated with Alpha Phi, Phi Beta, Califas, received the 49er award and was cultural commissioner for Associated Students.

The bridegroom, was graduated from Wilson High School and LBSC. He was a member of Alpha Phi Gamma and Blue Key, received the Viking Award, Prospector Award, was editor-in-chief of the Forty-Niner, student body treasurer and both he and his bride were listed in the "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Morton B. Brown, 4850 Sunfield Ave.

A princess style gown of Chantilly over satin was chosen by the bride, and a pearl encrusted crown held her veil.

In cafe-au-lait sheaths were Mrs. James Loomis, matron of honor, Mrs. David Taylor, Nellie Bell, Sharon Dargavel and Brenda Moisey, attendants. Jacqueline Garrison was flower girl.

Vern R. Brown served his brother as best man. Guests were escorted by Glen O. Heyl, Leu Tower and John F. Cooney.

Sharrar-Miller
Berkeley is the home address of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wesley Sharrar (Carole Lee Miller) following a trip to Laguna, LaJolla and Carmel. They exchanged wedding bands in Los Altos Methodist Church.

Daughter of Mark Miller of Phoenix, Ariz., the bride wore a gown of pleated satin with lace bodice and over-jacket. Pearled orange blossoms caught the folds of her six-tiered veil.

Ann Miller, the bride's sister, was maid of honor in pale green brocade. The bridesmaids, in yellow brocade, were Marilyn Alu, Sue Ann Baker and Paula Ritzman.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sharrar, 1840 Senasac Ave., the bridegroom was attended by Mike Apra, best man, and James Sharrar, Dan Holton and James Radford, ushers.

Both the bride and bridegroom were graduated from Millikan High School. The bride attended LBSC and the bridegroom is attending UC, Berkeley. He is a member of De Molay.

Dear Abby Where'd Nice Girls Go?

DEAR ABBY: I have the reputation for being a pretty smart guy in my field (electronics) but when it comes to the fair sex I must be a real square. I always thought women were supposed to be cherished, cared for and trusted. Now I find that all my bachelor friends are slipping around with married women and the married men are stepping out on their wives. Aren't there any nice girls left who are interested in a good honest man who is on the level?—SQUARE.

DEAR SQUARE: You aren't "square"—you need a new circle of friends. There are plenty of nice girls who would go to the moon for a man who's on the level."

DEAR ABBY: I have wanted to be a nurse ever since I was a little girl. I will graduate from high school this mid-year and want to go into nurse's training. My father says it is a childish dream and it's time I grew up and got over it. He says he doesn't want his daughter giving dirty old men baths and carrying bed pans. I tell him I want to serve humanity and he says, "So be a waitress!"

I am so heart-broken, Abby. How can I get my father to see it my way? Or is my decision childish? —LOVES NURSING.

DEAR LOVES NURSING: Your decision is far from childish—it is mature, admirable and completely unselfish. There should be more dedicated young women like you in this world.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to put in my two cents' worth about the lady who complained about her neighbor across the hall burning the toast every morning because her husband liked it that way. Well, I like burnt toast, too. And the more it's burnt, the better I like it. I've been married for 36 years to a man who works in the stock yards, and burnt toast smells like Chanel 5 to me. I say, the smell won't kill her, and as the old Portuguese saying goes, "Quem fa mal e que se munda"—which means, "If you're uncomfortable—move." —LOVES BURNT TOAST.

South America In the Long Beach Area Intrigues Traveler Susan's Window Shopping

Having crossed the equator by ship and flown over it by plane, Mrs. Grace J. Ewart, 118 Pomona Ave., has had the recent experience of virtually standing on the equator. A visit to a monument marking the spot in Quito, Ecuador, allowed her to complete the land, sea and air experience.

The traveler has recently returned from an extensive tour of South America where the garb of the natives interested her as much as the geography.

Several high lights of her trip were flying over the Andes, walking through the Inca ruins in Peru, and visiting the 12,000-foot-high capital of La Paz, Bolivia.

Variations in Use of Finesse Art

Today's hand is rather similar to yesterday's in that the key play is a finesse in a suit in which the defenders hold the ace-jack and several others. It is different from yesterday's obligatory finesse in that there is a real finessing situation.

is in no jeopardy. The most he can lose is one club trick and two spades, but even in rubber bridge they do give points for overtricks and if you can make one you want it.

SOUTH might fool around and return a club to see if he can coax a spade lead from his opponents, but even in duplicate you don't fool around with sure games so South draws trumps with three leads and then cashes one of his diamonds if he feels like it. In any event he gets ready to play a spade from his own hand toward dummy's king. If West held the ace he just might play it but West has no ace and no problem and East's ace takes the king. It does not matter what East plays now. Eventually South will go over to dummy's king of diamonds; lead a spade and finesse the ten spot against the jack. The finesse works and South has his overtrick.

WOMEN PRAISE TECNIQUE RESULTS & APPLICATION EASE

"I tried rinses but they'd go wrong. Technique gives my hair the color I've always wanted." Mrs. F. C., New York

"Technique is so easy to apply . . . no more trouble than a shampoo. You could use it on a child's hair." Mrs. A. R., Miami

"Technique's results are positively heavenly. There's no obvious color change with Technique and nothing to keep up." Mrs. O. H., Chicago

"Gray hair was a problem till I tried Technique. Now gray blends into my natural color. Each time I use it my hair seems to improve." Mrs. K. L., Santa Fe

"TECNIQUE Color-Tone"

All the ease and gentleness of a fine color rinse . . . but look, it lasts up to 8 weeks!
Blends naturally . . . no drastic change, no artificial look!

Now available here for home use . . . the first hair coloring to combine rinse mildness with long-lasting convenience and conditioning benefits. The only hair beautifier with Actogen . . . an exclusive color-conditioner that permits gentle highlighting and accenting of natural color but can't wash out, streak or rub off. No touch-up problems, either, because Technique® creates beautiful highlights in your own hair color.

Unlike ordinary color rinses, tints and dyes, Technique Color-Tone can never look less than beautifully natural. It softly touches hair with color. There's no drastic change. Always your color is there. But unlike a rinse, Technique penetrates hair to last up to 8 weeks.

BLENDS NATURALLY

Technique always looks natural because of exclusive Actogen. This mild creaming agent works color into individual hair strands instead of just coating the surface. That's why Technique can blend out streaks and blend in with new hair growth. There's never a telltale "dye line."

CONDITIONS, TOO

Technique also conditions your hair! Fine oils add luster, make it soft to the touch, and easy to manage. Apply Technique any time (even perfect right after a permanent) and gain new hair richness. Shampoo-simple, always the same beautiful results . . . Technique's color action stops automatically. So easy, so gentle you can use it for years and never see hair go harsh.

12 Technique Colors . . . you choose the one that becomes you naturally. Then, quick as a shampoo, new life

TECNIQUE WILL:
• Highlight, accent natural hair color.
• Last up to 8 weeks, often longer.
• Condition hair with fine oils.

TECNIQUE WON'T:
• Need touch-ups (never a "dye line").
• Harm hair, or add unnatural color.
• Wash out, streak or rub off.

and luster appear; your hair seems to glow with new beauty. So simple, so safe, such lovely results . . . complete satisfaction is guaranteed. Look for the Technique Color-Tone display at all leading drug and department stores. (also available as a moderately-priced salon service). SHULTON, 630 5th Ave., New York City. Price 2.00 plus tax.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

This Lemon Pie Is Pure Gold (en State!)

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Ind., P-T Food Editor

He's forever figuring on whatever is before him . . . be it a newspaper, magazine or napkin. And apparently, since today's Chef of the Week, James (Jim) Campbell, is district manager of Long Beach Golden State-Foremost Dairies, he has come up with the right answers.

Born in Canada, (Ontario), Campbell is one Canadian who isn't misguided in his pronunciation of "owul" and "abowut." He comes right out with them.

Having grown-up with all the "doing" of a small farm, Campbell came to California in 1924 and set up residence on his uncle's 50,000 acre cattle ranch in Paso Robles. There he did everything from herding cattle to laying telephone line. After two years he went to San Jose to complete his education.

FOLLOWING some practical experience in a mercantile and a land development company, he went to San Francisco. It was 1929, the year of the big depression. He was fortunate, however, to join the Golden State Co., and has been climbing with them ever since . . . first as office manager at San Luis Obispo, then as office and credit manager at Long Beach. It was in 1957 that he was appointed to his present position. He sees 110 trucks depart daily from the Long Beach plant loaded with 100,000 quarts of milk and 7,000 gallons of ice cream. Golden State-Foremost list 150 items among their products.

Campbell is particularly active in church work and holds the position as elder in the Parkcrest Church of Christ in Lakewood. He recently finished a five year term at Pacific Bible Seminary and has served as chairman of the board for three years.

INTERESTED in the health and welfare committee of the Long Beach Culinary Alliance, he has held the office of treasurer for many years. A Downtown Lion, he's a Mason and treasurer of Searchlight Masonic Lodge. They have one daughter, Mary Ann, just departing her teens.

Golf and more golf is his forte. He loves good food—but has to know what's in each dish that's served him. He dotes on dessert, and strange as it may seem, his recipe today is for lemon pie . . . not ice cream.

LEMON MERINGUE PIE

- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tbsps. cornstarch
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 3 egg yolks slightly beaten
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1 tbsps. butter
- 3 egg whites
- 6 tbsps. sugar
- Baked pastry shell

Scald milk and water in top of double boiler. Blend sugar, cornstarch and salt, add to milk and cook slowly until mixture begins to thicken, add beaten egg yolks, cook till thick, remove from heat and stir in lemon juice and butter. Cool slightly then pour into baked pastry shell.

Beat 3 egg whites until almost stiff. Add 6 tablespoons sugar while continuing to beat until stiff. Cover pie filling and bake in a slow oven, 300° for 30 min.

Attends Parents Wedding Fete

Mrs. Earl W. Wood, 1136 E. 3rd St., has returned from a trip to Hamilton, Ill., where she shared in observance of the 65th wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Cuerden.

Her sister, Mrs. A. O. Preil, the former Hazel Fitzgerald of Long Beach, and her husband, Capt. Preil of Corpus Christi, Texas, also attended.

After a jet flight to Chicago, Mrs. Wood enjoyed a brief visit with her niece, Mrs. Jeanne Fitzgerald Ormsbee, formerly of Long Beach.

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

by PLACER MINER

Two traditional affairs at Long Beach State College this week signal the start of another school year — AWS (Associated Women Students) first assembly Wednesday and the Hello Dance Friday.

In embarking on what shapes up as their most event-filled nine-months yet, the girls will gather at noon Wednesday in Lecture Hall 151 for an assembly beamed especially towards newcomers to the campus.

Various facets of the coeds' place in the Long Beach State picture will be explored in brief talks by Dean Lois J. Swanson, Dr. Elizabeth Nielson of the English staff, and Mrs. Norma Gibbs who divides her time between teaching at LBSC and being mayor of Seal Beach.

The program also has (1) AWS officers plugging their organization, (2) sign ups for committees, (3) introduction of the presidents of Califias and Tillicum (senior-junior and sophomore honorary service groups, respectively), and (4) a skit on campus "do's" and "don'ts."

Miss Margaret Schwartz, new activities advisor, will also be introduced during the proceedings which will be moderated by Lynda Sue Marks, AWS president.

So bring those sack lunches, girls, and gather in LH 151 Wednesday noon to learn the latest-and-the-straightest with the AWS at LBSC.

FRIDAY NIGHT sees a co-educational approach to the activities scene as the annual Hello Dance kicks off the 1960-61 social calendar.

Besides saying "hello" to each other, the expected 1,000 Staters will also be saying "hello" to their newly enlarged cafeteria and its expanded facilities for just such an occasion as the dance.

In keeping with the introductory theme for the evening, somewhere between the 8 p.m. starting time and the midnight finish, there will be brief introductions of student body VIP's, cheer leaders, song girls, and flag girls, and the cheer leaders will lead a yell.

As for the dance itself, the music will be furnished by the Versatones, admission (stag or drag) is by student body card, and campus wear is the accepted garb.

The whole affair comes under the jurisdiction of Social Commissioner Roy Hassett.

School Menus This Week

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of Sept. 19-23:

MONDAY: Spaghetti, southern style, chopped spinach, boysenberry sauce, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

TUESDAY: Hamburger, potato salad, sliced peaches, fresh tomato wedge and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Pizza pie, garden peas, applesauce with whipped topping, carrot sticks and milk.

THURSDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, cut green beans, sliced pineapple-cottage cheese salad with parsley, raisin bread and butter and milk.

FRIDAY: Macaroni and cheese casserole, lemon buttered beets, cantaloupe slice, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

The above items make up the elementary children's lunch 30 cents. Soup and salad from the junior-senior high school a la carte menu are sold in the elementary schools, but they may be purchased by the children only after they have purchased the tray lunch.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH MONDAY: Spanish rice, cut green beans, pear half with mandarin orange, toasted cheese special and milk.

TUESDAY: Chili beans, buttered spinach, Royale fruit cup with cherry garnish, French bread and butter and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Taco, buttered lima beans, cantaloupe slice, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

THURSDAY: Hot meat loaf sandwich, mashed potatoes with gravy, fruit gelatin, fresh tomato wedges and milk.

FRIDAY: Baked fish with creamed potatoes, tossed salad, sliced peaches, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Don't Let Her Rule You

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My wife kicked her mother out of our home a number of years ago. She hasn't spoken to her since. Doesn't speak to any of her relatives, matter of fact. Mad at mine.

Now I ask you, what should I do? Meow at her? Well, if I said "meow" I'd get a plate between my eyes or on my head. If I said "cat" to her I'd get killed outright. If it wasn't for the children, I'd leave her. It's hell to be married like this.

What do you think of a daughter who would kick her own mother out of the house?—CANT SAY SCAT

DEAR CANT SAY: I don't think much of a daughter who would kick her mother out, but I think less of a son-in-law who would put up with the abuse.

Take a firm stand, and if she throws plates you throw plates. At least assert yourself. The knowledge that she can rule you doesn't make her contented. Women are happier with a man they can respect. Tell the mouse to seat.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My boy friend came to dinner with us last week. I'm afraid he did not make a very good impression but he seemed so blissfully unaware of it.

You see, we are all Democrats and he is a rabid Republican. When Dad said something about the election Jim said, "You Democrats should be seen and not heard, sir!" Then he went on about how many Democrats had "minds like mules."

Dad was very angry but kept his temper rather well, I thought. Mother spoke up of course and said, "We'll have no politics discussed here." Then Jim said, "Naturally not, unless we're all Democrats."

It was just awful, Molly. I know my family won't let me see him again. And I hate sneaking off to meet a Republican. But what else can I do?

If he would write a nice little note and apologize and tell Dad he thought the Democrats are right, I believe he could fix things up. Should I advise him to?—MARSHA

DEAR MARSHA: You can advise him to, but when did you ever see a Republican that would change position—even for love? Or a Democrat?

Perhaps you can arrange for the young man to call on you when there is no chance of political argument with your dad. It's too bad when even a party can ruin a party.—M.M.

EVERYBODY LOVES A WARM BATH AND A PROFESSIONAL MASSAGE

IMAGINE!

A Trained Masseuse at Your Beck and Call 24 Hours a Day

That's what you'll have with a . . .

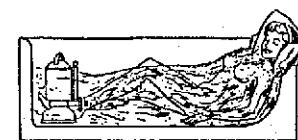

Jacuzzi
WHIRLPOOL BATH

Never before could your family enjoy professional whirlpool massage in the home bathtub. Before the development of the portable Jacuzzi, whirlpool massage was available only at clinics and expensive health clubs. Now your entire family can enjoy whirlpool benefits, in your home, for a few cents a day. It offers long-lasting relief from daily aches, pains, nervous tension, fatigue.

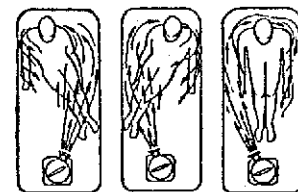

HOW IT WORKS . . .

You simply set the Jacuzzi unit into the bathtub and fill the tub with water. It starts automatically. In the morning, use cooler water and full force of the Jacuzzi to wake up the blood stream, the brain and the ambition. In the evening, use warm water and gentle hydromassage to calm jittery nerves, massage away pain, and prepare you for deep restful sleep. Use the Jacuzzi 15 to 20 minutes each time. You determine whether you want vigorous massage for stimulation or gentle massage for relaxation.

Don't Suffer Needless Pain

You relax in the tub of water. Like many tiny fingers, the moving water filled with millions of vibratory air bubbles massages every part of the body.

Hydromassage provides penetrating heat and massage at the same time to stimulate local blood circulation in painful areas of the body. It brings long-lasting relief from pains associated with

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Television is taking on a man-sized job with a special show designed for women.

Currently in the scripting is an hour-long documentary on sexual frigidity in women.

Televising the dramatized study of the formerly taboo topic should partially hush those critics who accuse television of "lack of courage."

Entitled "The Cold Woman," the hour-long program will be presented as a "Purex Special for Women" Oct. 14 on NBC-TV (channel 4).

The script will center on a woman whose second marriage is failing. She subsequently recognizes that her coldness is not a physical problem, but a reflection of her attitudes toward sex, men, herself and life in general.

TO GET THE MATERIAL FOR THE SCRIPT, tape-recorded interviews were made with scores of American women.

Authorities in marital and personal counseling were questioned. Transcripts of counseling sessions were examined.

Producers of the documentary label sexual frigidity as the "most epidemic sickness in our society, a major source of blame for thousands of marital break-ups."

Following presentation of the dramatized script, Dr. Lena Levine, a psychiatrist and a past president of the American Assn. of Marriage Counselors, will be interviewed.

The package presentation sounds like it could be more factual than sensational and I hope it is.

It's too bad, though, that the program is scheduled for afternoon airing—2 p.m. An evening time-slot would bring considerably more viewers to TV consideration of an existing problem whose existence is finally being recognized.

THERE'S ANOTHER ONE COMING UP for the "lack of courage" critics.

It deals with racial prejudice and discrimination as it affects minority groups living elsewhere than the South.

It's called "Cast the First Stone" and airs over ABC-TV (channel 7) on Sept. 27 at 9 p.m.

It concerns problems encountered by Negroes in Los Angeles and Chicago, Jews in Detroit, Puerto Ricans in New York, Mexicans, Japanese and Chinese in Los Angeles, and the Indians in the Midwest.

The commentator, John Daly, lays it right on the line. Says he:

"While the whole world ponders the problem of racial discrimination in the southern United States, it is not generally recognized that prejudice is a wide-spread actuality in this country outside the South.

"Yet experts estimate that nine out of ten Americans are guilty of prejudice, including many who are victims of it."

BUT LET'S NOT GO OVERBOARD on this courage kick. NBC-TV has refused to face its "Moment of Truth."

That's the title of an episode filmed abroad for the "Four Just Men" series.

It featured bullfight action and the American Humane Assn., consultants for the TV industry, saw red.

The episode was rejected.

I WATCHED THE OPENING "THRILLER" last Tuesday on channel 4 and found it had all the ingredients of a successful TV recipe.

But it got fouled up in the cooking.

Boris Karloff made a very presentable host. There was some excellent camera work, including the split-screen superimposing of the characters as they were introduced.

The acting in the opener, "The Twisted Image," was generally very good. Constance Ford, who portrayed the role of a disdainful sister of a weakling brother, was superbly hateful.

The script was well written and reflected considerable professional polish.

But the recipe lacked seasoning.

It missed the boat in the excitement department. It missed in the believable category. The people in it just seemed to be actors, not people.

If you reacted the same way, I don't think we should condemn the whole series for the opener.

With its starter, "Thriller" almost made the grade. There's a lot of talent—writing and acting—lined up for the upcoming episodes.

It's worth a second look.

Curtis Hopes to Poke Susskind in Nose

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tony Curtis hauled off with a flurry of verbal haymakers at producer David Susskind today, saying he'd punch Susskind in the nose the first time he sees the TV bigwig.

Since Susskind arrived in Hollywood to make a new movie he has been needling and criticizing everything in sight.

His particular targets have been Curtis, Jerry Lewis and Rock Hudson. In interviews and on his "Open End" video show, Susskind has gone out of his way to knock Curtis.

Tony has had enough.

"I've never met Mr. Susskind," Curtis said through clenched teeth, "and when I do I'm going to punch him right in the nose."

"HE'S BLASTED ME for having no talent and no taste. I don't know why he's picking on me. Maybe it's because I refused to go on his TV show. Why should I? He wasn't going to pay me anything."

"The tragedy of Mr. Susskind is that he has no talent. He specializes in making TV shows from great motion pictures. There's no trick to making a good program out of a top movie. But it takes a special lack of talent to turn a good picture into a lousy TV show."

"Maybe Susskind blasts me hoping I will prove him wrong by working in a movie for him. But even a no-talent guy like me has some standards."

With the gauntlet thus flung, Susskind replied:

"I've always believed that violence was the last recourse of an exhausted mind. If I'm not the biggest admirer of Tony Curtis' talent, I've never question his virility or strength. He is, in my book, a passionate amoeba."

ANNOUNCES A NEW sub-miniature marvel FOR THE DEAF

Come in, phone or write for exciting FREE book that reveals all the exciting facts! Higher fidelity hearing at natural ear-level, without glasses, for the hard of hearing. Unbelievably comfortable and inconspicuous... because it's 40% lighter, 31.8% smaller than Beltone's previous behind-the-ear aid. So powerful it even corrects many severe hearing losses. Stereophonic hearing.

'Riverboat' Partner Got Start in Serials

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

When the "Riverboat" comes around the TV bend for the second season Monday night, a new partner-pilot will be aboard.

The newcomer, Noah Beery Jr., is an oldtimer in the film business. The "Riverboat" series, which airs 7:30 p.m. on channel 4 (NBC-TV), brought him back to the lot location where he got his start.

It's called Revue Studios now, but it was Universal in 1934 when Beery, then 17, was hired for his first role.

"It was a serial called 'Heroes of the West,'" said Beery. "I remember I had a white buckskin outfit which was real natty."

"I HAD TO crawl through a field to the Indians and I ran into a bit of trouble."

"The field had been a cow pasture—recently—and the evidence remained. I got that natty buckskin badly stained but I still had to wear it for the filming of 12 more episodes."

Series were considered the "poor relations" of Universal Studio. But it was the financial return from the "poor relations" which kept the studio out of hock, according to Beery.

In addition to Westerns, jungle serials were very popular. Universal maintained a big zoo, "Jungle City," on the lot for its animal actors.

Beery remembers one of them in particular, a chimpanzee.

"HIS NAME WAS 'COY' but not his behavior," said Beery. "I played the lead in 'Jan of the Jungle,' sort of a juvenile Tarzan, and Coy and I did a lot of tree sitting."

"He wasn't content to just sit, though. He'd keep poking and picking at me."

"There were also several scenes in which we ran through the jungle and Coy tried to catch me. I was supposed to let him get close enough to touch me, then speed away."

"The only trouble was that Coy, when he got close enough to touch me, would hang on."

"Finally I had to oil my body to slip out of his grasp. I felt like a greased pig at a county fair."

"But there was one good thing about Coy. He had a wonderful screen personality."

BEERY'S FAVORITE serial was "Tailspin Tommy," in which he played the role of Skeeter. The producers found it so popular, they made a sequel.

Beery appeared in more serials than he can remember.

"It was very good training," he said. "It's hard to find something in the acting field now that I didn't do then."

In the acting field, particularly movies, he has more credits than his agent can remember. Some of the movies in which he starred include "Sergeant York," "Of Mice and Men," "Red River," "White Feather," "Cimarron Kid," "Jubal," "Guns of the Timberland" and his latest, "Inherit the Wind."

In television, he was featured as the clown in the "Circus Boy" series and played the title role last season in "The Jonas Murdock Story" on "Wagon Train."

HIS FATHER, a great actor in his own right, did not influence the son to follow the same career. Neither did his uncle, the late Wallace Beery.

"It was my own idea and I still love every bit of it," he said. "It's one of the three or four businesses left with real adventure."

He and his wife, Maxine, daughter of the late cowboy star, Buck Jones, have three children, Muffett, 19, Bucky, 15, and Melissa, 12.

His daughter has entered the commercial modeling field and "may" be interested in acting.

"I'd rather not see her in the acting field," said Beery. Why not?

THE LUNCHTIME interview was being conducted in the commissary of the Revue Studios and Beery, spooning his gelatin dessert, paused.

"Is this for the record?" he asked.

The answer was in the affirmative.

"Well," he said, "to put it mildly, it's a lousy environment for a girl—a lousy business."

"It's also a short-lived business for a girl. You see them come and go by the thousands."

He wouldn't mind, however, if his son chose to follow in his theatrical footsteps.

"A boy can see past the embroidery to the real work, challenge and satisfaction of the job," he said.

It was almost time to get back to shooting "Riverboat" and Beery gulped the last of his coffee.

A final question. What was the greatest hazard he faced in his career?

Beery grinned—that slow trademark "life-is-great" grin.

"Eating lunch," he answered. "Right here. This place used to be a log-cabin type of affair. There were black widow spiders everywhere."

Fall...1960

This is Fashion ... framed in fur

Buffums' take a fluid approach to fashion this fall, welcome changes that may at first startle you. The silhouette lightly skimming the
 played above understatement. Note:
The easy curve ... the relaxation of line in suits, coats, dresses
The bounty of pleats ... everywhere
The shorter skirt ... 1 1/2 inch below the knee, discreetly covering it
The shorter sleeve ... longer glove
The costume ... highly significant
The double-needle shoe ... pointed toe, narrow heel
The interplay of color ... coordinating as many as four in a single outfit
The rage for knits ... never so great
The precious browns ... antique green burnished gold ... the rose to purple vintage of the French grapes
This is fashion. Buffums' invite you to enjoy its excitement here!

Buffums' frame you in mink this year ...
 precious fur to make you look your loveliest.

OUR COVER

It is quite appropriate that pretty, vivacious Joan Cheryl Winklepleck should be photographed for Southland's cover cuddling this prize cross-bred lamb, for they are schoolmates, so to speak. Joan is one of the attractive sophomores at Mount San Antonio Junior College and Wooly (the lamb) is one of a blue-blooded flock maintained by the same school's animal husband-dry department. And both are attending the Los Angeles County Fair, now in progress in Pomona (see Page 7), Miss Winklepleck is one of a bevy of coeds forming the Royal Court of Agriculture and Wooly is a contender for a blue ribbon in the lamb judging. Miss Winklepleck is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Winklepleck of Pomona. Secretary of her college's Art Club, she has her heart set on becoming an artist.

Far out in space floats the planetoid Celestia and it's named for a Long Beach woman. Celestia was discovered and named for his mother by Dr. Fred Lawrence Whipple who graduated from Polytechnic High School and since has become the world's foremost authority on meteors. Dr. Whipple is living proof that geniuses in abstract thinking still can be warm and human. His story in next Sunday's Southland Magazine makes interesting reading.

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Please discuss STUART and STEWART. — T. P., A. H., E. W., Long Beach.

T. P., A. H., E. W.: STUART and its alternate spelling STEWART have been synonymous with royal Scotch and English families for centuries. The family is traced to Brittany, France, where the ancestor was the Count of Dol whose grandnephew, Walter, went to Britain about 1125 A.D. Walter was created High Steward of Scotland by King Malcolm IV in 1157. The surname Stuart or Stewart was taken from his professional title of prestige. Robert Stewart of this lineage was crowned king of Scotland in 1370. The succession continued down through James V, Mary Queen of Scots and her son who became James I of England. The present Queen Elizabeth II is descended from this family. The Stuart coat-of-arms has a band of checkered blue and silver squares across the center of a gold shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy and shield on SINGLETON. — W. S., Huntington Beach; P. S., Long Beach.

W.S., P.S.: SINGLETON through letter changes, was respelled from a 9th century town-appellation in Lancashire, England. This place-name, Singal-Tun, meant "Estate of the Persevering Man." Adam de Syngleton was a 14th century Yorkshireman. The family coat-of-arms has three red chevrons between three black heraldic birds on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like genealogy on CLARK and CLARKE—E.L.C., Lakewood; E.C., Long Beach.

E.L.C., E.C.: CLARK (also spelled CLARKE) was the old English term for "clerk." In past centuries educated men were rare and literates who could read and write achieved important, honored positions. A "Clark" or "Clerk" was a town record keeper, one of the few educated persons outside the clergy. The Bedfordshire Clark coat-of-arms has three gold leopard heads above a red eagle, on a shield tinted blue on the upper half and silver below. The Hereford Clarke shield has a green chevron between three green rampant lions on a silver shield. Massachusetts records of 1631 list John Clark, formerly of Herefordshire, England, as a resident.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish the origin of BEARCE, BEERS and BEER.—C. G. B., C. C., Garden Grove; Mrs. C. B., Palmdale; G. T., Long Beach.

Cakes and Carburetors

By Ruth C. Ikerman

WHEN MY HUSBAND sank his teeth into the orange and raisin spice cake baked from a new recipe he managed to multer through the mouthful, "Now this a sure enough cake."

As he reached for another piece I said, "I'll have to bake this again tomorrow and see if I can make it with brown sugar instead of white".

At this he snorted, "You women can never leave well enough alone. Haven't I just finished telling you this is a bang up good cake? Why do you have to know whether brown sugar will work? Is there a shortage of white sugar? Don't we always manage to have some of it in stock for our coffee?"

AS A WIFE I knew it was useless to try to explain this urge to any man. So I just passed him another piece of cake. And the next morning I baked the cake with brown sugar.

Why my husband should think this a silly unnecessary action, I can't for the life of me figure out. Just that day I had mailed for him a letter to a carburetor company asking them to send us by air-mail a new fangled kind of burner for our automobile.

So far as I could see the car always starts easily in the morning, we seem to get good mileage from our gasoline, and the car chugs up the hill into the garage.

THE CARBURETOR which came from the factory with the automobile must be the product of the best brains of the company which designed the car. But the man of the house keeps thinking in terms of new gadgets.

Sometimes he clips the addresses for such products right from the back of pages containing precious new recipes. Why he wants to experiment with carburetors I'll never know. But maybe it's related somehow to my wanting to bake a cake with brown sugar.

Just so long as he doesn't try to run the car on brown sugar, I promise not to try to mix cake in the carburetor. So on this truce we pass the sugar and hook up the carburetor. Progress, here comes the average husband and wife in search of new and better ways for enjoying American home life.

Los Angeles County exposition opens its gates in Pomona

Greatest County Fair on Earth!

By Roy L. Driscoll

THE GREATEST county fair on earth got under way Friday in Pomona as the 1960 Los Angeles County Fair swung open its gates in a mighty salute to the nation's space-age achievements while revealing California's dramatic growth and accomplishments in agriculture, science, industry, recreation and the cultural arts.

Here through Sunday, Oct. 2—for the entire 17-day run of the fair—is being presented a $25,000,000 spectacle surpassing in magnitude and diversity the efforts of previous years.

This 33rd annual event is more colorful, more enjoyable, more amazing and bigger than ever.

Frosting on the spicy cake baked up for fairgoers visiting the 450-acre exposition park is the gala entertainment featuring big grandstand shows and a succession of parades, concerts, contests, radio and television shows, special days and events to round out each daily program.

The Los Angeles County Fair's panoramic show window spotlights this area's wealth in a stupendous array of over 41,000 individual exhibit entries and displays in 6,000 competitive classes. Some $200,000 in cash prizes is being distributed by 200 judges in the fair's 20 major divisions.

MORE THAN a hundred California counties, communities and organizations dramatize their products, resources and recreational facilities in elaborate new feature exhibits displayed in the beautiful palace of agriculture, largest building of its kind in the nation.

The cream of the flocks and herds fill livestock pavilions. Pigeon and rabbit departments have record entries and the world's champion large fowl, bantam, waterfowl and turkey is selected during the American Poultry Assn. convention held here in conjunction with the poultry show, Sept. 27-Oct. 2.

Women have 1,785 opportunities to display their handiwork in the domestic arts department and reveal their skill in needlework, baked and canned foods, amateur arts and crafts, antiques, table setting and other endeavors.

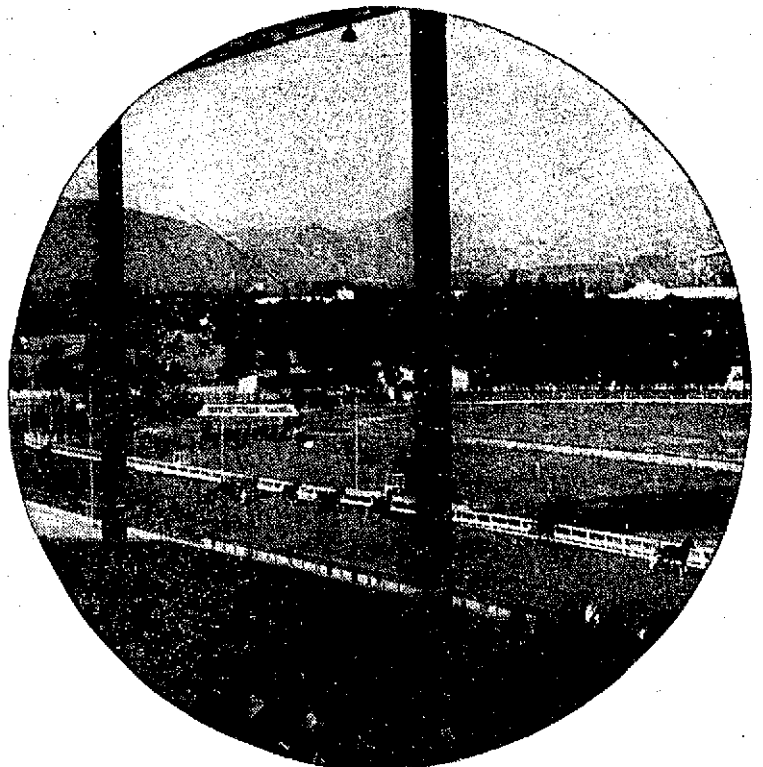

More than 2,000 boys and girls from farm and youth organizations compete for approximately $36,000 in prize money offered in the novel junior fair, aptly termed "A Fair Within a Fair." Special features of the junior fair are the showmanship contests in livestock and the auction of the fair's prize-winning junior livestock beginning at 3 p. m. Thursday, Sept. 29.

ALSO TO BE SEEN by fairgoers is the nation's largest public schools exhibit to reveal another phase of youth activity.

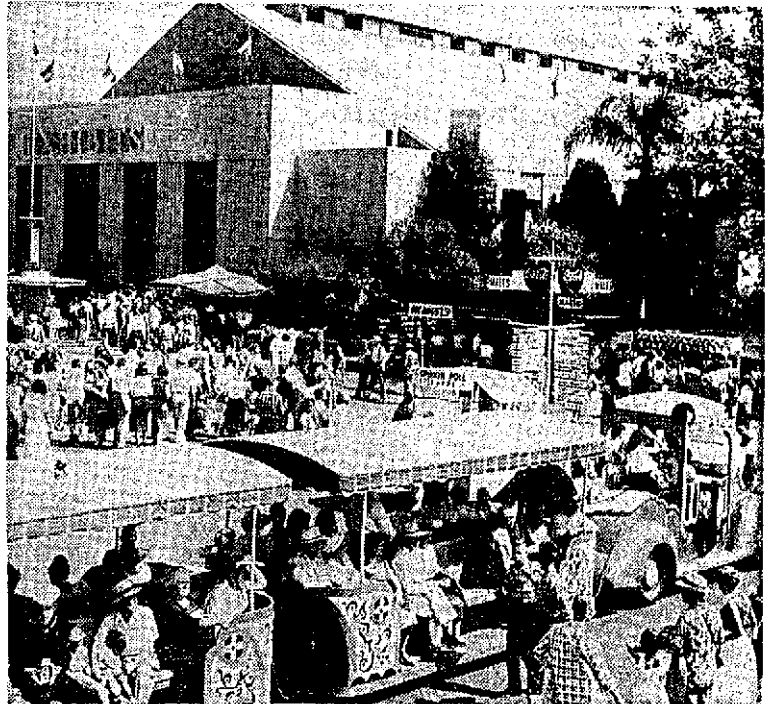

After absence of three years, paintings and sculpture return to occupy the fine arts building—along with the international photographic exhibition—under the sponsorship of the Laguna Beach Art Assn.

Highlighting a new theme revealing the influences of the Far and Near East on our Western culture, the fair's big fall flower and garden show, with its fascinating outdoor living area, will show contributions of the Orient, Singapore Straits, the Harness races always have major spot at Los Angeles County Fair and this year's program is no exception. Thoroughbred racing also is on the schedule.

There's something for everybody at the County Fair with its thousands of exhibits and its myriad activities. Here's view of small sector of the Fair.

No "Keep Off the Grass" signs interfere with full enjoyment of the Fair.

Milking contests always are popular. Here the gals have a go at milking.

How to Get There: Freeways ease the strain of driving to the County Fair but there are many alternatives. The map above shows the major routes.

Gas can is a dodge for hitching a lift. One hiker converted can into a suitcase.

By Frank L. Remington

NOT LONG AGO a motorist driving along a mid-western highway noticed a man lugging a gasoline can and walking in his same direction. There was no stalled car in sight, so he offered the man a ride. After driving several miles, the motorist commented: "You had quite a distance to go back for gas."

"Oh, I don't have a car," the rider declared. "This can is really a suitcase. I never walk far before someone stops and gives me a ride."

Few drivers can resist an appeal for a lift, especially from servicemen, college students, youngsters, or a fellow motorist in distress. Consequently, scheming thumb tourists employ a hatful of subterfuges, like the one recently experienced by a traveling salesman. En route to the next town, he came upon a man running desperately along the road. The salesman stopped and invited the runner to get in.

Hitchhikers use a hatful of subterfuges to make suckers out of U.S. motorists

Have Thumb, Will Travel

"Emergency?" the salesman asked.

"No," puffed the stranger. "I always run like that when I want a ride. Never fails."

FOR CENTURIES hitchhiking has held an allure for migrants too penurious or too lazy to provide their own transportation. The term "hitch-hike" originated years ago when two men wished to make a long journey with but one horse to share. On the principle of share and share alike, one of the travelers rode the equine a predetermined distance—then dismounted, hitched the animal to a tree and proceeded on foot.

The second man hiked until he came to the horse, then rode until he caught up with his companion. And so the two would alternately hitch and hike to their ultimate destination.

Today, the often well-dressed and audacious student of motorist psychology has developed snag-a-ride techniques to the point of a fine art. All too often, though, the modern hitchhiker is not all he appears to be. "Unfortunately," says FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, "there is no way to distinguish dangerous criminals by their looks and there is no such thing as a 'criminal-type.' The motorist who gambles on being a judge of character may be gambling with his life."

THE PERILS to the motorist who picks up a hitchhiker reads like a catalogue of crime. Murder heads the list. You are never safe with a hitchhiker in your car because you never know who he is. Scores of criminals have hitched their way from the scene of a crime. Often the persons who gave the lifts were never the wiser. But some paid with their lives.

In every state, police files bulge with crimes committed by "Automobummers." A man was driving his wife, his 10-year-old son and his mother along a Kentucky highway. A lounge in dungarees asked for a lift. Ten minutes later the hitchhiker pulled out a knife and ordered the car stopped. "Now," he snarled, "get out—all except the old lady."

He drove off, still flourishing the knife, with the elderly woman at his side. Forty-five minutes later the police caught up—too late. The hitchhiker had rammed the car into another machine. He was dead. So were the old lady and one of the four persons in the other car.

Female hitchhikers can be as deadly as the male. In Utah a motorist picked up two young women who wanted a ride to Denver. They stopped at a lunch counter for sandwiches and coffee. The next thing the motorist knew, he was waking up in a cheap hotel. The hitchhikers had slipped knock-out drops into his coffee and had made off with his car, his luggage and a wallet containing over $1,000.

EVERYONE HAS read similar accounts in his newspaper. The frightening aspect, however, is that statistics indicate there are some 40 times more hitchhiking crimes committed than are ever reported in public prints. Furthermore, a recent survey by the Wichita, Kan., police department, which fingerprinted hitchhikers over a period of months, showed approximately two out of every five ride bummers had criminal records. These days hitchhiking and crime have become virtually synonymous.

Little wonder the average motorist has become somewhat more prone to step on the gas (Continued on Page 15)

Hitchhikers have been known to throw themselves prone in front of oncoming autos. Once drivers have screeched to halt, they are often taken in by trumped-up tales of woe, give lifts to the strangers.

Few humane drivers could resist obviously distressed couple—but best to pass 'em up.

Mermaid Mary Margaret

By Betty Hardesty

MARY MARGARET REVELL is a young woman who delights in being feminine—a role she fits completely as blonde, lovely and sweet.

She came to Long Beach a year ago because she wanted to do long-distance swimming. Leaving her parents on their ranch near Bakersfield, she attended Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles for three years and then took an apartment in Belmont Shore where she could train by swimming in the bay and riding bicycles. But Miss Revell is practically self-supporting so her swimming ambitions had to be subordinated to the practical facts of earning a living.

"To be a successful long-distance swimmer," she says, "one must devote all one's time to training." Nevertheless, her ambition to swim the Catalina Channel has driven her to attempt it five times. The last try July 9 was to be her last. Her swims have been undertaken entirely on her own, without sponsors, with no pacers swimming beside her and accompanied by only one small boat and a 40-foot escort craft.

"I WANTED TO SWIM the channel to show that a young, attractive girl could do it," she confesses. "Some think I'm too light (140 lbs.) but I almost made it once." That was in the summer of 1959 when she swam 25 miles in 12 hours fighting 9-foot swells which caused her to lose sight of her boat. A bump by a shark was the telling factor which made her give up.

Still Miss Revell's life will continue to revolve around swimming. "That is my life: that and children," she explains, "and I'm planning to be a physical therapist with emphasis on swimming as a curative activity." Her plans include a college degree. Already, she has the cooperation and promised support of some physicians who have observed her way with children.

One Long Beach child in particular who has stirred her sense of achievement, is a 9-year-old girl born with no legs or arms, who could swim after only 3 weeks of instructions, using a mermaid tail Miss Reville designed for her to give her leverage in the water. The idea appeals to the child and to physicians in charge. Made of plastic filled with flexible material, the mermaid's tail, probably the first of its kind created for such a purpose, is indicative of Miss Revell's dedication and talents.

BLONDE, BLUE-EYED, 5 feet 9½ inches tall, Miss Revell carries her 36x25½x37 inch curves with easy grace. Often in her swim-suit while she teaches and directs pool and poolside activities for Petroleum Club members, she nevertheless embarrasses easily when feminine statistics are the topic.

Feminine activities, however, elicit an enthusiastic response. Mary Margaret glories in her personally decorated pink and white boudoir with a white wicker basket of lilac, and turquoise flowers and birds as the center of interest. She delights in cooking seven-course gourmet dinners and never uses box mixes, not even for angel cake.

THOUGH SHE apparently spoils her friends, she teaches swimming with a firm hand. The youngsters adore her and follow strict training rules, diet and exercises. The little ones learn to swim, the boys to race and the girls to do water ballet. Demonstrations at club functions are performed in white swim-suits, tights and gloves by the teenage girls of the ballet. Mary Margaret stars in sleek black.

When she swims in a two-piece swim-suit at Marineland, the porpoises really flip for her and one special porpoise reacts and acts especially well.

Attractive Miss Revell has many talents, such as cooking, sewing.

Marineland's star performers seem to enjoy a workout in the tank with Miss Revell, whose swimming talents rival theirs. Desire for long-distance swimming brought Miss Revell to Long Beach and Catalina Channel attempts.

What's All This Jazz at Disneyland?

By Betty DeWeese

THE "SAINTS" are all ready to come marching in at Disneyland, and when they arrive Saturday, Oct. 1, the most unique combination of Walt Disney pageantry and Dixieland jazz ever presented west of New Orleans will take over the Magic Kingdom.

Called "Dixieland at Disneyland," the spectacular will mark the first time in the Southland that a show has ever been presented in a setting that turns the calendar back to the heyday of stern-wheelers on the Mississippi.

Beginning at 9 p. m., six top Dixieland jazz bands will float down the Frontierland River at Disneyland, sending their favorite jazz tunes across the water to the audience.

BUT THE Dixieland music—exceptional as it will be with such top bands as Teddy Buckner's "Dixieland All Stars," Bob Crosby and his "Bobcats," Joe Darensbourg and his "Dixie Flyers" and Dick Cathcart with "Pete Kelly's Big 7"—may take a back seat to the Disney pageantry.

As the six rafts float by in turn, multicolor spotlights will illuminate each one, aerial fireworks will explode overhead, and ground fireworks will shoot up from Tom Sawyer Island.

For the finale, all six bands—more than 60 musicians—will gather aboard the riverboat Mark Twain. Sailing past the audience, they'll swing into the all-time Dixieland favorite, "When the Saints Come Marching In."

The river show is only the beginning for the evening. When the riverboat docks, the bands, led by torch carriers and playing their liveliest Dixie melodies, will march off to six separate locations in Disneyland to perform during the remainder of the evening, for both listening and dancing pleasure.

THEY'LL assemble again shortly after midnight for another torch-light, foot-tapping parade, this one leading down Main Street to the Railroad Station in Town Square. When all six bands have gathered, they will play another massed concert lasting until 1 a. m. closing time.

The entire show—including the river pageantry and the evening-long Dixieland jazz performances—is wrapped up in one big ticket "package" that also includes admission to Disneyland and admission to every ride and attraction, as often as desired, throughout the night.

Locations now selling advance tickets include all Music City stores (Hollywood, Lakewood and Downtown), Desmond's Fashion Square Store, UCLA and USC campus ticket offices, and the Disneyland box office at the Park.

CROSBY'S BOBCATS will play such numbers as their famous "Big Noise From Winetka" and will spotlight outstanding sidemen like Matty Matlock, clarinet; Eddie Miller, tenor sax; Warren Smith, trombone; and Stan Wrightsman, piano.

Darensbourg's Dixie Flyers, best known for their version of "Yellow Dog Blues," which sold more than a half-million copies, currently have another best-selling album, "On a Lark in Dixieland." Joe himself, on the clarinet, has played with such greats as Louis Armstrong, Kid Ory and Ben Pollock.

Buckner has been a popular favorite around Los Angeles for more than 30 years. Another Kid Ory "graduate," he combines an "early-day Satchmo" trumpet sound with vocalizing of numbers like "Crazy 'bout Dixieland,"

"Some Day You'll Be Sorry," "Mac the Knife" and his own blues composition, "Every Night."

ANOTHER trumpet player and vocalist leads "Pete Kelly's Big 7." He's Dick Cathcart, long the radio and TV "voice" for Pete Kelly's trumpet. Among the group's top recordings is the "Pete Kelly Blues TV Soundtrack."

The other two bands—the Disneyland Strawhatters and the Elliott Brothers "Dixie Dandies"—have been favorites at Disneyland for some time. The Elliotts—Lloyd on trombone, Bill on saxophone—have assembled a top array of Dixieland talent for their "Big Dixie" band.

It all adds up to a spectacular "New Orleans Comes West" show.

"Down on the levee" Joe Darensbourg (L), Teddy Buckner, Bill Elliott (R) talk over upcoming Disneyland show.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

House With a Three-Way Stretch

Separated from the kitchen by a large breakfast bar, this extra large rumpus room, one of three major changes, was added to the home of the J. Malcolm Johnson family.

IN THE BEGINNING, the home belonging to Mr. and Mrs. J. Malcolm Johnson, 3033 Ladoga Ave., incorporated about 1,200 square feet of floor space. Three additions, each worthy of note, have now given the home about 2,000 square feet, and the finished structure more than meets the needs of a family with three small children. The floor plan of the original home has been so radically changed that it would hardly be recognizable to the builder and architect.

By Stella George

The entry leads into a small hall with a high planter separating the living room from the entrance area. The living room, furnished with Early American maple, is cozy and attractive, and a small dining area adjoining is ready for formal entertaining.

The first addition to the home was a den next to the living-dining room. Nicely furnished with a desk, couch, TV set, and appropriate accessories for such a room, it serves as a perfect retreat for adult members of the family.

THE SECOND alteration consisted of opening one kitchen wall, replacing it with a large breakfast bar, and building an extra large rumpus room with the bar acting as room separation. The room is rectangular and located at the front of the home (the finished design of which forms an H shape). On the far end in one corner there is a brick fireplace with wide hearth. Next to the fireplace is a long window seat with cupboards underneath, handy for children's toys. A swivel TV set stands in the other corner.

Another addition to the Johnson home is this den, next to the living-dining area. It is nicely furnished and serves as a perfect retreat for the adult members of family.

Landscaping of the remodeled home bespeaks comfort within and extends a welcoming aspect to the entry.

Clever furnishings enable the room to function for many purposes. An Early American decor predominates, and choice antiques are used with discretion and good taste. A semi-circular couch, which can be moved back against a wall when necessary to provide dancing space, encircles a large oak coffee table. The latter was once a treasured dining room table, always sturdy and serviceable yet handsome in its way.

Another oak table is retained for its original purpose and is placed, with chairs, near a window in the room ready for dining or games. There are ample cupboards in the room for every type of storage. The stool bars are on the rumpus room side, and, with the kitchen almost a part of the rumpus room, company entertaining is made easy.

THE KITCHEN has been re-done in knotty pine. Alter-tations were many in the kitchen which now is modern and convenient with built-in appliances. A small but clever and handy idea has been utilized in connection with storing certain appliances: a small knotty pine cupboard was built on the corner of the sink to hold blenders, mixers and other such needed items.

The original home had three rather small bedrooms. The third addition was a large master bedroom located down the hall from the other bedrooms and bath. Cupboards, drawers and closets were built into the far end wall. The room is decorated with a blue color scheme carried out in drapes and bedspread, with printed wallpaper and matching material used in cornice boxes, chair and the wall in back of the bed.

THIS IS A HOME redesigned to accommodate a family with three small children, and the finished product is attractive yet ever practical. A boy's room, for example, presents a nice appearance with the single bed, built-in desk and chests of drawers, but features one wall covered with blackboard paint—thus encouraging all sorts of wall decorations without fear of reprimand.

ANTIQUES

Victorian Ice Pitcher

By Helen L. Gillum

MANY TIMES, in examining a particular antique, we are impressed with the ingenuity and craftsmanship shown. Just as often, we sense the great love of beauty and luxurious living by the long-ago owner. This handsome silver ice pitcher (see illustration) from the late Victorian era is remindful of such ideals. No mere kitchen utensil, it rather belonged near a lavishly-built side-board or on a vine-shaded veranda.

Old ice pitcher, pivoted on sturdy supports, and silver cup are interesting antiques.

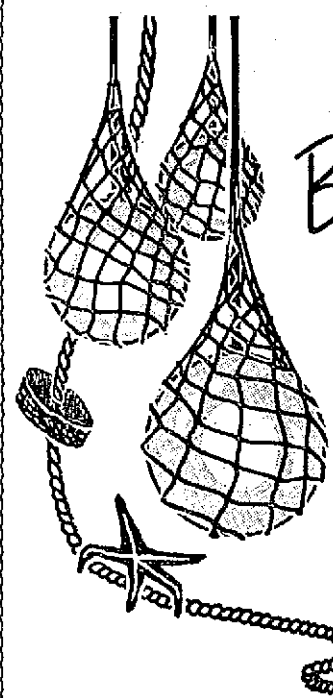

Already quite heavy because of its generous size, the pitcher is made more unwieldy because of the porcelain insulation which lines it. When filled with ice water, such a vessel must have indeed taxed the strength of the housewife who used it!

But the 19th century designer of these water containers remedied that situation by suspending them on pivots between two sturdy supports. A silver cup rests handily on a small stand before the pitcher. With such a device, the Victorian hostess had only to tip the pitcher gently to fill the silver cup with ice water for a guest on a hot summer day.

THIS ICE PITCHER is owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Davis, 3743 Elm Ave. It once belonged to Mrs. Davis' mother. Because of its beauty and usefulness, it now occupies a special stand in a corner of the Davis kitchen.

The container is 20 1/2 inches high and 9 inches in diameter. The engraved pattern consists mostly of scrolls and flowers. The dull satin finish with brighter bands around the top and base is particularly appealing. Mr. and Mrs. Davis have never had the pitcher replated, for they like the way its rich patina blends with their other antiques. The mark is "Forbes Silver Co.," with an eagle head.

Have Thumb, Will Travel

than the brake when he sights a thumb. Picking up strangers, regardless of their good appearance, has become too risky. Consequently, hitchhikers these days usually do more hiking than hitching.

Twenty-eight states and the District of Columbia have declared thumbs down on thumbs up by passing statutes of varying severity against ride solicitation. Unfortunately, these laws are somewhat less effective than anticipated, for they are practically impossible to enforce.

Among all the states, Washington, perhaps, has experienced better results in reducing hitchhiking than any other simply because its statute aims at the person most responsible—the driver who gives the lift. Motorists violating the ban on the practice may spend 30 days in the local bastille in addition to paying a stiff fine.

BUT THE milk of human kindness still runs fresh in the breasts of many motorists and the hitchhiker—both the harmless and the malicious species—has learned to turn it to his advantage. However, even the most respectable hitcher is likely to bite the hand that drives him by suing for damages should the car become involved in an accident. One ride bumper collected $2,564 because his host took his eyes off the road for a moment and lost control of the car.

Many insurance policies do not cover injuries to unauthorized riders, as one motorist discovered when a college boy to whom he had given a lift sued for damages when the car was wrecked by a runaway truck. The motorist had to mortgage his home to finance the years of litigation before he was finally absolved of the blame.

One prominent highway official expresses his views on hitchhiking in no uncertain terms: "Anyone who picks up a stranger is a fool. If he risks the safety of a woman with him, he's guilty of criminal negligence. And the driver who picks up several hikers, letting possible thieves or killers get behind him, simply has rocks in his head."

You Make It

Hutch tables in Early American style are popular for dining indoors and out. The table top raises to form the back of a bench. The storage seat is especially handy. Pattern 464, which gives actual-size guides and directions, is 35 cents. An Early American Reproduction Packet No. 19 is available for $1. You may have both Pattern 464 and Packet 19 for $1.25. Send number or numbers with correct amount to Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Bedford Hills, New York.

to Southland living.

A notable home show spreads through three buildings to feature a brand new model home, a $100,000 feature displaying "The Greatest Homes on Earth" and a New Construction Show, another innovation showing a thousand and one ideas for the home remodeler and builder.

THE POPULAR sports plaza surrounding a ski pool and marina features such activities as hunting, fishing, camping, archery, golf and skin diving. Special attractions here are the large automobile, boat and mobile home shows.

Other important divisions are devoted to California wines, tropical fish, dairy products, a piary, armed forces, gems and minerals, farm and garden machinery, the largest model railroad, historical steam locomotives, world's largest commercial hobby show, the plaza of states and many others. A gay Mexican village and the Italian Marketta add international flavor.

Racing each weekday afternoon has a combination of harness, quarter horse and running races, with pari-mutuels, for the nation's richest county fair purses.

EACH EVENING and on Sunday afternoons, the spotlight centers on the fair's big grandstand shows. This year's top attraction will provide skiing thrills galore as the world's foremost jumpers perform on the greatest artificial snow slide ever built. In spectacular leaps, skiers headed by former Olympic coach and national champion Alf Engen fly through the air from the 130-foot high, 40-meter Olympic-style jump.

Added attraction for grandstand shows are a galaxy of headline vaudeville and stage entertainers with a complete change of program billed for the final week of the fair.

"Sway-O-Rama," world's most sensational aerial thriller, presents acrobats atop three slender steel poles swaying 12 stories high above the ground at the plaza of states in two free shows daily.

A giant world fair fun zone is packed with new thrills and chills.

THIS YEAR'S $100,000 improvement program includes a steel shelter on Hill Top with tables, benches and other facilities for 1,000 or more picnickers, the new paint job on the huge palace of agriculture and other major exhibit buildings and the resurfacing of a large portion of the 250-acre parking lot. A new steel livestock pavilion for 150 animals permits the fair to accommodate more than 2,000 head of cattle, swine, sheep and goats. A million zinnia and gazania plants add their splash of color to the exposition grounds.

San Bernardino Freeway and other major highways serve motorists from every direction.

DISTINCTIVE CUSTOM DRAPERIES

Over 800 Rossmore homeowners have Willbanks Draperies in their homes . . . There is more than one reason why all of these people have selected us to do the drapery jobs in their lovely new homes. Price, of course, is a major consideration . . . With the largest shop, best equipment and largest stock of mill fabrics our bids are consistently lower than smaller competitors . . . But price alone doesn't make a good looking window. In Rossmore as well as all over Long Beach . . . one woman has sold another. The quality of our work, the after-the-sale service, the lower price and better selection has made Willbanks the largest Drapery factory in this entire area.

HOW TO Remove Old Door Lock and Install a New, Cylinder-Type Replacement

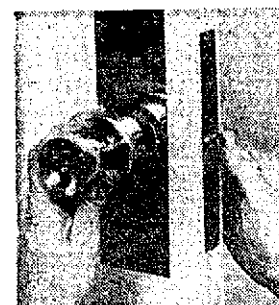

1. REMOVE THE OLD mortise and strike plate. It's usually an easy job with just a screwdriver and pliers. Be careful with old, soft-metal screws. If they are corroded they may twist off.

2. FITTING NEW latch and face plate may require mortising, fitting. Use sharp wood chisel, cutting out where needed. Build up low spots with wood putty. Mark for new cylinder lock.

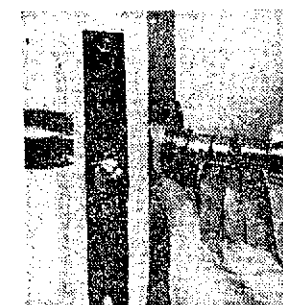

3. USE EXTENSION BIT to drill for cylinder, or dealer can lend or rent templates and bits to fit lock. Unit shown required 2 1/2-inch hole. Be careful not to splinter wood as bit breaks through.

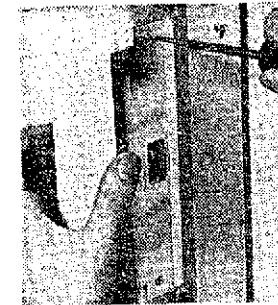

4. INSTALL THE new latch and face plate assembly, trying the cylinder to be sure it will pass through the hole. Shim or fill behind the face plate until it's flush with the edge; be sure new screws are solidly seated.

5. DECORATIVE escutcheon should be chosen to cover the marks left by the old lock. Then slide the cylinder in place, making sure the latch mechanism meshes and the knob is right side up.

6. INSIDE KNOB and locking button snap easily over the end of the cylinder as shown. Test the lock with keys. On the door shown, escutcheons were used on both sides; most have just one.

7. REMOVE OLD strike plate from the jamb and fit in the matching plate from the kit. Locate the plate so the latch fits in the recess; fill as needed with wood putty, touch up with paint.

Newspaper Bundler Is Handy, Easily Made

By Steve Ellingson

BUNDLER for newspapers and magazines is a handy, almost necessary item to have around the house these days—and here is one that's easy to make by using a full-sized pattern. It's designed to hold about one month's accumulation, which is about right for disposal time.

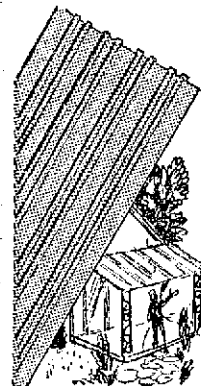

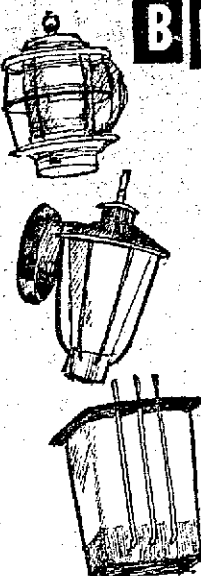

Everything needed to stack and tie papers in neat bundles is built right into the rack—a box to hold string, a razor blade to cut string.

The pattern gives directions and a list of materials. Just trace the pattern on wood, saw out parts and assemble. To obtain pattern No. 246 send 50 cents in coin to Steve Ellingson, Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

Through Europe Hostels on a Bike

By Vera Williams

FIRST GLANCE at the back of his bicycle told Buck Cooke that it couldn't be done — haul those two bulging knapsacks and the gigantic sleeping bag over the hundreds of hilly kilometers between Paris and Dusseldorf. Ridiculous to even think of it!

It was like tying a grand piano to the top of a Volkswagen and heading for Timbuctu.

A quick test run, however, established that the pile could be moved. Paris friends repressed their laughter long enough to shake hands and wish him luck and Buck glided off into the Paris traffic, fingers crossed.

Henry David Cooke Jr., 20, of 4335 Charlemagne Ave., Millikan High School graduate and now a junior at Stanford University, had started his summer tour of European youth hostels.

IN THE NEXT two months he visited hostels in five countries (if you count Luxembourg), met hundreds of young people from 21 countries and reveled in what travel brochures call the "hosteling spirit."

A day's ride, taking into account European roads and the heavy packs he was carrying, averaged 100 kilometers (60 miles.)

Lunch on the road consisted of bread, cheese, fruit and peanuts, eaten in parks, beside rivers, under trees or by the side of the road. It took Buck a while to get used to the stares of villagers, because he was dressed in white shorts, sweat shirt and tennis shoes and traveled alone.

Arriving at a hostel in the late afternoon he hung his bicycle from a hook in the garage and locked it. Then he reported to the office, turned in his youth pass and paid the equivalent of 30 cents to stay all night.

"THE YOUTH PASS," explains Buck, "is the means by which those in charge of the hostels control the behavior of visitors. Passes of those who misbehave are withheld, barring them from further use of the hostels."

"Youth passes of all countries are honored at all hostels. They can be obtained by contacting the Los Angeles office of American Youth Hostels, Inc.

"Although some hostels keep their sleeping rooms open daytimes, most close from 10 a.m. until 8 or 9 p.m. No one may enter after 11 p.m. Sleeping rooms are closed during the day to keep them clean and force travelers to see more of the cities they visit.

"During the hours between reporting in and going to bed the laundry rooms, reading rooms, traveler kitchens and dining rooms are open. Postcards, maps, pamphlets, guide books and snacks may be bought at the desk.

"MEALTIMES at the hostels offer many alternatives. In most hostels I could buy three prepared meals a day at prices ranging from 25 cents to 40 cents a meal. . . . If I felt wealthy, I ate in a local restaurant. . . . Most of the time, however, I bought food in the stores and cooked it over the hostel gas stoves.

"Sometimes I would take bread, cheese and fruit to a small cafe, buy a beverage there and eat at a table.

"After dinner, there was time to write letters, read, listen to the ever-present guitar players and singers or enter one of the polylingual bull sessions. In a Dusseldorf hotel I listened to a conversation among two German girls, an American boy, an Egyptian boy and an Iraqi boy — four languages were used.

"SUCH INVOLVED conversations were not usual, because most hostellers can find a common language. Often this is English.

"At 10 p.m., everyone had to go to bed. Bunk beds with two thick gray blankets per person made up the individual sleeping berths. Lights out, all fell asleep quickly, tired from a day of cycling, hiking or hitchhiking.

"At 7 a.m. we were awakened by the Jugendherbergesvater (hostel manager), loudly encouraging all to get up. We made our beds, dressed, ate breakfast, washed our dishes.

"Following breakfast we were required to perform 10 minutes of work for the betterment of the hostel. This included scrubbing floors, washing pans, peeling potatoes, etc.

"The hostel manager, satisfied with our work, signed our receipts and we exchanged them for our youth passes. Each pass was stamped with the name of the hostel and the dates of the visit.

"As the hosting movement encourages young people to travel there usually is a three-day limit to the stay in any hostel. This is extended if there is a good reason, for instance bicycle trouble."

Buck scribbled down the names of many young persons he met on his travels. He expects to send them all Christmas cards.

ancestral home. Some genealogy authorities consider "Beres" (Place of the bears) as an alternate name source. Among 14th century forebears was Thomas de la Beere. Early Boston, Mass., records note the burial of Sarah, daughter of Richard Beeres on Aug. 30, 1639. Beerce and Beeres were used interchangeably by the same family throughout the last 500 years.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the source of GANO.—T. G., Long Beach.

T. G.: GANO is an American spelling of the French surname Ganot, which also occurs in the form Ganeau, pronounced Gano. The origin was an ancient warrior-baptist name, "Wano," translated as "hopeful one."

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like history of RAYMOND.—R. R., J. R., J. P., Long Beach.

R. R., J. R., J. P.: RAYMOND was derived from an 11th Century Saxon-English warrior name. The source, Regin-Mund, translated as "Mighty protector," the appellation of a celebrated early British warrior leader, Raymond descendants achieved a coat-of-arms in Devon, Kent and Essex. Their shield is silver, crossed by three black bars in the center. Richard Raymond and his wife Judith, pioneer New Englanders, were residents of Salem, Mass., in 1634.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please trace WORRELL and WORRALL.—B. W., R. W., Long Beach; F. W., Lakewood.

B. W., R. W., F. W.: WORRELL and WORRALL were respelled from a town named Wirrall in Cheshire, England. Wirrall originated in Saxon Britain as "Wir-Hal" or "Myrtle corner," a home location. Robert Worrall was married in London, 1585; Thomasin Worrall of the town of Whiston, Cheshire, is listed in 1590. The Worrell and Worrall coat-of-arms has two standing black lions placed below three gold cups on a blue stripe. These emblems are on a golden shield. Among Rhode Island residents in 1688 was John Worrell.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. for the origin, meaning and brief genealogy column.

Lamps from Bottles

By Ellen Holmes

DRILL A HOLE in a bottle and make a lamp—anyone with a little time and a volt of imagination can do it. So says Charlie Forbes, 321 Grand Ave.

Forbes should know because he has turned empty liquor, wine, gin and liqueur bottles in fancy shapes into attractive lamps.

Drilling the hole for wiring is the crux of the job and Forbes has improvised a drill press for the purpose, using a hand drill set vertically on the base of an old, treadle-type sewing machine.

He marks the exact center of the bottle and the cork with red wax.

"WHEN WORKING with glass," Forbes advises, "always reduce the speed of the drill to 700 revolutions per minute and use light pressure. I place felt and metal washers between the bottle and the base of the drill press to prevent the glass from cracking. After making a cone of modeling clay to hold the grinding grit and water, I drill with a piece of FORBES USED an Old Grand-Dad bottle, color pictures from Arizona Highways magazine, gilt paint, shellac and clear lacquer to make his favorite lamp.

Even on close inspection this lamp appears to be made of fragile, hand-painted china. Visitors seldom realize it was originally a clear, glass liquor bottle.

"I'm a nut on Western lore," he says, "so I chose pictures of an Indian and a rodeo cowboy. I covered the bottle with shellac and pressed the pictures on it. When it dried I used gilt paint to cover the narrow side of the bottle between the pictures, all the edges and the Forbes' eyes reflect his laughter as he says, "Making lamps with empty liquor bottles is really an inexpensive hobby. You see, friends give me the empty bottles. Then, during the year, on my friends' birthday, anniversary and other special occasions I present them with lamps."

Here's new relief from miseries of

AND OTHER POLLEN ALLERGIES

Revolutionary 3-layer tablet acts directly on CRITICAL AREAS of POLLEN IRRITATION

Working through the bloodstream, DRISTAN: 1. DECONGESTS swollen nasal passages. Unblocks congestion deep in the nose-sinus area where sprays and mists may not reach. 2. RELIEVES watery, itchy eyes...checks sniffles, sneezing...restores free breathing. 3. PROTECTS against further pollen irritation. This season, you don't have to suffer the maddening miseries of hay fever and other pollen allergies. DRISTAN Decongestant Tablets...remarkable medical achievement...bring quick, long-lasting relief. Working through the bloodstream, DRISTAN's decongestant and anti-allergic actions reach all delicate pollen-irritated membranes. Shrink swollen tissues...drain clogged passages. Breathing becomes free, deep and natural. Moreover, DRISTAN sets up a special protective barrier to curb further pollen irritation. This is DRISTAN's kind of relief...swift, prolonged, effective. Millions already depend on DRISTAN for relief of hay fever miseries. Why don't you? This season, be ready for the pollen invasion. Get DRISTAN Decongestant Tablets. And...important...accept no substitutes!

BEFORE: With hay fever and other pollen irritations, sensitive nose and head membranes become irritated. Tissues swell, passages clog, breathing becomes difficult.

AFTER: Swollen membranes decongested, drained by DRISTAN. Swelling is reduced, free breathing restored. And a protective barrier guards against further pollen irritation.

BOOK REVIEWS

Manhunt With Incredible Risks

A STORY of the hunter and the hunted, moving at a dizzy pace in the mysterious atmosphere of the Far East—that's "THE PASS BEYOND KASHMIR" by Berkely Math-er (Scribners, $3.95).

It's in Bombay, Idwal Rees, who tells this tale of adventure, has been hired by Smed-ley to advise him in a search for priceless papers buried up on the Kashmir border. Pol-son the major knows where, and for his information ex-pects a big pot of money.

So the police come hunting Polson. Then rogues pretend- ing to be police come for Rees and Smedley, and it looks like curtains for them both until Rees' trusty, Pa- than, tails him to his dungeon and frees him.

They must sneak out of town. Then Pathan, with his uncontrollable temper, starts a riot. Seeming safe, they cross the frontier—and there, far from the starting point, meet one of the original and particularly murderous pur- suers.

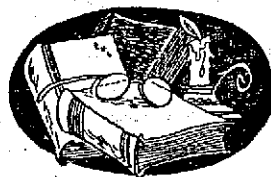

The risks pile up; and the men head straight into one final trap from which it looks as though they can never escape. Their legendary ene- my has them in his power and the wicked Red Chinese stand ready to do his bidding.

For good measure, there's beautiful Claire.

Here's a blockbuster that will meet every demand of the hard-boiled reader.

"THE CANDLE OF THE WICKED" by Manly Wade Wellman (Putnam, $3.95): Traveling into the western frontier shortly after the Civil War, homeseekers and adven- turers alike frequently dropped out of sight in south- eastern Kansas, never to be heard from again. Finally these disappearances were traced to a Labette County farm where Kate Bender and her family operated a road- side inn. Here the victims were bludgeoned to death while they ate, dropped through a trap door into a cellar and robbed, and later buried in an orchard. This fictionized account of the Bender murder mill has as its chief protagonist an ex-Con- federate soldier who comes west looking in vain for a partner who had preceded him over the same route, finally discovers that the partner did not flee with their joint stake of hundreds of dollars, but had fallen victim to Kate Bender and her fam- ily. Wellman, brother of the well-known novelist Paul I. Wellman, is an ex-Kansas newspaperman and an author- ity on the history of the Sun- flower State.

"THE HERITAGE OF MAN: A History of the World" by Goldwin Smith (Scribners, $12.50): Seldom has a writer packed so many facts and so much drama into a single volume, and with such beauti- ful prose, as has this Wayne State University professor in this story of the world from its beginnings to the jet age. The emphasis of the entire 896 pages is on man, his trials and his problems, his achieve- ments in various fields as well as failures. Smith cov- ers all of the great civiliza- tions, East and West, includ- ing the Americas. Augment- ing the text are more than two-score maps and 100 illus- trations.

"DECISION AT TRAFAL- GAR" by Dudley Pope (Lip- pincott, $5.95): The author of "Graf Spee: The Life and Death of a Raider" and "73 North: The Defeat of Hitler's Navy" turns to the epochal sea battle of 1805 between the British and the French at Trafalgar. And he turns it into a lively tale, indeed, as he gives a virtual blow-by- blow account of the engage- ment which was the most far- reaching in the history of sail. Nelson becomes the hero while Napoleon's armies are poised to strike across the channel. At the same time,

NANCY HALE

"A classicist in the comedy of contemporary manners" is Nancy Hale's literary descrip- tion by one critic. Few can equal her in the creation of character, in the deft render- ing of those furnishings, both external and internal—a par- ticular chair or hat or a par- ticular prejudice, that fits personality unforgettablely in the reader's mental eye. "THE PATTERN OF PERFECTION" (Little, Brown, $4), an excit- ing collection of 13 of Miss Hale's stories, exhibits this wonderfully entertaining tal- ent at its best.

Pope presents a vivid picture of life and events in Britain and France in 1805. A most readable and enlightening book.

"KEPT WOMEN CAN'T QUIT" by A. A. Fair (Erle Stanley Gardner) (Morrow, $2.95): Diminutive Donald Lam, of the private detective firm of Cool & Lam, goes to work for a beautiful dame who wants him to find her husband and $50,000 with which he disappeared. The tough assignment is made tougher when, coincidentally, an armored truck is robbed of $100,000 and only $50,000 recovered, and police are sus- pected of keeping the other $50,000. The book is dedi- cated to Preston G. Smith, warden of the Federal Cor- rectional Institution at San Pedro.

"BASIC SCUBA: Self Con- tained Underwater Breathing Apparatus" by Fred M. Rob- erts (Van Nostrand, $8.50): This comprehensive volume, written by a diver of great experience who holds the world's record for depth dive on air (380 feet), is referred to on the dust jacket as "The Sport Diver's Bible." And well it might for here the div- ing enthusiast receives all necessary theoretical infor- mation on the various fac- tors involved in breathing under water. He also gets practical — and essential — knowledge of the various div- ing sicknesses he must avoid. There are profusely illustrated chapters on all kinds of masks, wet and dry suits, swim fins, depth gauges, weight belts—in fact, every single piece of equipment used in sport diving. First aid as it relates to water acci- dents, decompression tables with full instructions on their use, underwater safety pre- cautions, buddy breathing, and other procedures are carefully treated. The instruc- tions on how to start learn- ing to dive, clearing mask and so on are based on the course given by Roberts.

CHECK THIS LIST of paperback origi- nals (first time published in book form) for good reading.

"GOOD OUR CONTEMPORARY" by J. B. Phillips (Macmillan, $1.25): A book directed especially toward the intelligent adult outside the influence of organized religion.

"HOLLYWOOD LAWYER" by Milton M. Golden (Signet, 50c): One of Hollywood's most prominent attorneys reveals some sensational stories behind his scorching cases—from a divorce to bigamy to ex- tortion to murder.

"DEATH WORLD" by Harry Harrison (Bantam, 35c): A science fiction story about a killer planet, dedicated to the annihilation of man.

"LIKE MARY" by William M. Gaines (Signet, 35c): The gods of Mad has not given up, as you can see by this pot- pourri of cartoons and foolishness.

"NAKED IN BARLON" by Gwen Davis (Signet, 50c): A story of Hollywood today, the land of the quick buildup and the fast fadeout; of a girl who comes to the film capital to prove her talent, what happens to her while she waits.

SIGNET CLASSICS boasts these two new titles: Henry David Thoreau's "Walden"; and the famous essays on "Civil Disobedience," with an afterword by Perry Miller (50c); and Joseph Con- rad's "Nostromo," with a foreword by F. R. Leavis (75c).

ZSA ZSA GABOR: SHE BARES HER SECRETS

The Loves of Zsa Zsa

Her mother named her Sari, after her stage idol, Sari Fedak. But since all Hungary called the actress Zsa Zsa, everyone called her Zsa Zsa, too.

They still do. Women often say it with envy, men breathe the name softly, with tremendous admiration. For Zsa Zsa Gabor, in the midst of her career as a glamorous movie star, has another—a greater—attribute: She is considered by those who should know to be one of the world's most beautiful women.

Miss Gabor, thrice married (she proposed all three times), is currently at work on her 17th film, in Rome. The Duke of Marlborough regrets that she cannot dine with him. She wires Prince Parenti, in Capri, that she will be delighted to attend one of his parties. Another message goes to King Farouk, in Monte Carlo, thanking him for a birthday greeting. In her quarters in a swank hotel, she wonders if the bellboy will think the messages real.

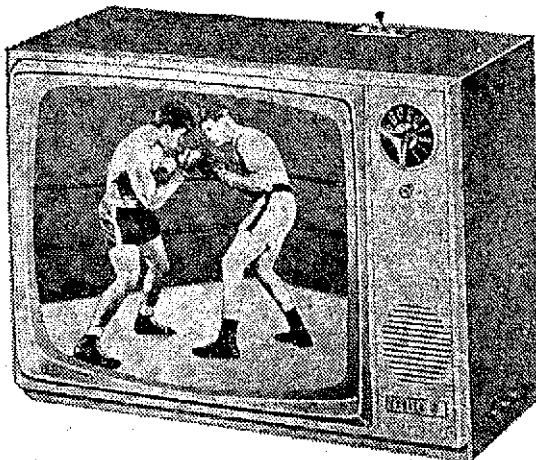

How did Hungarian-born Miss Gabor climb to such heights? At 15, she was chosen Miss Hungary in a beauty contest. Perhaps that was the start. It could have been through the prodding of her mother, who thought nothing was impossible for her daughters, Zsa Zsa, Magda and Eva. Whatever it was, her position seems secure, and her public may judge her after reading her frank biography, "ZSA ZSA GABOR: My Story Written for Me by Gerold Frank" (World, $3.95).

Miss Gabor pulls no punches. She speaks frankly of her extraordinary life, particularly her three impetuous marriages and her affair with Porfirio Rubirosa. There's her world of cafe society in Europe and America to which she introduces her readers. And, finally, there are her life as a young girl and her work in the films of which she also writes intimately.

Miss Gabor certainly has done it again. Her book goes on sale this week. Given a little time—not too much—it will be discussed wherever people meet. That means an instant best seller!

Try Seafood Curry

Spicy mince meat sauce gives curried seafood a special touch. Add accompaniments, iced coffee and fresh fruit.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

WHEN THE weather's warm and unexpected guests arrive, try a cool drink and a hot curry dish for mealtime—economical, calory conscious and convenient when nonfat dry milk, canned seafood and soup are used—and dine in the patio where the breezes blow.

And make the accompaniments bring each a special flavor. For spice; add a mince meat accompaniment. For something crisp, finely chopped sweet onion. Use whole or chopped salted peanuts for the added salty flavor, and to provide sweetness, flaked white coconut.

Quick Seafood Curry

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1 medium-size apple, pared, cored and chopped
- 1 (10 1/2-oz.) can condensed green pea soup
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 1/2 teaspoons curry powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 pound cooked, shelled and deveined shrimp
- 1 (6 1/2-oz.) can crab-meat (about 1 cup), well drained

- 1 (5-oz.) can lobster-meat (about 3/4 cup), well drained

- 1 cup liquified nonfat dry milk

Melt butter in skillet; add onion and apple; saute until tender. Stir in green pea soup, water and seasonings. Cook over medium heat until hot. Add seafood and milk. Heat thoroughly. Remove bay leaf. Serve curry over fluffy rice with Mince Meat Accompaniment. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Mince Meat Accompaniment for Seafood

(Makes about 1 1/2 cups)

- 1 (9-ounce package condensed mince meat

- 3/4 cup water
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion

- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar
- 1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon curry
- 1/2 lemon, thinly sliced

Break mince meat into small pieces; place in saucepan. Add water and onion. Bring to the boiling point and boil for 1 minute. Add vinegar and spices. Simmer for 1 minute. Remove from heat. Add lemon slices. Serve with curried seafood or meat as an accompaniment. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"Do you have much trouble finding your way about, driving in Europe? We know no foreign languages and may not be able to read the signs."

THE AMERICAN Automobile Assn. and the National Automobile Club have some good books, maps and tourist information on driving in Europe. It might make you more comfortable to read one.

I think European marking is better than the U.S. Much of it is visual: A sign with a little skidding car obviously means slippery road. The puffing trains means a rail crossing without gates. If the sign has a gate, so has the crossing.

Curves are marked with curves. Speeds are marked in numerals for kilometers per hour. (To get miles per hour, multiply km. by 6 and drop the last digit: 12km. x 6 equals 72 or 7 miles.

"We are flying to Miami and taking a three-day cruise. Is one apt to get seasick in such a short time?"

MAYBE. But look how soon it will be over. On your plane flight ask the stewardess to give you a few pills for motion sickness and put them in your bag. (They probably have them on the ship anyway.) The Caribbean is pretty calm about now.

"We won't be going to England for a year, but how about some good reading material meanwhile?"

"YOUR TRIP to Britain" by Richard Josephs is excellent. Also: Write the Public Relations Director, British Travel Assn., 680 Fifth Ave., New York City. Ask for general pamphlets — "Where to Dine in Britain" is very good. At the same time get a subscription to the monthly magazine, "Coming Events in Britain."

"What do you find are the best shoes for walking with all the traveling you do?"

I WEAR THE desert boot type of shoe. The hard sole, not the crepe. With cashmere-dacron socks in cold weather. Without socks in the tropics.

"If you use an umbrella (as you said recently), how do you carry it?"

I PACK A Japanese umbrella that folds down to a foot-and-a-half. You can buy them in the U.S. Umbrellas are particularly good in the tropics. You get too hot in a raincoat. Makes a good sunshade too.

"Any good places for general information when traveling in Europe? If you have a problem, where do you go?"

YOUR FRIEND and advisor (and tip him a few dollars when you leave) is the concierge or hall porter. The man with the crossed keys on his uniform collar who hands you your keys and takes care of your mail. That's who I go to.

Here's a list of some phone numbers Sabena puts out: Dial "SVP" in France for stenographers, baby sitters and various other help. Dial "ASK 9211" in London for recordings on weather, special events and other tourist information. In Switzerland, dial "11" for facts and figures on the country—a great help for writers.

"Please look at our itinerary: Two days in Paris. Fly to Rome for three days. Two days in Geneva. We then go to Frankfurt for a day and then to London where we will drive. . . . This is our first trip to Europe."

YOU ARE MAKING a common mistake—going too fast. Cut out Geneva and Frankfurt. Spend some time in Paris and Rome. Or anywhere you like. This "two days here and three days there" means you cover a lot of territory and see nothing.

On a two weeks trip, don't cover more than two countries. Two days sounds good. But you spend half the first day going through customs and getting in from the airport. Same on leaving.

Arizona Shoots Works in Autumn

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent, Press-Telegram Travel Editor

IF YOU have a vacation coming up in October, and have been wondering where to go, why not consider a jaunt into Arizona?

Usually, come October, the weather has cooled the desert enough to make the drive not at all bad. (It's a good idea to take an extra jug of water, just in case.)

Besides, Arizona is not all desert. And there's a multitude of things to see and do — all interesting.

For instance, the State of the Giant Saguaro Cactus has eight national parks, and it is in these that Dame Nature shoots the works with autumn colors. In several of these parks the so-called "fool forest" that starts out looking like scrub growth ends up showing off great ponderosa pines. Coconino National Forest, in the Flagstaff area, tops them all in this respect with the nation's largest single stand of this stately tree.

But each of Arizona's national forests has its particular brand of magic for visitors. As an example, Coconino, just mentioned, includes colorful Oak Creek Canyon, so familiar to many Long Beach folk. Here, too, is the steep Mogollon Rim, wilderness regions with boating, fishing and deer hunting in season; twisted lava beds and cinder volcanic cones; Indian ruins. And there are numerous dude ranches.

LUSH MEADOWLANDS, wild areas made to order for pack trips, seasonal big game hunting, rolling hills and Indian cliff dwellings can be found in Apache National Forest near Springerville.

Old Apache haunts and dude ranches are scattered through Coronado National Forest of the Tucson area with sharp, high mountains jutting above the desert country.

There are ghost camps, copper mines, wood-ringed meadows and sportsmen's lodges in Gila National Forest near Clifton.

Kaibab National Forest, of course, features the Grand Canyon, with its stupendous view. A pack trip to the bottom of the canyon is a never-to-be-forgotten experience.

And don't overlook Prescott National Forest. Prescott itself was the territorial capital. Here the air is thin and cool, and visitors have the time of their lives visiting old gold camps, dude ranches, Indian ruins, and driving the canyons and mountains. The west side of Prescott's square was once known as "Whiskey Row" and it has an interesting history.

If you attend Tombstone's Helldorado next month, be sure to visit the office of the old Epitaph.

More outdoor wonders are found in Sitgrave National Forest in the Holbrook area, and in Tonto National Forest, the home of Superstition Mountain—where tales of lost gold persist—and Tonto Basin. It's a nice drive from Phoenix over the Apache Trail to Roosevelt Dam and the Tonto country.

If and when you go to these areas, don't forget your camera and your binoculars. You will want both.

AND IN PLANNING any trip to Arizona, don't overlook Tombstone—where the Earps and the Clantons shot it out at the O K Corral. This little town with a violent past is getting set for its gun-smoke-filled Helldorado which this year will be held Oct. 21-23. Helldorado brings back all the excitement of Tomb-stone's yesterdays, with gun-slingers filling the streets.

The Battle of the O K Corral, a blazing 30 seconds of gunplay, will be re-enacted during Helldorado. Visit the Birdcage Theater while there, and the office of the old Tombstone Epitaph, leading newspaper in the days of cattle rustling, silver mining and banditry.

And if you should see the ghost of Wyatt Earp, pass along a friendly nod for me!

WEEKEND GADABOUTS have it made the rest of this month.

GOING PLACES With the Sloanes

COUNTLESS millions of Americans annually abandon civilization and, for the fun of it, go out to live in the woods in a close imitation of the lives their ancestors lived. These are the campers—some 60,000,000 of whom put up in U.S. national parks alone last year, not to mention the patrons of state, private and undesignated campsites.

The Damon Kerby family of St. Louis—husband, wife and 11-year-old son—belong to this vast fraternity and think that nobody in his right mind would take a vacation other than camping. They have been at it for seven years and have camped in every state except Hawaii, Alaska, South Carolina and Florida (they expect to camp in the last two next year) and have covered an estimated 40,000 miles on trips of 3,000 to 7,000 miles each.

Campers come from every walk of life and campsite camaraderie is sincere and enduring, say the Kerbys, who include among their new-found and valued friends, an atomic scientist from Washington, a sales manager from Detroit, a nature writer from Port Arthur, Ontario, and a construction engineer from Chicago.

"TO SIT AROUND a campfire in the evening and sing songs with people like these makes for the kind of friendship that money can't buy," says Kerby.

The Kerbys have their own interests and patterns in camping. They choose a different part of the country each year.

Kerby points out that they do go to motels when it rains and to this day have invested no more than $300 in equipment. His inventory is casual, uncertain, and varying, but includes the basics of a tent, stove, sleeping bags, mattresses, lantern, old beat-up cooking utensils, plastic plates, a dishpan and a hatchet. And the first year they even went without a tent.

This year their budget was $350 plus gas — and they came home with $100.

TIPS FOR NOVICES: Use a sedan with a top rack instead of a station wagon if you've a choice; it actually holds more. Borrow all the equipment you can the first time to make sure you like camping well enough to invest for next time. Take mosquito repellent, always stop in protected and authorized campsites, and stop early, preferably by 4 p.m., to make sure you get a site.

The joys of camping, besides the communion with nature and the people to be met under the most unpretentious of circumstances, there are the wonders of the children's exposure to the geography and history of yesterday.

"At 11, Harry has seen the Empire State Building, Puget Sound, Nob Hill, the Soo Locks, and the Grand Canyon. How else than by camping would this have been possible?"

At $250 a month, plus gas!

Wheelchair Lensmen Get a Lift

Dramatic action of firemen was shot by a wheelchair patient and camera fan, Norberto Rivera, of New York.

By the Shutterbug

DENSE SMOKE billowed out of the old brick building as a company of firemen brought up hoses and a ladder. Firefighters climbed to strategic positions, streams of water shot out and gradually the situation was brought under control.

Through it all, a photographer, immobile in a wheelchair, followed the action through his camera viewfinder, snapping away as fast as he could turn the film.

It was an exciting series of pictures for the wheelchair camera fan—but not of front page caliber.

THERE WERE 20 other equally handicapped photographers who were guests of New York City's fire commissioner at a special Fire Department training drill. The program was arranged by Volunteer Service Photographers an organization which brings photograph to shut-ins in 46 hospitals and rehabilitation centers in six states.

The photographic field day for chair-borne and stretcher-bound photo fans is the latest exploit in the 20-year history of VSP. It marks the start of its fall program.

Here are some of the things VSP does to achieve its program:

It gives instructions to hospital patients in basic photography, lighting techniques, developing, printing, enlarging, making exhibition prints and photo oil coloring.

It trains its volunteers in hospital techniques and procedures for bed, wheelchair and ambulatory patients.

IT PROVIDES hospitals with volunteers, photographic equipment, advice on rehabilitation photography and on constructing photo labs designed for different types of patients.

Its volunteer photographers take portrait snapshots of patients and send prints to their families.

ranges color slide showings, demonstrations, lectures and photo field trips such as the recent fire-fighting exhibition.

VSP STARTED as a war service program to aid wounded servicemen of World War II and the Korean conflict. There has been a gradual expansion of its services to civilian hospitals where it has been shown it can aid such extreme cases as victims of polio, cerebral palsy and muscular dystrophy.

Camera clubs or individual fans can find out how to start a photography program in their local hospitals by writing to Volunteer Service Photographers, 111 West 57th St., New York 19, N.Y.

MEMBERS of Long Beach Camera Guild are invited to bring 10 slides each on any subject to the guild's meeting Sept. 21. Winners in the guild's September competition included: Murray Shaner, Hazel Vosper, Dr. Fred Modern and Evelyn Richmond, black-and-white division; Donald Hayward, Gerald Church, Marion Paglow and Elva Hayward, color slides; Bert Laursen, best scenic; Flossie Ludlum, creative; Ella Fuhrer, portrait; Church, Donald Hayward and Floyd Williamson, stereo slides. Ken Sloop judged.

For the first time we're beginning to hear about the elm bark beetles. The reason we have not had them to contend with before is because we have not had a drought like the present one. The elm bark beetle attacks trees only when the bark becomes very dry.

Therefore, keeping your trees well-watered is the first important step toward getting rid of this infestation. If it becomes severe and you see numerous little black beetles running in and out of the bark, your only recourse is to spray with a combination of malathion and dieldrin, which is very effective. But the principle precaution to protect these trees now and in the future, is to never permit them to become dry.

One dangerous way of spreading the infestation is to cut down trees inhabited by elm beetles and stack the wood for burning in the fireplace. The larva of the beetles has been known to emerge from these logs as much as three months after they have been stacked.

Descanso Lights

Descanso Gardens annual Festival of Garden Lights will be presented from dusk to 10 p.m. each evening from Sept. 24 through Oct. 9 at 1418 Descanso Dr., La Canada, under sponsorship of the Descanso Gardens Guild, Inc. The public is admitted, free of charge.

All exhibits at the festival will be designed for application to home gardens. Descanso Gardens is a facility of Los Angeles County Department of Arboreta and Botanic Gardens.

A Dog Speaks a Piece

By Eleanor Avery Price

NATIONAL DOG WEEK opens today and here is what Fido would like to say:

Feed me nutritious food, only one main meal per day the same hour in the same place after I'm a year old. Take up my dish at once if there are leftovers.

Give me a vigorous brushing daily—down to the skin. I'll be lustrous, sweet smelling and less apt to have skin disorders if you do. Bathe me occasionally and dry me well, then keep me out of drafts. Also clean my teeth, mouth and gums once weekly.

I need a bed in a dry, draftless (but ventilated) spot a bit off the floor. Don't let me sleep near radiators, stairways, or in halls. Air my bedding weekly. Give my dog house a southern exposure.

BE ALERT FOR signs that I don't feel so well. Smell my ears for canker infection. Check my skin often, and treat skin troubles at once. If I don't eat well for three days, take me to the veterinarian. Check my toenails. They hurt and cripple me when too long. Don't forget my dew-claw nails if I have them. Watch my droppings, for they are a reliable index as to my general health. And how about a yearly check-up?

Keep me on lead on the street and in public. Don't let me leap on people, for they will dislike me if I do. Even if I love to dig in my neighbors' yards and smell their shrubs, restrain me. Should I bite someone who pokes at me or accidentally in play with a rough child, have him wash the lesion with soap and water.

Contrary to general belief, cattleya orchids are fairly easy to grow if a few rules for culture are followed.

By Joe Littlefield

HUNTINGTON BOTANIC GARDENS officials believe that potted blooming and evergreen plants add an artistic touch as well as an awareness of life in the garden.

In addition to the interesting collection of palms in the Huntington grounds, there are an unusual cacti and succulent garden, the Shakespeare garden, rose garden, Japanese garden and camellia collection. The greenhouses are filled with interesting and unusual plants, and the Cattleya orchids are one of the standouts.

Harvey Short, a camellia hybridist and specialist, is in charge of the greenhouses. The Cattleya orchids which are the most widely known, and still the most favored as corsage orchids, have improved in growth and blooming qualities since he started working on them, three years ago.

HE BELIEVES they are easier to grow than generally supposed. He groups them in one area of the greenhouse, making it easier to water them and shower bathe the foliage. The plants are watered once or twice a week, depending upon the humidity.

Orchids here are rooted in a medium of fir bark in place of osmundine fiber. These orchids are fed once a month with combination fertilizer which is 12 per cent nitrogen, 24 per cent phosphorus, 12 per cent water soluble muriate of potash.

Huntington Botanic Gardens are located at 1151 Oxford Road, San Marino, and are open daily free to the public.

Dog Talk

(Continued from Page 32) license tag. Also an anti-rabies inoculation every two years if required by law.

Encourage me to be alert when the door bell rings or I hear strange noises, but prevent me from overly barking when you're away. I get lonely, so give me beef hide trimmings (my co-author can tell you where to buy them in bulk) to chew on and other safe toys of my own.

Be patient with me and don't expect too much of me too soon. Be firm, use a "no" that means no, but never strike me on the back or on the head. Teach me to stop at each curb and wait for your command to cross. Teach me simple lessons such as "come," "go," "lie down," "stay," okay," quiet."

NEXT SUNDAY Santa Ana Valley Kennel Club premieres its first benched show at Orange County Fairgrounds. (No poodles in obedience, for the Los Angeles Poodle Obedience Club holds its trial the same day at North Hollywood Park.) California Specialty Clubs event is scheduled next Saturday at Hollywood Turf Club.

Bring healing relief with Ammens® Medicated Powder

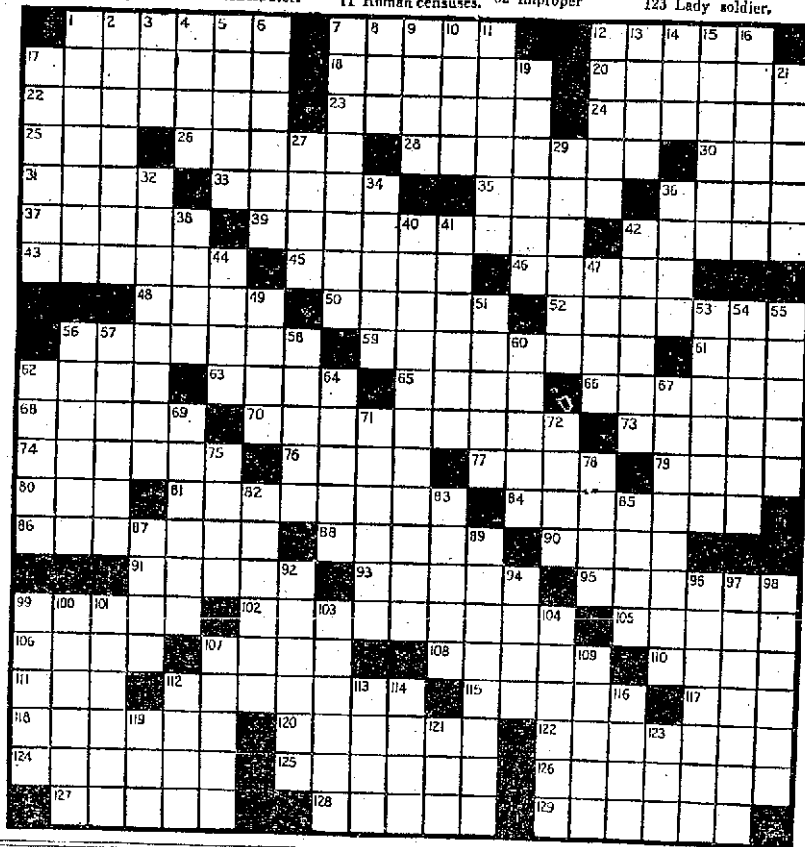

Even a cheerful baby is soon tearful when diaper rash starts hurting. But don't just powder to soothe it. For healing relief, powder with Ammens! Ammens' special combination of three medicinal ingredients helps clear up diaper rash as no un-medicated powder ever can. Cools baby's skin—soothes irritation—and, because it's antiseptic, hastens healing by fighting bacterial growth. To help prevent return of diaper rash, just use Ammens with every diaper change. Get safe, pleasantly-scented Ammens Medicated Powder.

BOB CROW
Brunch? Of Course.
Caricature by Milt Reppert

AH, YES. It's Sunday, a wonderful day. You've snoozed to a comfortable hour, read the papers and now you're feeling hungry. But when you tell the missus what you'd like for breakfast she replies with a careful yawn that she isn't even slightly in the mood for cooking.

Under such circumstances a diplomatic hubby realizes there is still another way for him to have a fine breakfast (without fixing it himself.) This solution is so easy it will bring a smile of pure joy to the face of his wife.

The answer is a short trip to Crow's restaurant, 503 Willow St., where proprietor (and councilman) Bob Crow serves a variety of breakfasts and brunches every Sunday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. These breakfasts are not ordinary coffee shop affairs. They are continental-style, dining-room breakfasts—and as enjoyable as if the good councilman himself brought your tray directly to your bedside.

AMONG THE ENTREES are the Cosmopolitan ($1.35) which includes eggs Vienna en casserole, rasher of sugar bacon, hollandaise sauce and coffee. Very popular are fresh jumbo ranch eggs with hickory-smoked ham or sugar bacon or country-flavored sausage, all $1.50. Also available are pork chop and steak breakfasts and such pleasant eye-openers as Crow's famed Irish Coffee, Salty-Dogs and Ramos fizzes.

On the dinner side of the menu are Crow's Cantonese and American entrees. Outstanding among the delicious Cantonese affairs are the family dinner for $1.85 (note that new low price) which, when ordered by four persons, includes soup, fried shrimp, barbecued ribs, chicken mushroom chow mein, sweet and sour pork, pork foo yong, pork fried rice, noodles, fortune cookies and tea.

The American side of the menu includes complete sea food, chicken and steak dinners.

BING GETS INTO THE ACT

by LLOYD SHEARER

Parade West Coast correspondent

FOR YEARS casino owners have offered Bing Crosby as much as $50,000 a week to play Las Vegas. And for years Bing has always said "no." Along with two other holdouts, Bob Hope and Perry Como, the Groaner has never wanted to get mixed up with the Las Vegas gambling mob.

Last month, however, for the first time in his lengthy show business career, Bing appeared on a Las Vegas stage. And without his hairpiece, yet.

The reason was to help his oldest son, Gary. Having broken away from his three younger brothers, Gary was booked into the Flamingo as a single. On opening night in Las Vegas his singing act was panned by the critics. They termed it "over-long and over-arranged." Next night Gary suffered a bad case of stage fright. Billy Daniels and Bobby Darin were called in to substitute.

Word soon spread that young Crosby was in trouble. Dad heard about it up at his fishing ranch in Rising River, Calif., immediately flew down to Vegas to catch Gary's act and give the boy a hand.

About halfway through the act Bing jumped onstage and swapped jokes with his son. They sang a duet they had recorded when Gary was a teen-ager, a tune called "Simple Melody."

After that, Gary was fine. He and his dad went backstage, posed for the photo below, expressed their mutual affection by a round of wise-cracking.

In the past Gary and Bing haven't got along too well. But by coming to Gary's aid unasked when his boy needed him most, Bing helped bury the hatchet. Between father and son these days everything is okey-dokey. ■

Walter Scott's

PERSONALITY PARADE

Q. They say Rex Harrison will marry American actress Tammy Grimes. What happened to the first Mrs. Rex Harrison, Collette?—Heather Fredericks, Detroit, Mich.

A. Collette Harrison, first of Rex Harrison's three wives, works in a Long Island shop, sells beachwear.

Q. Is Ngaio Marsh, the detective story writer, male or female?—Arnold Klein, Hempstead, N.Y.

A. Ngaio Marsh is a 61-year-old lady from New Zealand now writing mystery and detective stories in London.

Q. When Chiang Kai-shek dies who takes over his government in Taipei?—O.T., Washington, D.C.

A. Chiang's heir-apparent is his son, Gen. Chiang Ching-Kuo.

Q. Does anyone know Maria Callas' (the opera singer's) real name?—Bertha Updyke, Durham, N.C.

A. Maria Kalogeropoulos.

Q. Is it true that London has become a Russian spy headquarters?—K.E., New York, N.Y.

A. Prime Minister Macmillan announced recently that 18 Soviet-bloc agents have been expelled from England in the past two years. Others, posing as students and businessmen, have been quietly deported by the British Home Office.

Q. PARADE says Sir Edmund Hillary is looking for the Abominable Snowman. What happens if he finds him?—O.T., Detroit, Mich.

A. Sir Edmund plans to stun him with a special rifle, capture him and take him back to Europe for scientific study.

Q. Two famous movie makers recently married Indian girls. One was Roberto Rossellini, who used to be married to Ingrid Bergman. Who is the other?—Helen Frank, Ft. Worth, Texas.

A. David Lean, British director of Bridge on the River Kwai, recently took for his fourth wife Leila Devi, an Indian girl he met in Ceylon.

Q. What's happened to actor Jack Palance?—G. T., Scranton, Pa.

A. Palance has become a legal resident of Switzerland, is currently working in Italy.

Q. I read that Stavros Niarchos, brother-in-law of Aristotle Onassis, is making a lot of money out of the Cuban-U.S. crisis in oil. What's the truth?—V.C., New York, N.Y.

A. Niarchos has contracted to carry 1,200,000 tons of Russian oil in his tankers from the Black Sea to Scandinavian and Italian ports. The Russians have a comparatively small tanker fleet, so Niarchos' contract frees these Russian tankers for the oil run to Cuba.

Q. How much did the late Aly Khan leave his girl friend, Bettina?—K.K., Palmyra, Pa.

A. A house named Green Lodge which they shared at Chantilly and a monthly allowance paid by his survivors.

Betty Crocker's GOOD NEWS ABOUT FOOD

from the Betty Crocker Kitchens in Golden Valley...to yours

News... We've a lot of it in our kitchens here in Golden Valley—news we'd like to share with you each and every month. New products. New recipes. New cooking ideas. New things to make your life easier—or just plain more fun.

For it's here in our own sunny kitchens that all the Betty Crocker products you see in your stores first come to life. Products like our new Country Kitchen Cake Mixes! We can't help but be proud of these mixes. They bake up so high... and taste so moist and tender. Your wonderful letters tell us how much you've been liking them, too! So we've been working hard on some exciting new recipes just right for these extra-special mixes.

Our very first favorite is Velvet Cream Cake. A sheer delight of a cake... cool and rich and luscious. Like all of our recipes, this one was first developed in our kitchens here in Golden Valley, then sent to our test panels—homemakers like you all over the country—for thorough home testing. Now that women have voted it one of the all-time-great recipes from our kitchens, we're putting it on all the Betty Crocker Cake and Frosting Mix packages. You can make it in your favorite flavors. I do hope you'll try it... maybe at your next committee meeting? This is certainly the month for committees, and what a welcome surprise to have a great new cake and coffee.

SEPTEMBER'S a month when we just love to find new things to do with apples. We picked some from our very own trees to try out this new kind of apple pie. But I know you'll find nice, firm cooking apples in your own market for making this recipe.

PECAN-APPLE PIE—Heat oven to 450°. Line 9" pie pan with 13" circle of aluminum foil leaving 1" overhanging edge. Spread 2 tbsp. soft butter all over foil. Press 30 pecan halves round side down in butter. Gently pat ½ cup brown sugar (packed) into butter. Prepare pastry for 9" Two-Crust Pie as directed on Betty Crocker Instant Mixing Pie Crust Mix pkg. Divide into 2 parts. Roll one part into an 11" circle. Ease into pan. Mix 6 cups sliced apples, ¾ cup sugar, 2 tbsp. flour, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ¼ tsp. nutmeg. Pile over crust in pan. Cover with top crust, seal and flute. Prick with fork. Brush lightly with milk. Bake 10 min. at 450°; decrease to 375°, bake 35 to 40 min. longer. Remove from oven, let stand 5 min. Invert on serving plate. Serve warm.

We've been thinking about your letters telling us that lemon is one of your family's favorite flavors, and now we have another lemon treat for you—our new Lemon Fluff Frosting Mix. Wonderful on your favorite cake—and exciting, too, in our brand-new cheesecake recipe.

Lemon Cheesecake

Heat oven to 350°. Blend 1½ cups fine graham cracker crumbs, ½ cup brown sugar (packed), ½ tsp. cinnamon. Add ½ cup butter, melted; mix well. Press crumb mixture evenly over bottom and sides of 8" sq. pan. Soften 8 oz. cream cheese to room temp. Press 1½ cups dry curd cottage cheese and ½ tsp. salt through sieve into large mixer bowl with cream cheese; set aside. Beat 1 pkg. Betty Crocker Lemon Fluff Frosting Mix as directed on pkg. Mix cheeses and gradually beat in prepared frosting. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 35 min. Carefully spread with 1 cup commercial sour cream. Cool; serve with frozen strawberries. 12 to 15 servings.

News of the month: VELVET CREAM CAKE Cool! Rich! Luscious! Just follow the basic recipe

1. Bake Betty Crocker Country Kitchen Devils Food Cake Mix (or any other Betty Crocker Country Kitchen Cake Mix), in two 9" layers. Split cooled layers to make four.

2. Add 2 cups (dry mix) Betty Crocker Chocolate Fudge Flavor Frosting Mix (or any other Betty Crocker creamy Frosting Mix) to 1½ cups whipping cream and 1 tsp. vanilla for filling. Chill; whip. Fill cake.

3. Blend remaining dry Frosting Mix with 2 to 3 tbsp. hot water, 1 tbsp. light corn syrup. Beat until smooth. Add 1 to 2 tsp. more water, if necessary. Spread over top of cake; let dribble down sides. Chill. Makes about 12 servings.

And perhaps you've noticed—we've done something nice to all our Fluffy Frostings. They mix up lighter, softer, smoother than ever. Deck your next cake with Fluffy Frosting. Sprinkle with coconut for a special treat.

Have you heard about our new Television program? It's called "National Velvet" and it starts tonight—September 18, on N.B.C. Do tune in, won't you?

SCHOOL DAYS bring round a host of new faces, and it's the nicest mother who has cookies and milk waiting. Our young friends get a lot of fun out of baking Gold Medal Oatmeal Cookies. This recipe makes enough to feed a whole pack of scouts!

Oatmeal Cookies—Simmer 1 cup raisins and 1 cup water in saucepan over low heat until raisins are plump, 20 to 30 min. Drain raisin liquid into measuring cup. Add enough water to make ½ cup. Heat oven to 400°. Cream ¾ cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. vanilla. Stir in raisin liquid. Sift together 2½ cups sifted GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Enriched Flour, ½ tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. cloves; and stir in. Add 2 cups rolled oats, raisins and ½ cup chopped nuts. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls about 2" apart on ungreased baking sheet. Bake 8 to 10 min., until lightly browned. Makes 6 to 7 doz.

And here's a treat for the men in the house—our old-fashioned Beef Casserole topped with Bisquick biscuits. It's hearty and good these nippy fall evenings.

BEEF CASSEROLE—Roll 1½ lb. stewing beef (cubed) in mixture of ½ cup Bisquick, ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, ¼ tsp. paprika. Brown meat thoroughly. Add ½ cup canned tomatoes, 2 small onions, chopped, 3 large carrots, sliced, 1 small clove garlic, cut up; sauté until onions are transparent. Add water to cover meat and vegetables. Cover lightly; cook over low heat until meat is tender, 1½ to 2 hr. Add more water if needed. Stir in ¾ cup sour cream, ¼ tsp. Worcestershire Sauce, salt and pepper to taste.

Heat oven to 425°. Pour stew into 2-qt. baking dish; cover hot mixture with Sour Cream Chive Biscuits. Bake 15 to 20 min., until biscuits are golden brown. 4 to 6 servings.

Sour Cream Chive Biscuits: Make Rolled Biscuits on Bisquick pkg.—except substitute ¾ cup sour cream and ¼ cup water for milk. Add 1 tbsp. chopped chives.

Next month we'll have a lot to tell you about some exciting new products we're working on. Until then...

Chinese dancers put on show in Caracas, Venezuela, as part of cultural "invasion" of Latin America.

Red China invades Latin America

by JACK ANDERSON

Parade Washington correspondent

WHILE THE U.S. WORRIES about Russian inroads into Latin America, another and potentially more dangerous menace creeps forward south of the border. The Red Chinese dragon is about to wrap its scaly tail around the continent. From intelligence sources PARADE has learned how the Chinese expect to take over in the lands to the south.

In the next decade, 5 to 10 million Chinese Communists will slowly infiltrate Latin America and settle down as businessmen, shopkeepers, farmers and workers. This stealthy invasion is to take place under the banner of culture, trade, tourism and friendship.

It has three purposes: 1) to subjugate the Latin nations; 2) to destroy U.S. influence south of the border; 3) to drive the U.S. out of the Pacific and turn it into a Chinese sea.

A tall order? Not for the Chinese. Long before the homeland went Red, they have been infiltrating other nations. The Reds are merely continuing an old Chinese tradition—and reaping where their predecessors have sown. In many countries, the "overseas Chinese" have carried the flag of Chinese propaganda and served their homeland as allies if not spies.

Consider what has happened in Southeast Asia. From Manila to Rangoon, the Chinese by ingenuity and industry have gained tremendous economic power. They entered as small traders, contract labor, fugitives from famine. After slaving and scraping for several generations, they now control most small business and have branched into industry and banking. Among them are some of the world's richest men.

The invasion of Latin America will be different. It will be organized and financed from Peking. The newcomers will drift into the Chinese communities already in Latin America, fanning out gradually. Then they will demonstrate what Chinese shrewdness and skill can do. They will avoid politics at first, but will move rapidly to secure a stranglehold on the economy.

The invasion, in fact, has started already. The trailmakers are softening the public with propaganda, winning over businessmen with offers of trade, impressing students and intellectuals with the "glories" of the Chinese "people's revolution."

To restless Latin American youth, the Chinese revolution, which transformed China from a feudal peasant economy to a modern industrial society, seems to parallel the challenge in their own countries. "You, too, can make the big leap forward," the Chinese Reds urge. "Break your ties with the United States and follow the Chinese example."

Consider these facts:

- The Chinese have opened a school for Latin American Communists in Peking.

- More than 100 cultural, trade and student delegations traveled from Latin America to Red China last year. In the first six months of this year, 49 more delegations followed. All were given VIP treatment by top Chinese Communists, sometimes including Comrade-in-chief Mao Tse-tung himself.

- The Chinese Reds have opened friendship societies or cultural institutes in Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Mexico, Uruguay and Venezuela. In Cuba their influence is even greater than that of the Russians.

- Red China has stepped up Spanish-language broadcasts to Latin America from 14 to 21 hours a week, plus another 10½ hours in Portuguese to Brazil.

- The flow of Chinese Communist literature and films has increased ten-fold. There are also book "exchanges," such as the translation of Chinese classics into Spanish.

The chief targets of China's current drive are the Latin American opinion makers: students, educators, editors, labor leaders, potential political leaders. They are invited to visit Red China, where they receive more of a "brain-rinsing" than outright "brain-washing."

Spanish-speaking Chinese

Once in Red China, the delegations are assigned teams of Chinese guides who speak excellent Spanish and have a thorough knowledge of South America. The visitors are guided through model communes, factories and steel plants, as well as ancient temples.

No opportunity is lost to rail against "Yankee imperialism." And Latins are well aware of the just-below-the-surface rivalry between Moscow and Peking. The Chinese never hesitate to point out that both Russians and Americans are white. The mysterious Mao likes to needle Latin Americans by saying: "The Yankees despise us and they despise you because our skins aren't white like theirs. We have that bond."

Cuba probably will be the doorway for Red China's planned mass invasion of Latin America. The Russians performed spadework in 1946 when they set up schools for agitators and initiated anti-American propaganda programs in Havana. Communists began to move into control of all Cuban unions, acquired the island's most powerful radio station and began publishing a daily newspaper, Hoy.

During this period, Communist propaganda made converts among the masses and stirred two brothers, Fidel and Raul Castro. When the Castros entered Havana in triumph, the Communists crawled out of the woodwork again.

After Dictator Batista fled Cuba the Reds seized several small gambling places and the headquarters of the Batista-tolerated small political parties. Outside these buildings were hung signs announcing "Partido Socialista Popular"—the name under which the Communist Party operates in Cuba. Within a few days of the Castro takeover, the newspaper Hoy was on the street again, and Communists were moving into positions of power in the government, unions and agrarian reform movement.

Even then, the Chinese dragon's tail was showing that it might have a longer reach than the Russian bear's paw. When China and Russia split over Soviet Premier Khrushchev's brief romance with President Eisenhower, the Cuban Communists sided with China. Castro followed suit. Ever since, the Chinese have had considerable success in wooing the Latin American Communist movement away from Moscow.

This is only Phase One of the great Peking Plot to annex a continent half a world away. After a period of political courtship, Phase Two will begin: the steady infiltration of hundreds, then thousands, finally millions of cunning, hard-working Chinese. Latin Americans who welcome them will find their guests from across the Pacific like the man who came to dinner. The Chinese Reds won't be easy to get rid of.

And the U.S. may wake up some morning to find the Chinese dragon breathing fire on its doorstep. ■

Bad marriage or no marriage —which is better?

by OLGA CURTIS

IS A BAD MARRIAGE better than no marriage at all? Would you rather be unhappily married than single the rest of your life?

The answers many women give to these questions may surprise you. In spite of the American tradition that a girl waits for the "right man" and then lives happily ever after, many girls would rather take the "wrong man" and be a Mrs., even if miserable, than an eternal Miss.

Why? Because in the U.S. social pressure to be married is enormous, and to be single is a sign of failure. PARADE questioned hundreds of women to find out how they felt about marriage. Most said bluntly they were "ashamed to stay single." They blamed society for putting such a high premium on matrimony that any marriage is considered far better than none.

"Just think what the words 'old maid' and 'spinster' mean to most people," said one girl bitterly. "They're dirty words."

"If you're married, fine. If not, the nicest thing they can call you is 'an extra woman.' That sums it up. If you're not married, you're out."

"My family worries plenty about my not being married. I think they'd rather see me married to some wife-beating bum than single."

This girl, like many single women questioned, did not want her name revealed. But some did not mind putting their thoughts on record. For instance, novelist Fannie Hurst says:

"A woman is not a whole woman without the experience of marriage. In the case of a bad marriage, you win if you lose. Of the two alternatives—bad marriage or none—I believe bad marriage would be better. It is a bitter experience and a high price to pay for fulfillment, but it is the better alternative."

Marry a man with two heads

A more cynical view came from a teenager, who said: "You have to get married even if you marry a man with two heads. Anyhow, you can always get a divorce."

In the eyes of marriage experts, this attitude toward easy divorce is the major symptom of what they call "the changing American attitude toward marriage."

"The marriage philosophy prevalent today is: 'I'll try it, and if it doesn't work I'll get a divorce,'" says Mrs. Emily Dickinson, executive director of the Family Service Association of Tampa, Fla.

"It's just like the attitude toward cars—I'll get a new model next year."

Just what is our present view of marriage? And how can you judge whether a marriage is good or bad?

Experts say the only possible standards for rating the success of a marriage are:

Lauren Bacall: "It is better to exist alone than to marry someone just to say you're 'Mrs. Somebody.'"

Fannie Hurst: "In a bad marriage, you win if you lose."

- If both man and wife are happy, it's a good marriage.
 - If either one or both are unhappy, it may be good or bad—subject to whether the couple feels the unhappiness can be overcome.
 - But if either one or both are unhappy and feel that the situation cannot change, it is a bad marriage.
- Even when faced with the great despair involved in an unsuccessful marriage, some women still feel they're getting profit out of the ring on their finger.

They dislike their husbands

Young novelist Rona Jaffe believes there are "women who don't consider being married to a boring husband a bad marriage. They're satisfied with the social status of being married and not being alone. They don't mind the fact that they don't like their husbands."

There is another reason why some women will tolerate a bad marriage in preference to spinsterhood. TV announcer Betty Furness says it in one sentence:

"Marriage is the only way compatible with our society for women to fulfill their natural function of having babies."

Since children result from bad marriages as well as from good ones, Clark W. Blackburn, general director of the Family Service Association of America, points out that children are usually the most pathetic sufferers in an unhappy marriage.

"They sometimes have worse problems than children of broken homes," Blackburn notes. "But if there are no children in the line of fire, the bad marriage may be better than no marriage at all. There are a good many single men and women who would be more fulfilled by a bad marriage than they are in their present status."

Although a minority of family-life experts feel that some benefit may actually come from a bad marriage, many persons insist that an unhappy marriage can never be worthwhile.

Actress Lauren Bacall declares:

"A bad marriage is the worst state a person can be in. As lonely as it is to be by yourself, it is better to exist alone than to marry someone just to say you are 'Mrs. Somebody.' You are really 'Mrs. Nobody.'"

Florence Chadwick: "Marriage is a gamble. You have to take a chance."

Patti Page: "Don't marry if doubts exist."

Lauren, widow of actor Humphrey Bogart, considers marriage the highest form of friendship.

"Nothing hurts me more than to see people together as man and wife who really don't like each other," she says. "Mutual respect and regard are the strongest bonds of a good marriage. It is never any good if you don't have regard for the other person."

Miss Bacall's viewpoint is held by most marriage counselors and religious advisers. As the Reverend Eugene McKinley Pierce of New York's Marble Collegiate Church puts it:

"We would rather have people happy in the single state than unhappy in the married state."

Of course, few people marry expecting a bad marriage. Newlyweds are incurable optimists, usually believing in the magic of romance and the fairy-tale promise of living "happily ever after."

"Girls grow up assuming they'll make a happy marriage," says Dr. Laura W. Drummond, Professor of Home Economics at Teachers College, Columbia University. She adds:

"Did you ever hear of a little girl wanting to play 'maiden aunt' instead of 'mama'?"

"Nobody plans a bad marriage any more than one plans a bad job or bad health. Planning a good marriage is healthy, so long as you are willing to keep on looking and waiting for the right partner. But to get married just to have the 'Mrs.' is wrong."

Singer Patti Page agrees. She says, "Marriage is built on confidence in your love for your mate."

Marry early and marry again

Famed anthropologist Dr. Margaret Mead points out that "with the new-style family, there is increasing pressure on everyone to marry, to marry early, and to marry again, and increasing intolerance of the unmarried adult."

"The fact that one has been married has become a defense against accusations of abnormality and psychological maladjustment."

Dr. Mead's point of view is echoed by many women. Says one:

"You can be happy as a clam living by yourself, but nobody believes it. If you're single, everybody takes it for granted you must be 'frustrated.'"

What some women will do to avoid being called "frustrated," or to conform to the rules of their social group, can cause problems far outweighing the unpleasantness of being called an "old maid."

Take the sordid example of Mary Y., an 18-year-old girl who was anxious to get married "because all my high school friends were getting married." She did marry—after a snap decision during a weekend when she and a boy she knew casually "stood up" for two eloping schoolmates. Just for "kicks," Mary and the boy made it a double wedding. In a few weeks she was pregnant and out of school. In a few months, her teen-age husband deserted her. In a year, she was begging help from family service agencies so that she could support her baby.

At 19, Mary was what she wanted to be—a Mrs.—and a completely miserable girl.

Is there any way to prevent marriages like Mary's? Judge Creel Douglass of the Seventh Judicial District in Illinois has an important suggestion: He advocates a "cooling-off" period before matrimony.

Judge Douglass points out that Illinois requires a 60-day "cooling-off period" before a divorce is granted, and he feels that there would be fewer divorces if equal emphasis were placed on letting the prospective bride and bridegroom think it over before the wedding.

You have to take a chance

But the pressures that urge people to marry for marriage's sake unfortunately show no signs of disappearing. Since single women outnumber unmarried men in the U.S., the competition for a husband is more acute than ever. Many women, however, feel as champion swimmer Florence Chadwick does:

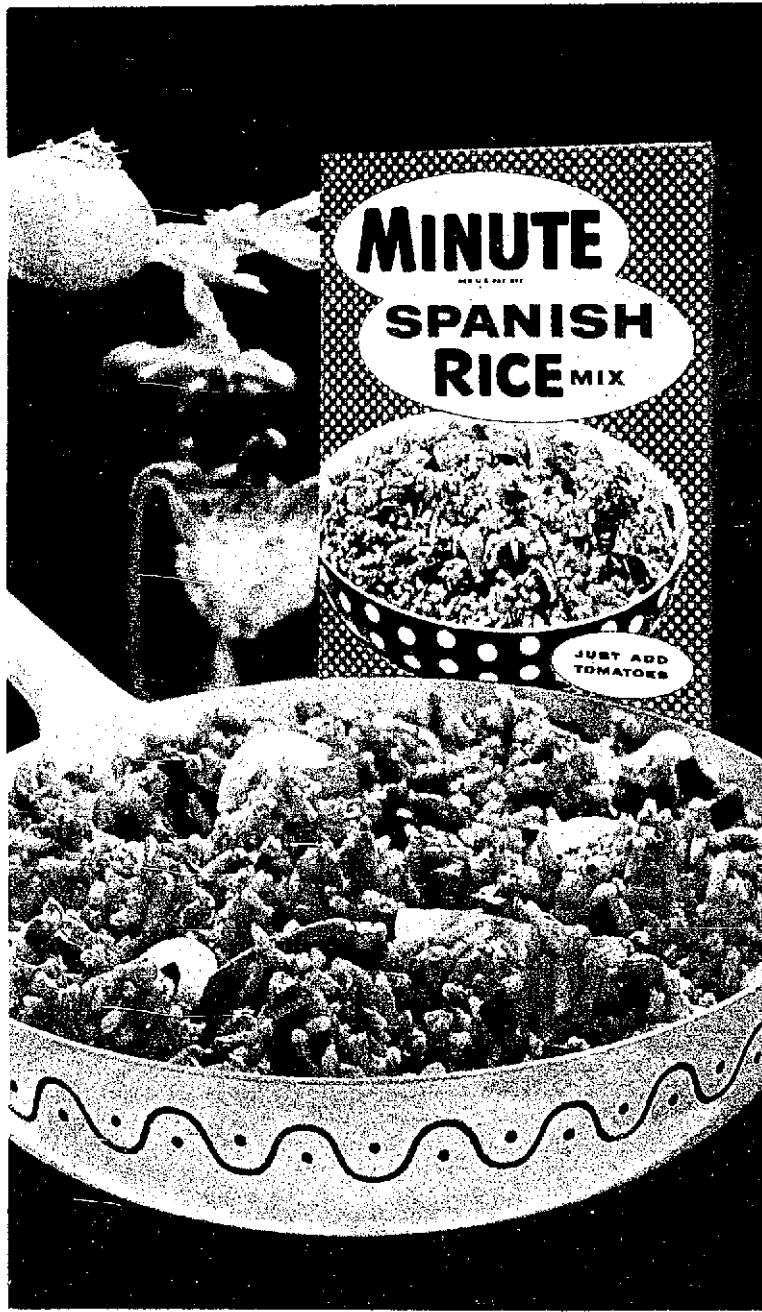

"Marriage is a gamble, but you have to take a chance."

And if a woman is as anxious to make her marriage work as she is to get married, experts say she's likely to wind up happily married, after all.

An example is the case of Grace W., an educated woman who married an unskilled factory worker because she desperately wanted to be married. At first, the marriage was a bad one. Grace looked down on her husband's occupation, and he resented her feeling that he wasn't "good enough."

But because Grace really wanted to make a go of it, she and her husband talked it out. They decided she would help support the family while he went to night school. For five years, he worked days and studied nights. Finally, he graduated and took a job with a large industrial concern as an accountant. Today he is a $10,000-a-year executive who credits his wife with his success. And they're a very happy couple. ■

“When it comes to Chicken Pies, Birds Eye takes the prize!”

Chicken Pies are a Birds Eye specialty, and we could rest our case just on all the plump, tender chunks of chicken we use. But just as important, we think, is what goes with it.

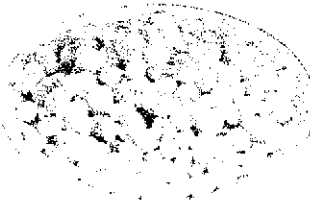

Take the gravy: real, honest-to-goodness chicken 'n biscuits kind of gravy. The crust: light, flaky, almost as good as mother used to make—when she had time. And rubbing elbows with the chicken, the kind of vegetables Birds Eye is famous for.

Birds Eye Turkey and Beef Pies, like all our products, get this same special care. You'll find it's the Birds Eye difference.

How to improve your luck

by LESTER DAVID

HAVE YOU been having terrible luck lately? Take heart, because science has news for you. You can improve your luck—and permanently at that!

Experts in human behavior, dipping into the role luck plays in our lives, are coming up with the surprising conclusion that we have more control over the elusive Dame Fortune than we realize.

Dr. Grace E. Lauro of the North Shore (Long Island) Neuropsychiatric Center, a psychologist who has studied the strange and baffling behavior of chance, tells us: "It is definitely possible to change our so-called bad luck. The key lies in trying to adopt certain traits of character and personality that will attract good luck."

"Time after time," she adds, "I have seen patients who bemoaned their succession of bad breaks become a good deal 'luckier' in their daily lives."

For example, a businessman who placed the blame for his failures on "just plain rotten luck all my life" is far more successful now. He opened a new clothing store in a suburban shopping center and is thriving. An 18-year-old girl who ascribed her inability to get along in school and her social life to "one miserable break after another" now finds herself dating regularly and happy in a job.

Both learned to look objectively at themselves and to find courage and confidence to do something about their deficiencies so they would attract good fortune.

Can you do the same?

Psychologist Melvin M. Katz of Merrick, N.Y., says: "We can make our own luck. What most people call the 'breaks' is really making better use of our own powers in going after the goals we seek. By making ourselves more receptive to the opportunities that come our way, we can make ourselves luck-prone."

Dr. Edmund C. Neuhaus, a clinical psychologist and consultant to the Institute of Health at Adelphi College, agrees. He points out that the overwhelming majority of happenings we call luck have actually been created by luck-prone persons, who have made themselves that way.

"Sudden instances of good fortune such as profitable investments, awards, remarkable jobs, discoveries, even escapes from accident or death, are rarely the result of pure chance," asserts Dr. Neuhaus.

Thomas A. Edison, for instance, discovered the filament that lights in a bulb by "accident." After more than a year's fruitless hunt for a filament, during which he tested innumerable substances, his fingers one night happened to fall on a lump of lamp black mixed with tar. Idly, he played with it, twisting and pulling. Finally he rose, sighed and began cleaning off his blackened fingers. Suddenly he stopped—he had pulled the lamp black into a string. Would this work? He tried it. The carbon in the substance did the trick.

Pure luck? Of course not. "Putting it simply," says Dr. Neuhaus, "Edison was ready for an opportunity when it came his way."

Take the case of a Connecticut mother who was fed up with diaper covers that never worked well on her babies. One day while stepping out of the shower she glanced at the shower curtains and decided to make her own diaper covers. She did, and it was the start of a million-dollar business. Just luck? No, she saw a golden opportunity and was ready.

How, then, can you become luck-prone?

Psychologists and psychiatrists agree on this basic rule: "Prepare yourself now as carefully and thoroughly as possible so that you will reach out and grab a chance when it floats your way."

There are four traits or life habits you can try to cultivate to expose yourself as much as possible to "lucky breaks":

1. Develop your bump of curiosity.

"The more curious you are," advises Dr. Lauro, "the more you explore things in and around you, the more likely you will be to recognize and grab an opportunity, and turn it to your advantage."

One day a man named W. E. Gaine accidentally dropped a sheet of cotton rag paper into a pan of sulphuric acid. The paper was ruined, of course, but Gaine, an intensely curious man, noted that it was now strangely translucent. Instead of turning away and getting on with his work, he dipped another sheet of paper into the acid. The same thing happened. The result of his curiosity: vegetable parchment, a paper used for legal documents and maps and by every store that sells food.

Curiosity alerts you to chances and prads you to exploration that can pay off in a jackpot. You can be on your way to looking into a new business idea, a short-cut in production that can save money for your company and win you a promotion, a job change or a new activity that can enhance your civic and community prestige.

At lunch one day in Johns Hopkins University, a laboratory assistant named Constantine Fahlgberg discovered that the food he touched was sweeter than anything he had ever known. A substance he'd been mixing in a vat hadn't been washed off his hands properly. Instead of shrugging off the incident, he was intrigued. He investigated. Luck—plus a very healthy curiosity—gave the world saccharine.

"Be adventuresome," advises Dr. Neuhaus. "Don't be afraid to take a certain amount of chances. Missed opportunity is the price of total reliance on comfortable security."

Dr. Lauro adds: "People who lack faith in themselves will stay in job or social ruts all their lives, afraid of expanding their horizons, of meeting new people, of enjoying new experiences. They will be failures and will blame bad luck. But they just looked the other way when luck did come along."

The willingness to take calculated risks is simply another trap you set out to catch luck.

3. Sharpen your imagination.

"Many so-called lucky people," says Dr. Richard Hoffman, nationally known psychiatrist, "are really hard workers who apply foresight and nimble-mindedness to events that present themselves."

On a chilly morning during World War II, two Air Force engineers headed for the post cafeteria at Wright Field for a cup of coffee. When they learned that between-meals coffee wasn't served to field personnel, they wandered to a soft-drink vending machine.

At this point most of us would have quaffed the pop and gone back to work. But the two engineers had imagination: an idea began perking in their minds and it smelled like coffee. Why, they reasoned, couldn't someone create a vending machine that sold hot coffee?

That cold morning, plus imagination, added up to a fortune for Lloyd Rudd and Cy Melikian, founders of the Kwik-Kafe dispensing machine enterprises in Philadelphia.

Your imagination can be honed with practice. Try this trick: Ask yourself if the gadgets now available for the kitchen, garage, garden or workshop work as well as they might. Then ask: "How can I improve on them?" Chances are you won't hit on a million-dollar idea. But you will be training your imagination so that you will have still another luck-trap set out.

4. Be willing and able to change your mind.

Old-fashioned rules of behavior tell us: "Make your decision, then stick to it no matter what." Modern psychologists say, however, that wearing mental blinders after you make up your mind on a course of action is foolish. Rather, keep your eyes and mind open, and feel free to alter your course in favor of a better one.

When David Sarnoff was 15, he had his mind made up to be a newspaperman. Already a newspaper boy, he went to the New York building in which a large newspaper had its offices and asked for a job as office boy. By mistake, however, he had walked into the office of the American Cable Co. in the same building. Young David was offered a job—then realized it was in the wrong profession. He was told to think it over, and did. Instead of walking out, he took the job. The ability to switch decisions put him on the road to success in radio and television.

Says Dr. Neuhaus: "The ability to carry through a decision is important, but total inflexibility can blind an individual to wiser actions."

There you have four traits to make you luck-prone. Don't sit back and wait for the breaks. Lightning may strike but the odds are against it. You've got a much better chance if you bait luck with the right approach to living. For luck is nothing more than making the most of your chances in life.

Rose Bowl hero Schloredt is carried into dressing room by teammates.

Meet Washington's Bob Schloredt

THE AMAZING

by SID ROSS

SEATTLE, WASH.

Leading the charge of an underdog University of Washington football team as it trampled Wisconsin, 44-8, in the last Rose Bowl game was a moon-faced, blond quarterback named Bob Schloredt. The 6-foot, 195-pound junior picked his way through tiny gaps in the Wisconsin line, slung three out of four passes smack into the arms of receivers. What makes this a special feat is that the 20-year-old Schloredt—as a result of a boyhood accident—is almost completely blind in one eye.

His scarred left eye—it's so weak he can't recognize his own mother with it at five paces—hasn't harmed his football reputation at all. In fact, Schloredt admits that publicity about being a "one-eyed quarterback" was probably a factor in getting him on two 1959 All-American teams.

But as this year's football season begins, it is no secret here that Schloredt is out to prove he is no football freak but genuine All-American material.

"I don't think I am the world's greatest player," he says candidly. "But I want to be judged by what I can do on a football field, not by any so-called handicap."

His nearly sightless eye is not really a handicap, maintains Schloredt. "By moving my head back and forth," he says, "I can make the good eye do the work of two. In this way, I can see almost as well as a quarterback who has perfect eyes. In picking All-Americans, it's only fair to forget about bad eyes—to judge by performance, not by eye charts."

With Schloreidt at quarterback last fall, Washington ran through 10 of 11 opponents. He completed 39 of his 75 passes, with only two intercepted.

Publicly, Schloreidt is a modest young man who says he is "just adequate" as a quarterback, but his teammates describe him as brimming with self-confidence on the field. In the Rose Bowl he gambled twice on fourth down running plays. Each time the ball carrier was Schloreidt himself. Each time he made the yardage.

Always the New Kid

Schloreidt learned to meet challenges early. His father is a school teacher-baseball-football coach who held jobs all over the Northwest and now lives in Portland, Ore. Bob and his younger sister always were "the new kids in school."

"I had my share of fights," Bob recalls. "But after a while I'd pick out the toughest kid on the first day and fight him. That would settle things right away."

When he was 6, Bob was playing on a Moorcroft, Wyo., street. Another boy dropped a firecracker in a bottle and threw the bottle in the air. As it hit the ground, the bottle exploded. A jagged piece of glass flew into Bob's left eye.

An emergency operation saved only 10 per cent of vision in the eye. "My left eye can see figures but not faces. I can count fingers only when they're real close—and even then they're blurred," Bob says.

His parents' attitude helped put him on the road to being an All-American. "They took the injury in stride," he says gratefully. "They let me do all the things the other kids did. My mother never worried when I played ball. And my dad treated me like all the other kids in class."

With his dad's encouragement, Bob put together an amazing record at Gresham (Ore.) High. He was a .350-hitting baseball player, a consistently high-scoring basketball player, an All-State quarterback, and he even did some boxing. He still had time to be an honor student.

"Only a few close friends knew I had a bad eye," Schloreidt says. "I never thought about it. I got used to it."

During his first two years at Washington, Bob was less than a sensation. As a sophomore he was second-string quarterback to another soph, Bob Hivner. When Hivner was hurt in the first game last season, Schloreidt came in to pull Washington to a 21-12 victory over Colorado. He became the Huskies' man of the hour.

Head Coach Jim Owens is still astonished by what Schloreidt can do. "His depth perception is limited," says Owens. "Yet he can put a ball into the arms of a weaving receiver 50 yards away. Unconsciously, I think, Bob has developed instincts that take the place of perfect vision."

A friendly, serious-looking young man, Schloreidt wears conservative Ivy League suits that make him look less like a football player, more like a junior executive. He seems older than 20, conversing with a quiet maturity. He politely addresses interviewers as "sir."

That Certain Instinct

But he's far from being old-fogeyish. On campus he is as likely as the next man to whistle at a co-ed. And his seriousness is non-existent in the dormitory, where he has achieved fame as a practical joker (his favorite gambit is said to be smearing vaseline on door knobs).

Although rated intelligent and studious, Bob has slipped from an "A" student in high school to a "C" student in college. "I may be thinking about football too much," he says. Now a senior, Schloreidt has been studying to be a dentist, but today he's leaning more toward a career in professional football and a coaching job.

This fall his ambitions are clear. They are: 1) to steer Washington to the championship of the newly-formed Western Conference and the Rose Bowl again; and 2) to prove he's more than just a one-eyed wonder.

"The way I look at things," Schloreidt says, "is this: What counts is not how many handicaps you have to overcome, but how well you do the job."

When visiting hospital patients...

Please don't sit on the bed

What you do — or fail to do — may make your sick friend even sicker. Here are rules you can follow to avoid being an "incurable visitor"

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

WHAT'S THE RIGHT way to behave when you visit a friend or relative in a hospital?

This question is more important than ever today, because an estimated 24 million Americans—an all-time high—will be hospitalized this year.

PARADE consulted nurses, doctors and patients to find do's and don't's for a good visitor to follow. Here they are:

1) SIT WHERE THE PATIENT CAN SEE AND HEAR YOU without straining. This can be especially important in surgical cases, in fracture cases or where the patient has been injured and must lie absolutely still in the period of recovery.

2) VISIT FOR A REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME. A short stay of, say, 15 or 20 minutes may serve as a tonic for the patient, but staying an hour or longer is likely to tire him.

Another good rule to follow: wait till there are only one or two other visitors before you go into the room. Visitors sometimes have a way of descending in hordes, which may tax or over-tire the patient.

Of course, there are visitors who feel compelled to tell jokes, yak it up loudly and even bring something to drink. They fail to realize that a hospital room is not a social hall.

3) BE ENCOURAGING. Visitors must tread a fine line between obvious sugar-coating and honest encouragement. Patients like to hear good news but do not want to be told in an offhand fashion that their sicknesses "are really nothing." Most are willing to accept illness, if you, the visitor, help them to believe that illness can be overcome.

4) BRING GOOD NEWS. It bolsters a patient to hear that something good has happened to someone he cares for. "The kids really miss you" is far less welcome than "Johnny made me promise to tell you that he got an 'A' in spelling."

A good tip: some patients feel lonely and forgotten and want to do most of the talking. So be a good listener.

5) OFFER TO HELP — in practical, meaningful ways. Patients appreciate any help from straightening the bedclothes (carefully, of course) to rearranging flowers and writing letters.

Can you run an errand for the patient, pass a message to his boss or make a phone call for him? Ask yourself such questions.

So much for do's. For a list of don't's, see opposite page.

Six things to avoid doing when you visit a hospital:

1) DON'T LET YOUR JAW DROP. "I was beginning to feel fine," a patient at New York Hospital complains, "until my brother came in, turned white and let his jaw fall open. I figured if I look that bad, I must really be sick." Anxious expressions, plus pep talks, annoy hospital patients. Tears, wringing of hands and nervous pacing make them feel very uncomfortable, too.

2) DON'T SIT ON THE BED AND TELL HIM YOUR TROUBLES. There is a dreadful type which says to the person in bed: "You think you've got it tough? Well, let me tell you what happened to me!"

This fellow is a bore and gets on the nerves of the patient and the hospital staff.

3) DON'T GIVE MEDICAL ADVICE. Well-meaning visitors often try to second-guess the doctor or nurse. This can be dangerous and upsetting to the patient. The visitor who says knowingly, "They didn't give you any penicillin?" simply creates doubts in the patient's mind which are harmful and unnecessary.

Also, visitors who criticize hospital services undermine the patient's morale.

4) DON'T SHAKE HANDS WITH THE PATIENT. First, you may cause the patient pain and discomfort. Second, he may not really feel up to indulging in this particular social grace.

It is possible, too, that his arm aches from injections, including those involving intravenous feeding.

5) DON'T WHISPER TO THE DOCTOR OR NURSE in the patient's presence. This may instill suspicions in the patient's mind that the "awful truth" is being kept from him.

Many hospital patients already are tense and anxious about their condition. The whispered word only serves to heighten their fears and anxieties.

6) DON'T VISIT A PATIENT IF YOU HAVE A COLD or feel sick. The patient, after all, is recovering from an illness or from surgery. If you give him your cold or other ailment, you add to his troubles, may even endanger his life. Remember, every effort should be made on your part to prevent complications—even minor ones.

A final word: at times, visitors bring patients food and other gifts which are not permitted. Visitors would do well to listen to the doctor or nurse on this subject.

As the famous nurse Florence Nightingale said: "There is scarcely a greater worry patients have than the incurable hopes of their friends and relatives."

A kiss from Cinderella

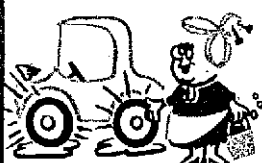

SOME DOORS HAVE all the luck. This one, on an old Italian villa south of Rome, gets a kiss from its new owner, film star Sophia Loren to seal her recent purchase. Twelve years ago Sophia Loren was a skinny, illegitimate waif roaming the streets of Naples, so poor she haunted breadlines for a bite to eat. Now 26 and at the peak of her fame and world-wide popularity, the actress recently was robbed of $500,000 worth of jewelry in London, where she completed her latest film. Her jewelry (not insured) is gone, but at least Sophia has—besides an annual income of approximately $350,000—this picturesque, kissable villa. Miss Loren's males fans might like to change places with that door.

New flavored square and bar cookies

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade Food Editor

COOKIES THAT CUT into bars or squares are a favorite with cookie-lovers of all ages. These two new recipes are sure to be popular served as an after-school snack or with afternoon tea—or even mailed to students or friends. (To pack for mailing, use popcorn to fill crevices.)

Crispy Fudge Squares

1 6-oz. package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
½ cup softened butter or margarine
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup finely chopped nuts

Melt chocolate pieces over hot (not boiling) water. Cream together butter, sugar; stir in vanilla. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt; stir into creamed mixture. Add melted chocolate, finely chopped nuts; mix well. Spread in ungreased 9" x 13" baking pan. Sprinkle ¾ cup coarsely chopped nuts over top, press in gently. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 18 to 20 minutes. Cool. Makes two dozen 2" squares.

Double-Scotch Pecan Bars

¾ cup softened butter or margarine
1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup milk
1 6-oz. package (1 cup) butterscotch pieces
1 cup flaked coconut
1 cup chopped pecans

Cream together butter and sugar; stir in egg and vanilla. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Add alternately to creamed mixture with milk. Fold in butterscotch pieces, coconut and pecans. Spread evenly on greased cookie sheet into a 14" x 10" rectangle. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) 15 minutes. Cool. Spread with Butterscotch Topping if desired. Cut in bars 2½" x 1". Makes approximately 60 bars.

Butterscotch Topping

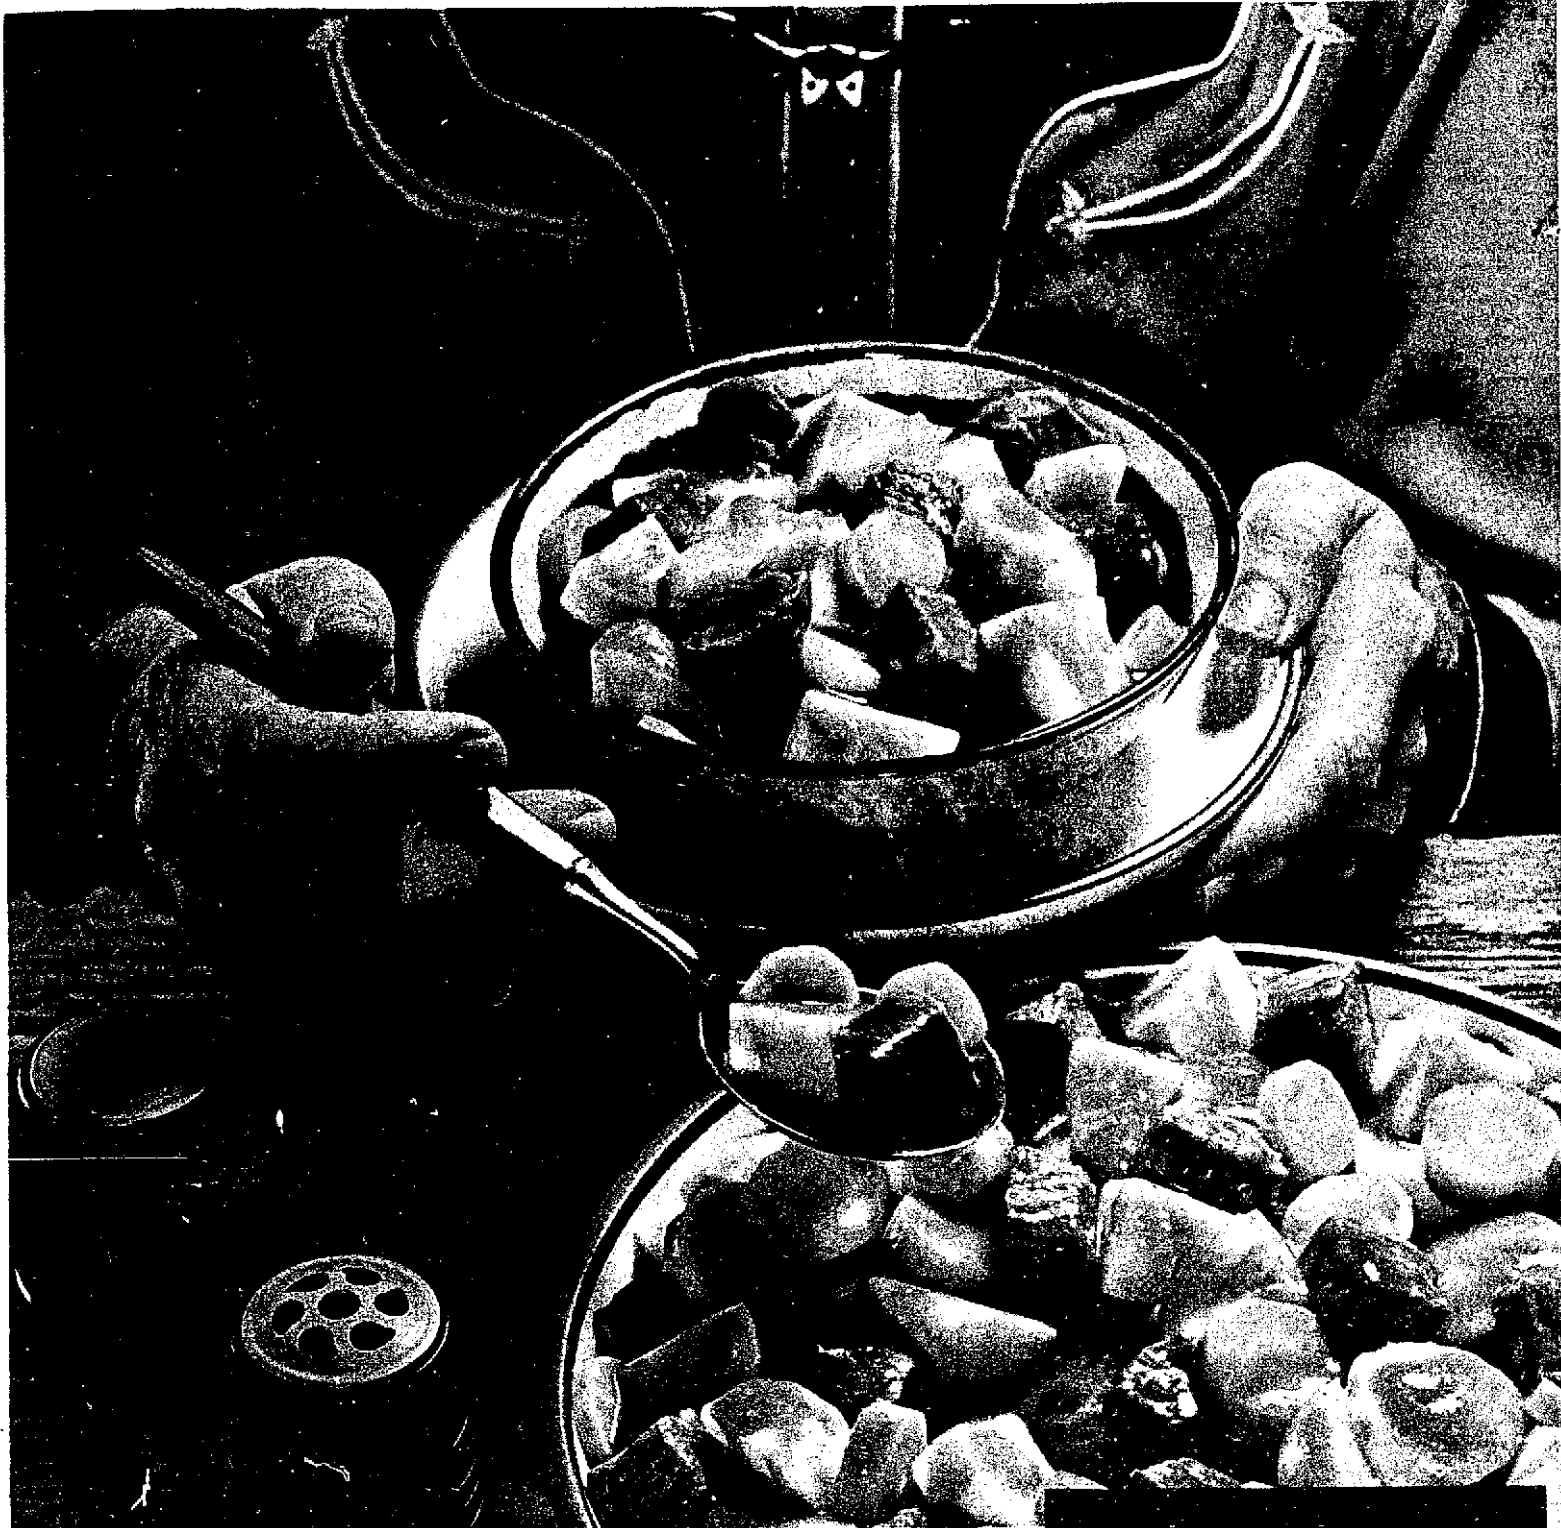

1 6-oz. package (1 cup) butterscotch morsels
1 teaspoon salad oil
2 tablespoons water

Melt butterscotch morsels with salad oil over hot (not boiling) water. Add the 2 tablespoons water; stir vigorously until smooth.

Thanks to television, this town has...

NO MORE SCHOOL

by ED KESTER

ANAHEIM, CALIF.

AS ONE OF the nation's fastest growing communities, this Los Angeles suburb has had school problems to match. Enrollment increased 900 per cent in eight years. Qualified teachers could not be hired fast enough. Badly-needed courses could not be added. The tax rate threatened to soar completely out of sight.

Then Anaheim hit upon a remarkable solution—one most school men would have rejected as too costly, too controversial or both. For $489,000, with a minimum of outside help, and without increasing the tax rate, Anaheim built its own educational TV station. Today every student in the third through sixth grades attends TV classes at least 43 minutes a day. And there have been these results:

- Elementary science, "enriched" arithmetic and Spanish are being taught in all schools for the first time.
- Hard-pressed classroom teachers have been relieved of some lesson and planning loads.
- Costs of an additional school building and of 27 hard-to-find teachers have been saved.
- TV-taught students are showing faster progress than those not taught by TV.
- The whole project has become a model for other fast-growing communities.

"TV has put real quality into our schools," says Robert E. Shanks, superintendent of the Anaheim City School District. "Take science, for instance. Who can find 20 elementary teachers really qualified in science these days? Our science program usually consisted of some kid bringing in his rock collection. But today we have one crackerjack science teacher. And by TV she can teach all the fourth-graders in the system."

Shanks' words are being echoed by many educators around the U.S. In eight years of development, educational TV has had vast impact on American schools—"the most important educational tool since the invention of movable type," a recent report called it.

This year a million students in a thousand schools will be getting part of their education by TV. And thousands of adults will attend the living room classes of Sunrise Semester and Continental Classroom.

On the Air—Literally

As opposition melts, new frontiers of teaching by television are being explored. One of the most startling experiments, the Midwest Project on Airborne Television Instruction, is due for tests in February and full operation next fall.

From an airplane circling above Indiana, programs on electronic tape will be televised to schools and colleges in five states. More than five million students will be within range of the telecast. Engineers consider this a practical—and economical—way of televising classes.

Of all TV experiments, however, the most ambitious is in Washington County, Md., where a six-channel network has been set up as a pilot project in closed-circuit operation.

With sets on, televised Spanish lesson surrounds fifth-graders in Anaheim, Calif., school. Large room, part of special experiment, has 75 students, six TV sets.

PROBLEMS

With sets off, teacher Robert Gasio leads Spanish-language game of "Simon says" to review TV lessons. Gasio likes clockwork way classes operate with TV.

REDUCING QUIZ

Overweight? Answer the questions below correctly and you're as good as thin now!

1. Can skipping meals be harmful when reducing? Yes ☐ No ☐
2. Is there any danger in following "liquid diets"? Yes ☐ No ☐
3. Do doctors disapprove of "appetite deterrents"? Yes ☐ No ☐
4. Is there an effective, no-drug "appetite deterrent"? Yes ☐ No ☐
5. Can you reduce by eating candy? Yes ☐ No ☐
6. Is there clinical proof that a reducing-plan candy helps make you thin? Yes ☐ No ☐
7. Is a doctor's prescription needed to purchase a reducing-plan candy? Yes ☐ No ☐

You may think you're pretty smart when it comes to losing weight. But chances are there's a lot you could learn. For your own sake, don't make a guessing game of it. Check the answers to these questions—below.

Answers

1. Yes. Skipping meals can be harmful when reducing. For proper health and vigor, the body needs a required amount of nutrition, best supplied by eating naturally three times a day. 2. Yes. There can be danger in following "liquid diets." Even if a formula contains minimum daily nutrition, the body needs bulk food for daily "regularity." A steady diet of liquids omits this bulk, which is essential to proper elimination. 3. No. Doctors do not disapprove of "appetite deterrents" if they are safe, i.e. if they contain no harmful drugs. 4. Yes. There is an effective, no-drug "appetite deterrent" which is called Ayds Reducing Plan Vitamin and Mineral Candy. 5. Yes. Medical researchers agree that you can reduce with the help of candy, such as low-calorie, vitamin and mineral Ayds. Here's how it works. Taken before meals as directed, Ayds Candy satisfies the immediate food needs of the body. It actually curbs your appetite, so you automatically eat less—lose pounds and inches naturally. In fact, you must lose weight with your first box of Ayds ($3.25) or you get your money back. 6. Yes. There is proof that a reducing-plan candy helps make you thin. Ayds has been tested at a well-known Boston medical center, a leading Chicago university and by a prominent nutrition authority in New York. When compared to other reducing products tested, plus a strict diet alone, Ayds gave the best overall results. 7. No. A prescription is not needed to purchase Ayds Reducing Plan Vitamin and Mineral Candy. It comes in a chewy vanilla caramel and a softer chocolate fudge-type—so easy to bite into. Ideal for people with dentures. Both kinds of Ayds are available at drug and department stores everywhere.

TV is 'a valuable teaching tool'—everywhere

The Washington County experiment now is in its fifth year. From a central control studio in Hagerstown, classes are piped into 37 county schools with an enrollment of 16,500. Every student watches at least one program a day. Every grade level has at least one special program. The experiment has even attempted to use TV to shore up the guidance program. Educators have come to Hagerstown from all over the world to admire and observe.

Among Hagerstown's visitors in 1958 were Anaheim's Superintendent Shanks and a school board member, David Snow. Like many others, Shanks and Snow were awed, but went home shaking their heads about the cost. To duplicate the operation, they found, would cost more than $1.5 million. In the Hagerstown project studio equipment and cable had been donated and the Ford Foundation had contributed nearly $800,000. Anaheim had no such resources and could not expect such donations.

Anaheim's five-member school board, however, began looking for ways to whittle the estimate. A $250,000 appropriation for a new school office was diverted to build studios. Snow, an electronics executive, and Shanks negotiated a rock-bottom price of $163,000 for studio hardware and classroom receivers. They effected similar bargains for coaxial cable.

From the Ford Foundation, the schools obtained $25,000. The federal government contributed $30,000 to subsidize science, math and language courses. The remainder of the money came from the general budget. It made up less than three per cent of the schools' annual expenditure last year.

Amateurs in Charge

CCTV is built on ingenuity, with few frills. It has no cameramen, for instance—"zoom" lens cameras are controlled from a booth. Of the 16-person staff, only producer Charles Callaci and an assistant have had previous TV experience. The others are teachers, who double as cable-pullers and lighting experts.

"This is every teacher's dream," says John Shea, the fifth-grade social studies TV teacher. "I've never really had enough time for preparation in the past. This way, I can spend six or eight hours getting ready for a single class. I can make exhibits and drawings that really help the children see what I'm talking about."

Three Weeks' Work in 25 Minutes

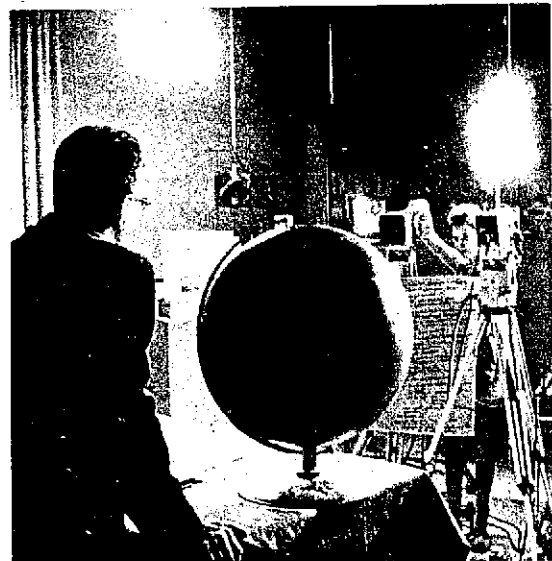

A frequent complaint about TV is that students have no chance to question the teacher. "That's been overrated," Shea says. "A teacher worth his salt can anticipate about 90 per cent of the questions the students will ask." And classroom teachers who feared TV would push them to the sidelines have found they are more active and stimulated than ever.

What Shea teaches by TV is outlined in a study guide planned by all the fifth-grade teachers. For a typical program on Hawaii recently, he worked off and on for three weeks.

The other teachers follow a similar procedure, producing about five hours of programming daily. This fall the schedule includes Spanish, social studies, science, mathematics and music, for each grade from third through sixth.

Let's look at the typical TV day of an Anaheim student—Bob Cranston, a fifth-grader at Jefferson School. Bob's class is part of Anaheim's "redeployment project." This means that he and 74 other students spend all morning in a large "resource room" made over from the school auditorium. The class has two teachers, a clerical helper and six TV sets.

The sets are switched on for 55 minutes—25 for science or social studies, 15 for Spanish, 15 for arithmetic. Bob's morning centers around the set. In Spanish, for instance, classroom teacher Robert Gasio and TV teacher Frank Robles follow the same study guide. Before the program begins, Gasio will "warm up" the students with a game in Spanish. Afterwards, he will help them to review what Robles has just taught.

On camera, social studies teacher John Shea gets help from teacher Louise Tontl. Shea says TV has improved his teaching.

Afternoons, Bob Cranston and other members of his group take reading, spelling and other "skill" subjects in 25-pupil classes, switching places with 75 other students. Unconventional as this setup seems, it has produced results in the four schools tried.

According to Dr. Weldy Lefever of the University of Southern California School of Education, Anaheim's TV classes are substantially superior in arithmetic, somewhat better in fifth-grade social studies and slightly better in science than those taught by conventional methods. Only in fourth-grade social studies has TV failed to show a measurable advantage.

"We believe that television has very definitely improved the quality of education in the district," Supt. Shanks says. "It has made possible many opportunities which otherwise could not have been provided for boys and girls who attend our schools. To a rapidly-growing school district like Anaheim, TV seems to offer the best possible means of guaranteeing every child the sound education he needs today."

Answers to parents' questions about educational television

Why bother with televised teaching? What can it do that ordinary teaching can't?

Television can bring students educational experiences far beyond the potential of the conventional classroom. In literature, instead of reading the poems of Robert Frost, for instance, students can hear Robert Frost read them and talk about them. In social studies, students can visit many historic places that they otherwise would not be able to visit. In science, television's magnifying power gives all the students a look into the microscope. Many science demonstrations require hours of preparation to set up cumbersome equipment. With television, the experiment is set up once.

How can I be sure my child will learn as well with television as without it?

During 1958-59, 141 separate tests were administered by the National Program in the Use of Television in the Public Schools. These tests involved 69,197 pupils. In 97 cases results favored those studying with television. In 40 of these 97 cases, the difference was statistically significant.

Don't students tend to sit back and look for entertainment in the televised course?

On the contrary, students are learning early the art of taking notes and the ability to concentrate. Many have been stimulated to make greater use of the school library than students in conventional classes. And most TV lessons are designed to make students respond. For example, the teacher says, "And when you connect line A with line B, you know what we've formed, don't you?" It's common for the class to answer.

Don't children suffer from not being able to ask questions?

TV teachers are able to anticipate many student questions. Moreover, many students like the idea of having the teacher present the lesson without interruptions. Finally, classroom teachers have learned to handle questions in the follow-up part of the lessons.

Isn't TV bad for the children's eyes?

The maximum amount of daily instruction on television is one and one-half hours—far less than the average child sees outside of school.

Isn't TV forcing teachers out of work?

The U.S. Office of Education estimates that schools are short more than 100,000 qualified teachers. Besides, television doesn't replace teachers, it temporarily redeploys them; that is, some teach in the studio and some specialize in the classroom follow-up. Almost all those teaching in the studio for a year or two find it necessary to get back before the class for a year.

Isn't there a discipline problem when students are told to watch the set with no supervision?

The usual procedure in the National Program was for two or three normal-sized classes to watch the televised lesson with one or two supervisors. A few honor classes have no supervision. Only in unforeseen circumstances does an average class view the televised lesson without a teacher in the classroom.

My daughter is especially gifted. How can TV reach both her and the standard student?

The reactions of gifted children to TV varied. Some were bored. Others said they found the TV teacher superior to their classroom teacher. But three things should be remembered: 1) With TV, the classroom teacher has more time to devote to individual students and is better able to devise a program for each gifted student; 2) The idea of TV is to make the best teacher available to present the best lesson. The superior student probably sees a lesson better than the one offered by his classroom teacher; 3) It's not unusual in conventional teaching for a class to fall behind while the teacher repeats for slower students.

Only a few American fathers have lived to see it happen and say with pride, That's...

Joseph Kennedy, 72, father of Democratic candidate, hopes to see son in White House. Himself the son of a tavern keeper, Kennedy is more famous than most Presidential fathers. He built a fortune in the stock market, headed Securities and Exchange Commission during New Deal, was U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

Frank Nixon, father of Vice President, was 77 when he died in 1956 after son's renomination. He came from a Quaker family of modest circumstances, worked as a streetcar motorman in Ohio. He migrated to the far West in the 1900s, opened a family grocery in Whittier, Calif. He lived to see his son achieve worldwide fame.

WHITE HOUSE

by GLENN C. EVERETT

WASHINGTON, D.C.

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY, 72-year-old Boston and Palm Beach millionaire, hopes to attain a distinction only five men in American history have enjoyed: that of seeing his son enter the White House as President of the United States.

Vice President Richard Nixon's father, the late Frank Nixon, however, didn't live long enough to see if his son would make it to the White House. A Whittier, Calif., grocer and one-time Columbus, Ohio, streetcar motorman, he died September 4, 1956, at 77.

Thirty-three men in American history fathered sons who grew up to be President. But the company can hardly be termed an exclusive one. It includes men from every walk of life, from a penniless Irish immigrant to a distinguished former President.

Twenty-eight Presidential fathers never lived to see their sons' Inauguration Days. And not more than a half dozen of these had any intimation that their sons had such a destiny.

Little Did They Know

Frank Nixon, in fact, lived longer than most Presidential fathers. He had seen his son's meteoric rise from naval service in World War II to a seat in the House of Representatives, to the Senate, and then to the Vice Presidency at the age of only 39. As he lay dying, his son won renomination as Vice President.

More typically, Augustine Washington died April 12, 1743, when his son George was 11. He had no hint of his son's coming fame.

The day after the elder Washington died, a son was born to another Virginia planter. But Peter Jefferson no more than Augustine Washington could have dreamed what manner of son he left behind.

Two Presidential fathers never even knew they had sons. Andrew Jackson, a penniless Irish immigrant linen weaver, died in 1767, one month before his wife gave birth to the son who won renown on the battlefield and as judge, governor and President. Rutherford Hayes, a humble grocer in Delaware, O., was stricken at 35. A fifth child was born six months posthumously to his widow and given his name. He carried it to honor as a Civil War general, governor and President.

When Jesse Clark Hoover, West Branch, Iowa, blacksmith and farm implement dealer, was stricken with pneumonia at 34 in 1880, his son, Herbert Clark Hoover, was a boy of 6. Hoover was orphaned by his mother's death three years later and reared by an aunt.

Jacob Johnson, a Raleigh, N.C., constable, died at 33, leaving a 3-year-old son Andrew. Abram Garfield, dying in 1832 in a cabin in the Ohio wilderness, told his wife: "I have planted four seedlings with you here; see that they grow straight and true." James Abram Garfield, 1-year old, did.

Even fathers who lived to more advanced years did not have any inkling of their sons' future fame. When John Anderson Truman, Grandview, Mo., farmer, died at 62 in 1914, his son Harry was his partner in operating the farm. The political career that was to follow service with Battery D in World War I and carry Harry Truman to the U.S. Senate, the Vice Presidency and then the White House was far in the future. Old John Truman would have been flabbergasted had anyone told him such a thing was possible.

So, too, probably would have been James Roosevelt, the Hyde Park, N.Y., lawyer, banker and railroad financier. When he died in 1900 at 72, his son Franklin D., only child of a second marriage, was an 18-year-old Harvard student. Still ahead lay a political career that would rival that of his distant cousin, Theodore Roosevelt, then the energetic young governor of New York state.

When David J. Eisenhower died at 79 in Abilene, Kan., on March 18, 1942, he had the satisfaction of having seen five fine sons grow to manhood. One of them was a nationally known figure, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College. Another son, Dwight David Eisenhower, had just been promoted to brigadier general in the war plans division of the U.S. Army general staff. It was just a temporary promotion for the duration of the war. Ike's expectation was to retire as a colonel. His promotion over the heads of scores of senior officers to take command of the European theater was still ahead.

Some fathers lived to see their sons elected—and also to see them repudiated.

Nathaniel Fillmore, for instance, a New York state farmer and magistrate, saw his son Millard succeed President Zachary Taylor upon the latter's death, July 9, 1850. But he also lived to see him repudiated and denied renomination in 1852 and decisively defeated as the Presidential candidate of the Know Nothing party in 1856.

And there was Dr. George T. Harding, the retired Marion, Ohio, surgeon. He lived to see his son, Sen. Warren G. Harding, emerge as the "dark horse" of the 1920 Republican convention and enter the White House—also to see him die in office two years later, dishonored by political scandals that sent members of his Administration to prison. Dr. Harding died in Santa Ana, Calif., at the age of 84, a forgotten man.

Jesse Root Grant, however, the ne'er-do-well Point Pleasant, O., tannery operator, lived to see his son, Ulysses Simpson Grant, break through the bad luck that dogged the family, emerge a hero from the Civil War and enter the White House. Old Jesse died in 1872 at the age of 79 while his son was President; just as the scandals of that Administration broke.

Adams and Son

Two Presidential fathers probably did derive a full measure of satisfaction from that honor. John Adams, who had been turned out of office in 1801 after an unpopular administration, was 88 when his son, John Quincy Adams, emerged from the bitterly contested election of 1824 as President, chosen by the House of Representatives (since no candidate had won a majority of the electoral vote).

It was a tainted election, many said, but John Quincy Adams had made his own way to the White House, aided only by the distinction of the Adams name. When John Adams died on July 4, 1826, his son was still in the White House, trying vainly to surmount the political storms of the day.

Finally, there was John Calvin Coolidge Sr., the Vermont farmer and justice of the peace, whom befall the greatest honor of all. On August 2, 1923, when the stunning news reached Vermont that President Old composite photo recreates historic scene: Calvin Coolidge (l.) being sworn as President by father on Vermont farm.

Harding had died of an apparent stroke in San Francisco, old Squire Coolidge came down the stairs by lamplight and administered the oath of office to his son Calvin, then Vice President, who was visiting the family homestead.

Asked whether he had authority to administer the oath, the taciturn Yankee farmer replied, "Who says I haven't?" Empowered to administer oaths for legal documents in the state of Vermont, he swore his son in as President, the only time this has happened in American history. Three years later, while his son was serving his second term as President, the elder Coolidge died.

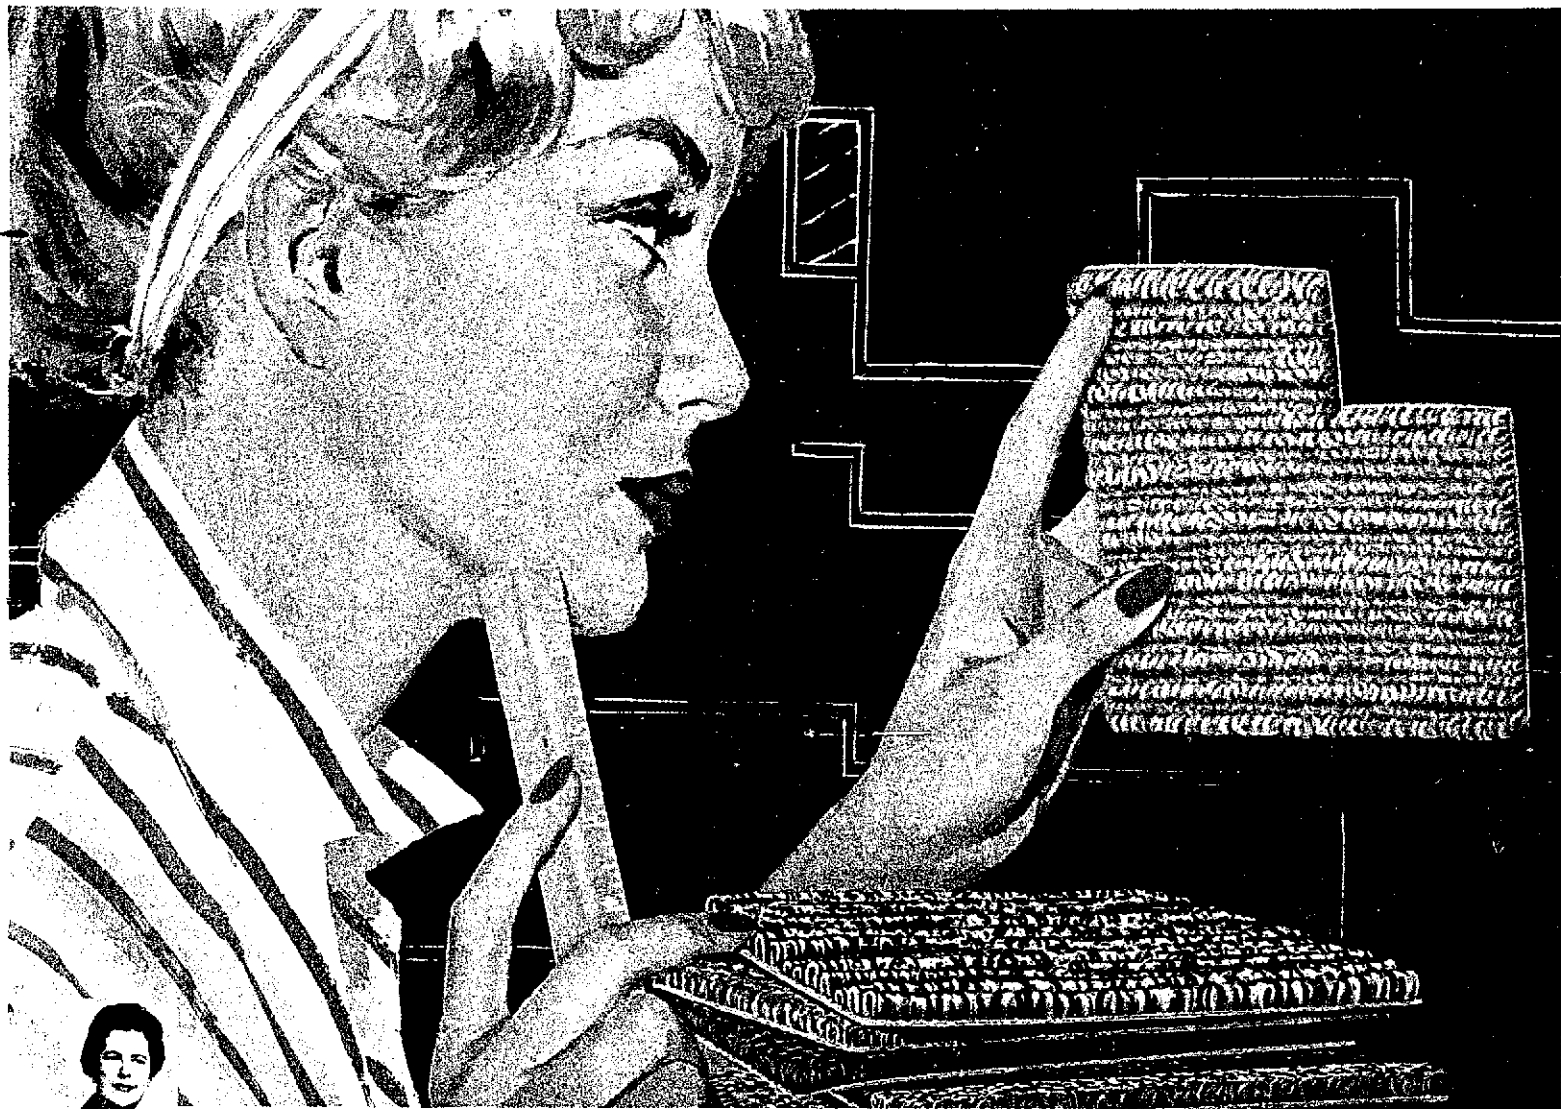

The Great and the Small

Fortune never showed its smiling face to Thomas Lincoln. He made a meager livelihood as a pioneer homesteader in Kentucky, Indiana, and Illinois. He lived to be 77, but when he died in 1851 his son, Abraham Lincoln, although a successful lawyer, seemed destined for similar frustration in life. He had just been defeated for re-election after serving one term as a congressman from Illinois. When William McKinley Sr. died at 85 in 1892, his son, too, had been defeated for re-election to Congress.

Among the fathers of the Presidents were famous men. John Adams was a leader of the American Revolution and Constitutional Convention and later President. Benjamin Harrison, father of William Henry, was signer of the Declaration of Independence and Virginia patriot. John Tyler Sr. was governor of Virginia. Gen. Benjamin Pierce, father of Franklin Pierce, was governor of New Hampshire. Alphonso Taft, father of William Howard Taft, was Secretary of War and Attorney General. Congressman John Scott Harrison made a mark in life apart from the fact that he is the only man in American history ever to have both a father (William Henry) and a son (Benjamin) who were Presidents.

Most of the others were just ordinary Americans. President Eisenhower's father, David, was typical. He was wrestling milk cans when Dwight was born in Denison, Tex., later became a relatively well-to-do gas company official.

Somewhere in America today walk other men like these whose sons will be President. They might be in a California grocery store or a Palm Beach mansion. Such is American democracy.

Trial by television

When the big gray eye of television opened on the American living room, it brought fresh problems for the whole family. Here are a few domestic dilemmas as observed (but not solved) by PARADE cartoonists.

BILL POLVOGT

AL KAUFMAN

PHIL INTERLANDI

"No, I'm not. And I'm glad you called. I'd like to tell you exactly why I'm not watching anything..."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jackie Kannon, young nightclub and TV comedian, was born in Windsor, Canada. As a youngster Jackie owned a small newsstand and daydreamed of becoming an actor. One afternoon during World War II he saw Mickey Rooney convulse an audience with laughter at a bond drive. He sold his newsstand and decided to become a comedian. He broke in at radio station CKLW in Windsor, was signed for an engagement at the 5 O'Clock Club in Miami Beach, soon graduated to the top variety TV programs and night clubs in the U.S. Jackie is married, has two sons, and in addition to a successful career in show business runs a flourishing business in novelty products. Here are some of his favorite jokes:

My favorite jokes

by JACKIE KANNON

TWO BUSINESSMEN were relaxing on the beach at Miami. "You know," one began, "what does everyone see in Elizabeth Taylor? Take away her hair, her lips, her eyes, and her figure—and what've you got?" The other businessman grunted. "My wife," he said sadly.

A YOUNG MAN came racing down the ferry slip, running as fast as his legs could carry him. He made a tremendous leap ten feet over the water and landed with a painful crash on the deck of the ferry. As he slowly picked himself up, rubbing his injured side, one of the deck hands sauntered over to him and said quietly: "You didn't have to rush like that, buddy. This boat is coming in."

LITTLE SUSIE was reading a book and came across a passage she couldn't understand. "Daddy," she called, "what's a financial wizard?" Daddy thought for a moment, then explained. "A financial wizard," he pointed out, "is a man who's discovered the magic of making more money than his family can spend."

A YOUNG MOVIE STARLET, freshly signed to a studio contract, felt she should travel to Europe under an assumed name and wearing dark glasses. On the boat over, she struck up a conversation with a fellow-passenger. Immediately she began putting on the dog.

"Wherever I go," she said, "I have to travel incognito. In Pasadena I was incognito, and no one knew who I was. In Tucson I was incognito, and no one knew who I was. In Portland, Maine, I was incognito, and no one knew who I was."

Bored beyond words, the passenger smiled politely. "And who," he finally asked, "were you?"

I LIKE THE ONE about the old gent who was in a car accident. His left eye was badly damaged. It was so bad that the doctor told him it would have to be removed and replaced with a glass eye.

"That's all right," the old gent agreed. "Only I'd like to ask a favor, Doc. When you pick my glass eye for me, just make sure it's got a twinkle in it."

THE POLICE STATION had been quiet most of the week. Things were so slow the detectives were playing cards to pass the time. "What a life," grumbled one of the officers. "No fights, no thefts, no riots, no murders, no nothin'."

"Rest easy, Mike," said the captain. "Things'll break soon. You just gotta have faith in human nature."

WHEN DANGER ROLLS ON HIGH IRON...

You've got to play it safe...at both ends!

DISKON A LONELY MOUNTAIN SIDING OF THE MONTANA & WESTERN, SOMETHING STRANGE BEGINS TO HAPPEN TO A STRING OF FREIGHT CARS.

CLANK

RUMBLE CLANK

Note: When brakes are improperly set, it needs only a slight grade to start cars moving; in this case, the switch was inadvertently left open...the string rolls out onto the main line—the "high iron"!

TWO MILES DOWNGRADE, A TOWERMAN SEES A CHILLING SIGHT...

HOLD IT, JOE!

RUNAWAY FREIGHT? I'VE GOT AN ENGINE HERE WITH STEAM UP, AND A DIESEL HALF A MILE UP THE SPUR—I'LL PUT 'EM BOTH ON IT! FIRST ONE TO MAKE CONTACT WILL STOP THE RUNAWAY!

SHE WAS A HIGH-STEPPIN' LADY ONCE...BUT AFTER TODAY, NOT EVEN TH' SWITCH YARDS'LL HAVE HER

The old Pacific 4-6-2, onetime ruler of the rails, rumbles out once more onto familiar "high iron"—while back on the spur a Diesel starts up...

RUNAWAY

C'MON, OLD GIRL!

AS THE RUNAWAY FREIGHT CATCHES UP WITH THE OLD LOCOMOTIVE, JOE HITS THE AIR BRAKES. THE DIESEL COMES IN SIGHT IN THE DISTANCE...NOT NEEDED NOW!

BANG!

HOLD 'ER BACK, LADY—YOU'RE THE BOSS NOW!

LATER—SAFE ON ANOTHER SIDING...

GOT IT AT BOTH ENDS! MIGHTY QUICK THINKING, BOSS!

I HAD TO PLAY IT SAFE...AND THAT MEANT...WORKING FROM BOTH ENDS! WHICH REMINDS ME...HAVE A VICEROY!

FOR SMOOTH TASTE, VICEROY'S GOT IT...AT BOTH ENDS! GOT THE FILTER, GOT THE BLEND!

DEEP-WEAVE FILTER

GOT THE FILTER! For smooth taste, Viceroy's fine filter strands are formed into a Deep-Weave (as shown above) that weaves the smoke deep through the Viceroy filter.

DEEP-CURED BLEND

GOT THE BLEND! Viceroy's rich tobaccos are Deep-Cured through and through. The right taste because Viceroy's got it, at both ends. Got the filter, got the blend!

The right taste depends on filter and blend

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

By Al Fagaly and Harry Shorten

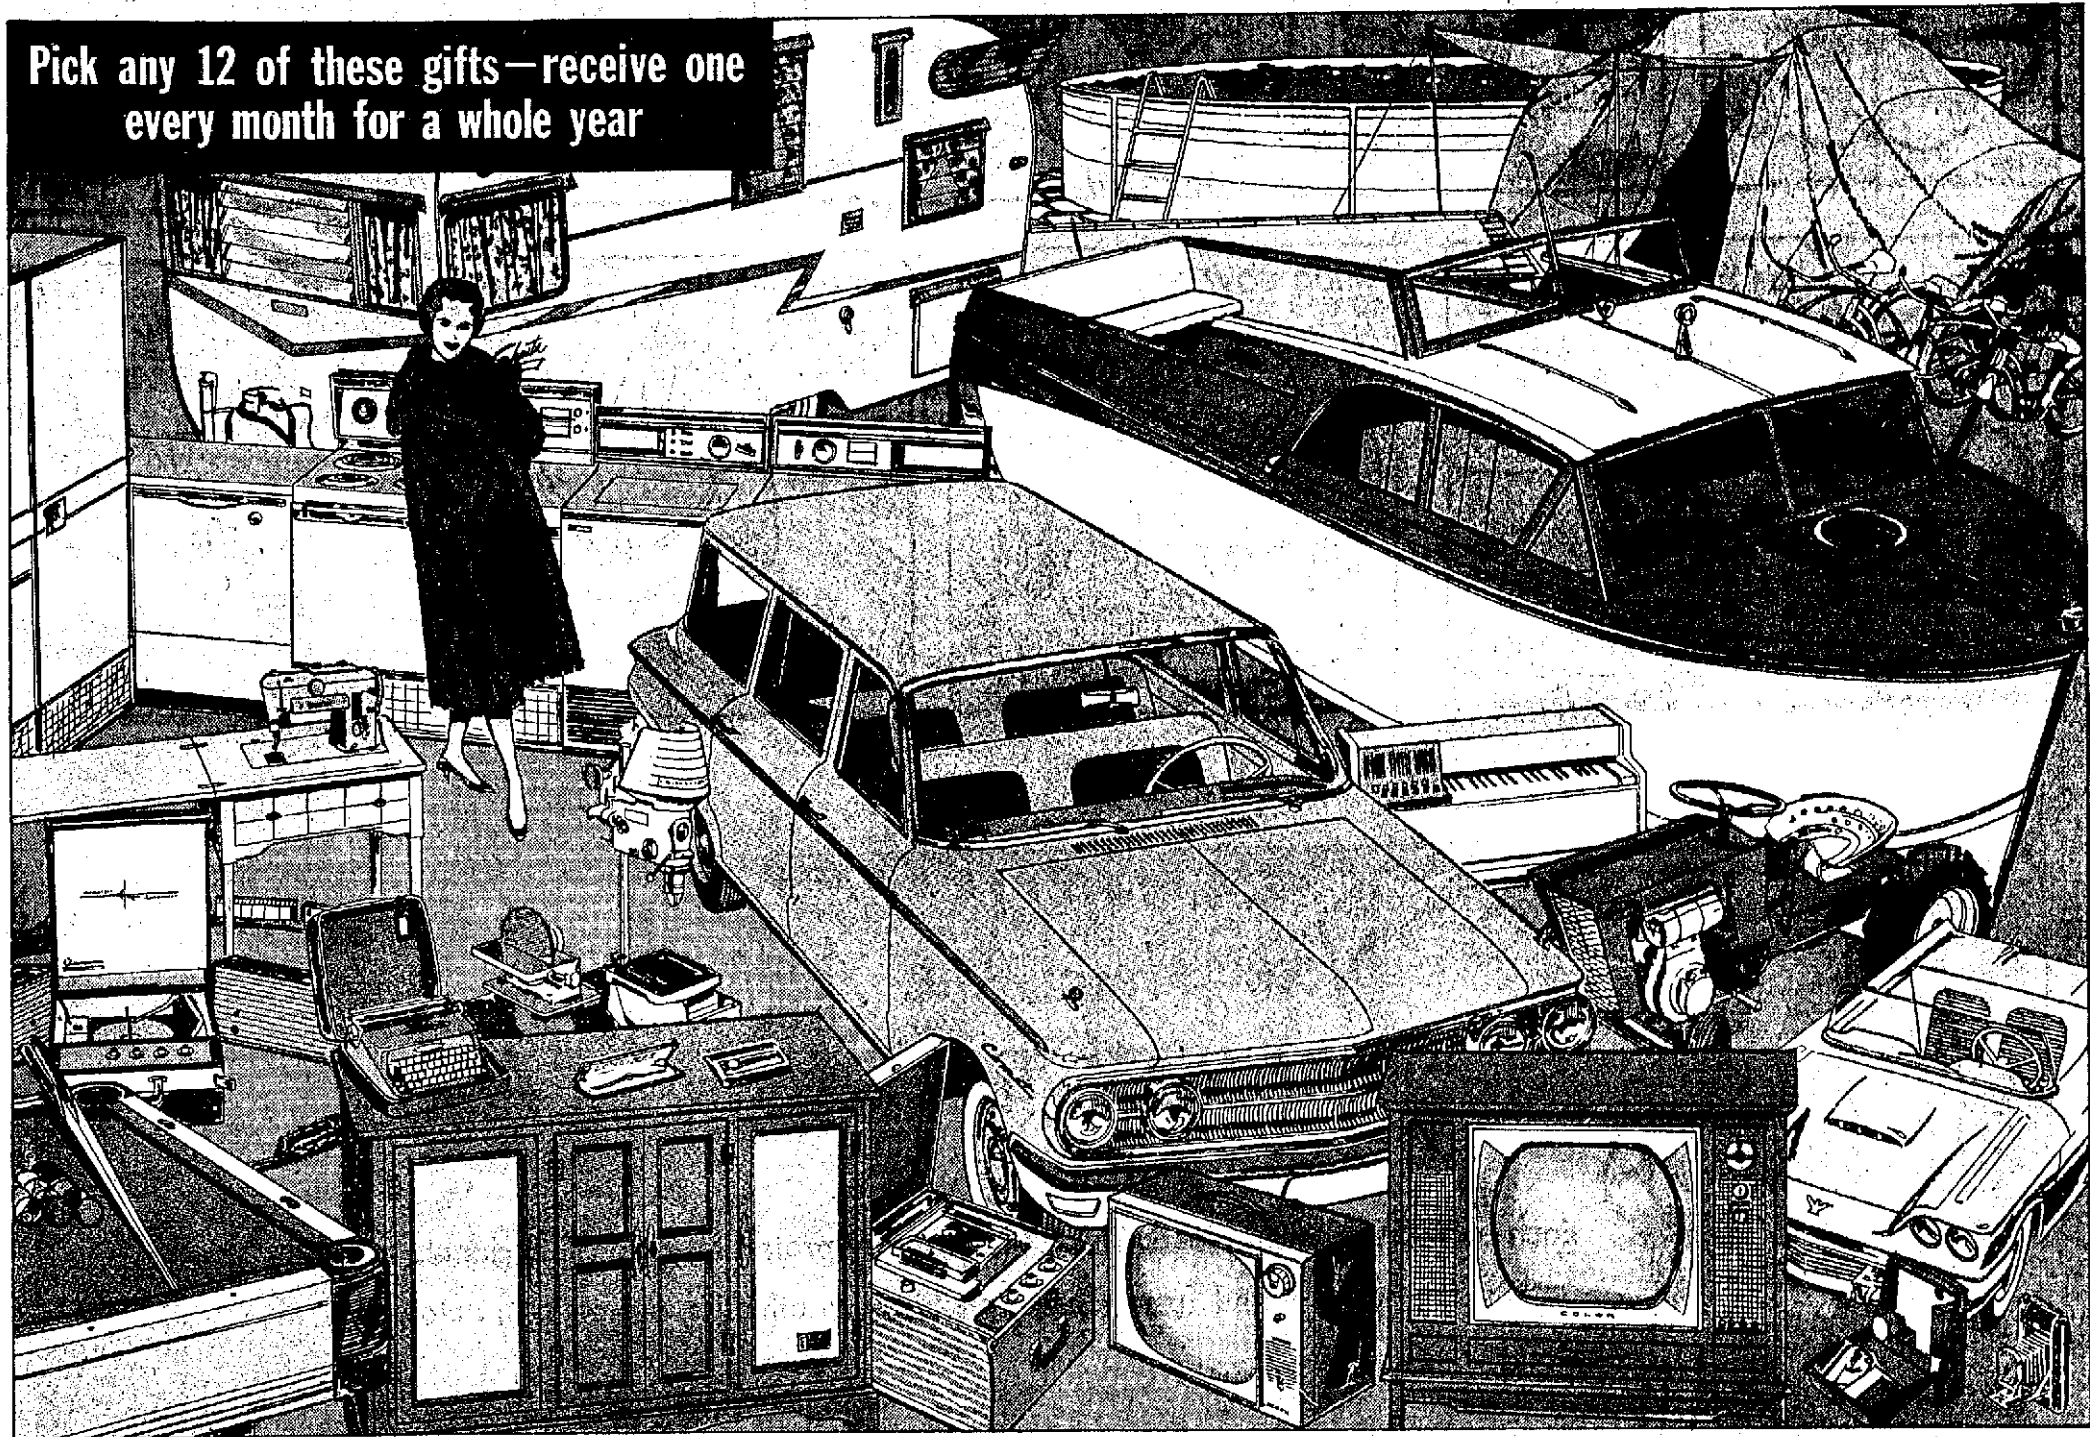

Your family can

WIN A GIFT A MONTH

for a year, in the $50,000 Kool-Aid Contest

Pick any 12 of these gifts—receive one every month for a whole year

GRAND PRIZE—CHOOSE ANY 12 GIFTS

500 ^{2nd} PRIZES

(GRUEN 17-Jewel "Precision" Watches for children and grown-ups)

SPECIAL $5,000 BONUS

If your entry wins the grand prize, you will receive $5,000 extra providing you enclose, with your entry, empty Kool-Aid envelopes from 3 different flavors—any 3 of these: orange, grape, strawberry, cherry, raspberry.

Enter as often as you like! Just look over the 24 gifts above, and pick the 12 you want most. Your family can select the gifts together . . . or every member of the family can choose his own gifts on separate entry blanks. There are plenty available wherever you buy Kool-Aid. Enter today.

It's easy to enter! Follow these simple rules!

1. Write a 2-line jingle starting with the name "Kool-Aid". Be sure last words in both lines rhyme. Use entry blank or plain piece of paper.
2. Send in as many entries as you like, but enclose one or more empty Kool-Aid envelopes with each entry. Send to: Kool-Aid, Box 6304, Chicago 77, Illinois.
3. All entries must be postmarked by midnight, October 31, 1960.
4. Entries will be judged equally on the basis of sincerity and freshness (creativity, interest and sparkle). Reuben H. Donnelley Corp. will act as judge, and their decision will be final. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties. All winners will be notified by mail.
5. Grand Prize Winner will receive any 12 gifts selected on the entry blank, plus $5,000 in cash if the winner encloses envelopes of 3 different Kool-Aid flavors—any 3 of these: orange, grape, strawberry, cherry, raspberry. 500 second prize winners will receive Gruen Wrist Watches.
6. All entries, contents and ideas therein become the property of General Foods. No entries returned; no correspondence exchanged. Contest is subject to Federal, state and local laws and regulations. Any liability for Federal, state or other taxes on prizes received will be the responsibility of the winners.
7. General Foods reserves the right to disqualify entries prepared by professional "ghost" writers, schools and contest writing services.
8. Contest is open to any resident of the United States, its territories and possessions except employees of General Foods, its subsidiaries, selling agents, advertising agencies, Reuben H. Donnelley Corp., and their families. Offer void wherever prohibited or restricted.

EASY TO ENTER—HERE'S ALL YOU DO

Just write a 2-line jingle starting with the name "Kool-Aid":

"KOOL-AID

Be sure last words in both lines rhyme. For example: "Kool-Aid is the best of all—summer, winter, spring and fall". Think up your own jingle. It's easy and fun.

Check the 12 gifts you want and mail this entry blank today!

Youngsters Are Active- They Get Hurt Twice as often as Adults!

Each of Your Children Needs This 24-hour-a-day protection against accidents at play, at school, on the way to and from school, on bikes, in automobiles, at home, in autos, etc.

PARENTS! This Insurance Is What You Need FOR YOUR CHILDREN!

Another Great Reader Service of Independent Press-Telegram

HERE IS WHAT YOU CAN COLLECT

in accordance with policy terms

MINOR ACCIDENTS—When there is no disability, policy covers your doctor bill expense up to $15.00 (limit $3.00 per visit) plus X-ray expense up to $10.00.

MAJOR ACCIDENTS—Include HOSPITAL EXPENSE—For most accidents at home, at work, at play, etc. Disability Benefits up to $120.00 at $30.00 per month; X-ray expenses up to $10.00; Ambulance expenses up to $10.00; PLUS Hospital Benefits to $300.00 at $5.00 per day. Maximum total $440.00.

For Auto and Pedestrian Accidents, maximum total increased to $620.00; for other Specified Travel Accidents, maximum $920.00.

TRAVEL ACCIDENTS—$500.00 for most accidents at home, at work, at play, etc. $1,000.00 for Auto, Pedestrian, certain specified Travel accidents. Up to $10,000.00 for other specified Travel accidents.

MONTHLY INCREASE—Important Death Benefits increase 1% each month you are insured—up to 50% maximum.

ELIGIBILITY—Issued to men, women and children between ages 1 and 79—except those who have lost both hands or feet or sight of both eyes.

LIMITATIONS—Death and Dismemberment Benefits reduced one-half under age 15 and after 60th birthday. No reduction of other benefits account of age.

EXCEPTIONS—Benefits paid in accordance with terms of policy form HM 7600-U which is renewable at option of Company. Does not cover accidents in a mine; in railroad yard or train except as fare-paying passenger; warfare; auto races; hazzlay while intoxicated or under influence of narcotics; expense items paid under Compensation Insurance.

Do you know that accidents are more dangerous than diseases in the age group from 1 to 24 years?

It's not hard to figure out why! Every day youngsters do many things which are dangerous...with never a thought to the possible consequences.

Running out from between parked cars, falling from bikes, playing hazardous games, scraping knees, climbing over fences... all this is part of an average day to an active boy or girl.

Youngsters get hurt twice as often as their parents. That's why more and more parents are taking out this insurance for each one of their children.

In these days when it costs so much to be laid-up by an accident, you cannot afford to let your children be without this protection.

HERE'S HOW TO GET A POLICY!

FOR FIRST POLICY IN FAMILY—Fill out and mail the simple application below. Send no money. After you receive your policy, pay 50¢ premium at the same time you pay for the paper.

FOR ADDITIONAL FAMILY MEMBERS—Fill out and mail the simple application below. Enclose $6.00 for an Annual Policy. Only one weekly policy issued in each family.

TRIAL BY JURY ITSELF—INSTEAD OF BRING A SECURITY TO PERSONS WHO ARE ACCUSED, SHALL BE A DELUSION, A MOCKERY, AND A SNARE. THOMAS LORD DENHAM JUDGMENT, O'CONNELL & QUINN, 4 SEPT. 1894

OH, MORNING, ANNIE! HARDLY DAYLIGHT! HOPE I DIDN'T WAKE YOU UP! Y'SEE, IT WAS MY NIGHT OFF AT THE FACTORY!

SHUCKS! I'VE BEEN AWAKE A LONG TIME!

WHAT Y' DOIN'? MAKIN' A FANCY CAB'NET?

JOB I PROMISED THE WORTH FAMILY! ONLY GET TO WORK ON IT THIS ONE NIGHT A WEEK!

GEE! IT'S BEAUTIFUL! B-B-BUT T' WORK ON YOUR ONE NIGHT OFF!

OH, IT'LL MEAN A FEW EXTRA DOLLARS! AND I'M SO USED TO WORKING NIGHTS, I COULDN'T SLEEP IF I TRIED!

YEAH! JUST LYIN' AWAKE THINKIN' CAN BE PRETTY RUGGED!

H-M-M-M! YES, ANNIE! ER... MARLENE SAYS SHE TOLD YOU HOW IT IS WITH US, AND HOW IT CAME TO BE THIS WAY!

YES! THAT CRAZY DRIVER, COMIN' FROM A WILD PARTY... TH' WRECK! THEN HE SUED YOU, WITH ALL HIS PALS ON TH' JURY, AN' EVEN TH' P'ICE AN' JUDGE GOIN' FOR HIM! SO THAT'S JUSTICE?

THAT HAPPENED OVER IN GODDEN CENTER, WE WERE OUT-OF-TOWNERS! JURIES AND COURTS ARE HUMAN, YOU KNOW!

YEAH? INHUMAN AN' PREJ'DICED, TOO, SEEMS AS HOW!

FIFTY THOUSAND! I'LL EARN THAT AND PAY IT! BUT POOR MARTHA, MY WIFE! IT WAS OUR ANNIVERSARY! WE'D GONE TO THE CITY, SHE'D BOUGHT A NEW DRESS! SHE WAS SO HAPPY... AND... AND THEN...

BUT WHO CAN SAY?—AT LEAST SHE DIDN'T SUFFER! BUT, MARLENE—OUR LENA! BLINDED! WHY? WHY MUST SUCH THINGS BE?

GUESS YOU JUST SAID IT! "WHO CAN SAY?"

BUT LENA SURE IS CHEERFUL AN' JUST PURELY KUNNERFUL!

YES! I'M THE BITTER ONE! MAYBE THAT'S HOW IT IS, ACTUALLY, NEARLY ALWAYS!

ARE WE SO SORRY FOR OUR DEAR ONES WE LOSE, OR WHO ARE TERRIBLY HURT? OR ARE WE SORRY FOR OURSELVES, AND ANGERED AT OUR LOSSES?

WELL, THAT'S ONE WAY O' LOOKIN' AT IT, EH?

YOO-HOO, YOU TWO! BREAKFAST'S READY! COME AND GET IT!

HOW CAN ANY MAN STAY BITTER WITH SUCH A DAUGHTER?

NOR EXTRA HEAVY COATS TO WARD OFF WINTRY BLASTS

WHEN THE WEATHER IS HOT, BIRDS COMPRESS THEIR FEATHERS TIGHTLY AGAINST THEIR BODIES, PERMITTING EXCESS HEAT TO ESCAPE...

AND WHEN CHILL WINDS BLOW, THESE INSULATORS ARE FLUFFED OUT, TRAPPING AND HOLDING BODY HEAT IN THE SPACES BETWEEN...

SO THAT IN ANY KIND OF WEATHER THE CHEERY SONGSTERS SEEM REASONABLY COMFORTABLE AND CONTENT

SOME SURPRISING FACTS ABOUT U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

MURRY PRANE

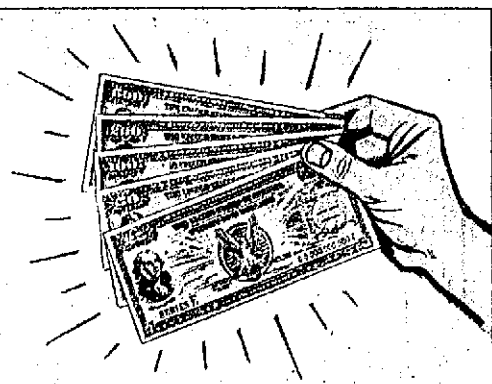

Folks in every walk of life, ages 1 to 100, own U. S. Savings Bonds. Every day the value of their bonds gets greater by almost $3 million.

It's easy to shop for Savings Bonds at more than 20,000 banks and savings and loan associations. Using the payroll savings plan where you work is even easier, and more "habit-forming."

A $25 Bond a month costs you only 63¢ a day. Keep it up for 40 months, and you'll have a nest stack of bonds worth $1000 at maturity. Cost of this nest egg: $750.

There's no element of risk in U. S. Savings Bonds. The U. S. Government guarantees that your investment will never go down--it can only grow.

All Series E Bonds now continue to earn interest past maturity. A new Bond held for 17 years, 9 months, will bring back $1.93 for every $1 you put in.

It's impossible to lose a U. S. Savings Bond by fire, theft, or any other way. Since 1941 the Treasury has replaced more than 1,300,000 Bonds, at no cost to the owners.

You save more than money with U. S. Savings Bonds. Every dollar you invest in Bonds is an investment in America's Peace Power.

3 BIG NEW CASH BENEFITS

you get with U. S. Savings Bonds

1. 3½% interest on all Series E and H Bonds bought after June 1, 1959, and held to maturity.
2. Higher interest on older Bonds, too--an extra ¼% more than ever before, from June 1, 1959, to maturity.
3. Liberal interest after maturity on all Series E Bonds. They keep earning for 10 more years after they mature.

You save more than money with U. S. SAVINGS BONDS

The U. S. Government does not pay for this advertising. The Treasury Department thanks The Advertising Council and this newspaper for their patriotic donation.
